MEANING OF TERMS

USED IN CLASSIFYING ANNOTATING CASES.

THE different expressions used to describe the effect of the annotating cases have the following meanings, and the classification of the annotating cases has been done strictly in accordance with these meanings. The annotating cases, except such as are classified as "Mentioned," are grouped according to the points in the case which they annotate: within these groups they are listed chronologically, except such as are classified as "Referred to," which come at the end of the group and are arranged inter se in chronological order. Cases which annotate the annotated case generally are grouped together after cases which annotate specific points, similarly arranged, and are followed by cases classified as "Mentioned" arranged chronologically inter se. The terms used in classifying the annotating cases are as follows:—

"APPLIED" (Apld.).—This expression is used to denote the fact that the principle of law enunciated in the annotated case has been applied to a new set of facts and circumstances in the annotating case.

"APPROVED" (Apprvd.).—This expression is used to denote the fact that the annotated case has been considered to be good law in the annotating case where the latter is in a higher court than the former.

"CONSIDERED" (Consd.).—This expression is used where the remarks in the annotating case are devoid of adverse criticism and merely denote the giving of more or less careful consideration to the annotated case.

"DISTINGUISHED" (Distd.).—This expression is used where the earlier case is not necessarily doubted, but where some essential difference (either on the facts or in law) between it and the annotated case is pointed out.

"DOUBTED" (Dbtd.).—This expression is used where the court in the annotating case without definitely going to the length of saying that the annotated case is wrong, adduces reasons which seem to show that it is not accurate.

"EXPLAINED" (Expld.).—This expression is used where the earlier case is not necessarily doubted, but the decision arrived at is justified or accounted for by calling attention to some point of fact or of law which is usually, but not necessarily, one not obvious on the face of the report.

"EXTENDED" (Extd.).—Compare "APPLIED," supra.

"FOLLOWED" (Folld.).—This expression is used to denote that the same principles of law are applied in the two cases. It does not necessarily imply that the facts are substantially identical in the two cases.

"NOT FOLLOWED" (N.F.).—Compare "FOLLOWED," supra, to which it is the adverse.

"OVERRULED" (Overd.).—This expression is used where the annotating case is on substantially identical facts with the annotated case and in a higher court and the rule in the latter case is held to be wrong.

"REFERRED" (Refd.).—This expression is used only where the annotating case deals with the point of the Digest paragraph and is without comment of any definite character on the case annotated, and where there is no delicate shade of approval or disapproval which would justify the use of any of the foregoing words.

"MENTIONED" (Mentd.).—This expression is used only where none of the foregoing terms apply. In other words, it is used only where the case annotated is cited on a point having nothing to do with the point in the Digest paragraph.

SECT. 34.—BORROWING AND SECURING MONEY.

SUB-SECT. 1.—POWER TO BORROW.

A. Implied Powers.

(a) In General.

4568. General principles of ascertainment.]—In considering the borrowing powers of a corpn. which has been formed by statute or otherwise, the matter depends entirely upon what is the construction of the statute or document, & it has to be ascertained whether there is power given to the co. either expressly or by reasonable implication. If a co. or corpn. is formed for the purpose of a particular undertaking, which undertaking it is obvious cannot be carried out without the expenditure of money, & if by the statute or document no means are given to the co. which will give them money in hand, or will give them express power to raise money, a reasonable implication would necessarily arise that they must have power to borrow, because otherwise the statute which created them is a futile document; it would pretend to give them powers to do things, but would give them no means of doing those things. But where in the statute or other document which forms the co. means are put into the hands of the co., that is, either by raising capital or by calling up more capital, or by a limited power of borrowing, or by any other way, as by a power to sell lands, which may be within reason sufficient for the purpose of enabling them to carry on the undertaking, then no ct. can measure whether those means will in the event be absolutely sufficient or not. Those means being put in their hands it cannot be inferred that they have at the same time the power to borrow.—WENLOCK (BARONESS) v. RIVER DEE Co. (1883), 36 Ch. D. 675, n.; 57 L. T. 402, n., C. PART III. SECT. 34, SUB-SECT. 1.—A. (a).

4568 i. General principles of ascertainment.]—A co. cannot make promissory notes or other negotiable instruments unless it is expressly or impliedly empowered to do so by its memorandum of assocn. If the power is not expressly given it can only be implied where, upon a reasonable construction of the memorandum, it appears that it was intended to be conferred. If it is a trading co. the power is implied on the broad ground of convenience.—KERR v. UNIVERSITY PRESS, LTD., [1923] 2 D. L. R. 948; 2 W. W. R. 187.—CAN.

4569. On mortgage of property.]—(1) A co. in difficulties, but not in the immediate prospect of a winding up, deposited the deeds of some freehold property with their bankers, to secure their current account, then largely overdrawn. They afterwards continued to draw upon their account, & to pay in moneys for a period of two months until the bank stopped payment. The co. resolved upon a voluntary winding up rather more than six months after the transaction:—Held: the mtge. was valid.

The arts. of assocn. provided that the co. might, with the sanction of a general meeting, borrow money not exceeding in amount one half of the nominal capital, upon mtge.:—Held: (2) the express power did not negative the general power, the rule being that a co. may mortgage its property unless expressly prohibited by its arts. from so doing; (3) such security did not operate as a fraudulent preference, & the bank were entitled to the full benefit of it.—Re PATENT FILE Co., *Ex p. 4571. Company without special articles—Borrowing authorised by special resolution.]—The M. co. was incorporated under 1856 Act as a limited co., for the purpose of conveying passengers & luggage in patent omnibuses. There were no special arts. of assocn. A majority of more than three-fourths in number & value of the shareholders present at a general meeting passed a special resolution, empowering the directors to borrow on debentures of the co. any sums not exceeding in the whole a certain amount. Some dissentient shareholders filed a bill on behalf of themselves & the other shareholders, except the directors, to prevent such borrowing, as being ultra vires:—Held: such 4572. Trading company.—A co. established under 1862 Act for the purpose of the sale & purchase of estates & property, the granting of advances on property intended for sale, & loans on deposit of securities, & the discounting of approved commercial bills, had under its memorandum & arts. of assocn. no express power to borrow money. The co. received deposits & discounted bills; & one of its directors, who was also a depositor, advanced money to the co. upon the security of an equitable charge on realty belonging to the co., in order to enable it to repay money due to himself & another depositor.

The co. was afterwards ordered to be wound up, & in an action by the liquidator to set aside the security as ultra vires the co. :—Held : (1) the co. was a trading co., & as such had an implied power to borrow money for the purposes of its business; (2) the borrowing which had taken place was one properly incident to the course & conduct of the business of the co. for its proper purposes; & accordingly, as the deposits were valid loans, it was competent for the co. to borrow for the purpose of repaying the depositors, & to give security to the person who made the advance, in the manner they had done.—*GENERAL AUCTION ESTATE & MONETARY Co. v. B. Express Powers.

4574. Effect of express limited power—Whether implied power to exceed.—The deed of settlement of a joint-stock co. established for erecting & maintaining a corn exchange, provided, that the capital of the co. should consist of a sum of £4,000 divided into shares of £5 each; & the directors were empowered from time to time to make calls upon the shareholders not exceeding the amount of their shares unpaid, & also to borrow money to the extent of £2,000 for the purchase of the site & for erecting the building, instead of calling for instalments upon the shares. In the purchase of the site & the erection of the building the directors expended more than double the amount of the capital, having borrowed the money of the shareholders & of their bankers, one of whom was a director of the co. An order was made for winding up the co., & a general call was made upon all the shareholders :—Held : upon appeal, discharging the order for a call, (1) upon the construction of the deed, the directors had power to borrow only to the extent of the unpaid capital; (2) the liability of the shareholders was limited to the amount of their respective shares unpaid, & the directors were primarily answerable for the excess of expenditure; (3) the co. was not a trading partnership, & therefore the directors could not, in excess of their authority under the deed, pledge the credit of the shareholders even to a creditor who had no notice of the deed.—Re WORCESTER CORN EXCHANGE Co. (1853), 3 De G. 4575. — Power limited to £500—Bills given to secure overdraft.—By a clause in the arts. of assocn. of a co., the directors were prohibited from contracting any loan beyond £500 without the consent of the co. by special resolution :—Held : the clause did not preclude the directors from giving bills to the co.'s bankers without such consent, to secure the balance of an overdrawn account to a larger amount, & the excess could be proved as a debt in the winding up.—Re CEFN OILCEN MINING Co. (1868), L. To borrow up to amount of preference share capital—Whether power to borrow before preference capital issued.—(1) Three cos., each of which had general power to borrow on mtge. or debentures, issued 25 mtge. debentures for £1,000 each. The debentures were headed in the names of the three cos., & were stated to be an issue by the cos. jointly. The three cos. thereby jointly & severally agreed to pay to the debenture-holders the principal sum & interest, & they thereby charged with such payments their several undertakings & all their present & future properties

t. Power to borrow on mortgage—Priority claimed by debenture-holder.—The co. being in liquidation under Dominion Winding-up Act, a claim was made on behalf of holders of the co.'s debentures that they were entitled to a charge on the assets of the co. in priority to depositors. The co. was formed on Oct. 19, 1871, under C. S. U. C., c. 53, by sect. 38 of which the right of a society formed under it to borrow money, if authorised by its rules to do so, was recognised. By rule 7 of the co., passed under sect. 2 of above Act, the directors were authorised to borrow money for the use & on the assets of the co., to receive money on deposit, & to loan or invest such money either on mtge. on real estate or in any other way they might think best for the interests of the institution :—Held : the co. was invested with the power to borrow money for its purposes, & to give security upon its assets for the payment of the money borrowed.—Re FARMERS' LOAN & SAVINGS Co., DEBENTURE HOLDERS' CASE (1899), 30 O. & assets. The debentures were issued in pursuance of resolutions of the boards of directors of the three cos., who were in each case the same persons, & the moneys advanced were paid to a joint banking account & were appropriated in different amounts to each co. Orders had been made for the winding up of each co., & the debenture-holders had brought an action to enforce their security:—Held: having regard to the several obligations of the cos. respectively, assuming it was ultra vires the cos. to issue debentures jointly, the debentures were a valid charge against each co. to the extent to which the money advanced came to the coffers of that co.

(2) The arts. of one of the cos. gave the directors various powers, in addition to their general powers, & in particular power to borrow on the security of the property of the co. "any sum or sums of money not exceeding the amount of the preference share capital of the co.":—Held: this was not a prohibition of borrowing unless & until preference shares had been issued, but was intended for the protection of the preference shareholders if they existed, & until they came into existence the co. could borrow under its general powers without regard to this limitation.—*Re JOHNSTON FOREIGN PATENTS CO., LTD., Re JOHNSTON DIE PRESS CO., LTD., Re JOHNSTONIA ENGRAVING CO., LTD., J. 4577. Successive articles giving general & express power.]—(1) The 78th clause of arts. of assocn. [of a co.] limited the powers of the directors of borrowing to £10,000, unless authorised by a general meeting. By the 35th clause, a special meeting might authorise the borrowing of such sums as it thought fit:—Held: the directors might be authorised to borrow beyond £10,000, either by a general or special meeting. (2) The principle of equity, that what is agreed to be done is considered as actually done, applies to the case of a public co. acting through its directors as completely as it does to dealings between individuals; & therefore, where directors had authority to create a charge upon their co.'s assets, & with a clear intention of creating such a charge, entered into an agreement to that effect, but the bonds given were in some respects defective or insufficient, & did not adequately carry the intention into effect, the motion of the official liquidator, appointed when the co. was ordered to be wound up, to discharge an order declaring that the amount borrowed was duly charged upon the estate, was refused by the Ct. of Appeal.—Re STRAND MUSIC HALL CO. (1865), 3 De G. 4578. Power to borrow on mortgage—Prohibition against giving bills of exchange—Bills given & mortgage executed simultaneously to secure existing debt—Whether mortgage valid.]—Directors of a co. were prohibited giving bills of exchange; but they had powers to borrow on mtge. They however gave bills to secure an existing debt, & a mtge. was, at the same time, executed, under the seal of the co., which was made subject to redemption on payment of the bills:—Held: (1) the mtge. was given to secure the debt, & not the payment of the bills, & therefore was not invalid on that account; (2) upon a bill of foreclosure by the mtgee., the deed of the co. must be treated as valid, until set aside by an independent proceeding.—*SCOTT v. Power to "issue" debentures or other securities—Creation of verbal charge.]—The memorandum of assocn. stated that one of the objects of the co. was to borrow money by the issue of debentures & other securities upon the co.'s property, or without any such security. By the arts., which were issued at the same time, the directors had power to borrow as they should think fit. On a claim by creditors in respect of a verbal charge on uncalled capital:—Held: owing to the use of the word "issue," it was not clear debentures of the co. for the amounts borrowed, & to pledge the real or personal property, rights & powers, of the co., to secure such bonds or debentures. On the same day a meeting of the shareholders of the co. was held, at which all the shareholders were present, when this bye-law was confirmed, & all the provisional directors duly elected the directors of the co. This bye-law purported to be enacted by the directors, not the provisional directors, & had the seal of the co. affixed to it:—Held:

whether or not the provisional directors had power to pass the bye-law, it was a valid bye-law & sufficient authority for the subsequent issue of debentures by the directors.—JOHNSTON v. WADE (1908), 17 O. L. R. 372; 11 O. W. R. 598; 12 O. W. R. 951.—CAN.

b. Power to issue & hypothecate bonds—To secure existing debt.]—The bonds of a co. held to have been properly issued & hypothecated to a bank to secure an existing indebtedness, the powers of the company with respect to the matter being governed by Companies Act, R. S. from the memorandum that there was power to create a security verbally; the clause was ambiguous, & the arts. might be looked at for an interpretation of it; that the power in the articles was in general terms; & the memorandum, inasmuch as it ought, as far as possible, to be construed consistently with the arts., must therefore be held to authorise the creation of a verbal charge.—Re TILBURY PORTLAND CEMENT CO., LTD. (1893), 62 L. 4582. Power to issue debenture-stock—Issue of irredeemable debenture-stock—Perpetual annuities.—By its memorandum of assocn. one of the objects of the co. was stated to be to borrow money by the issue of any mtges., debentures, debenture-stock, bonds, or obligations. By the arts. the board were authorised to issue debenture stock to be secured upon the property of the co., & to be irredeemable or redeemable as the board should determine. The co. issued irredeemable debenture-stock charged upon its assets as a floating charge. The undertaking of the co. had been sold & the co. was being wound up voluntarily. The liquidators proposed to pay off the debenture-stock at par, & a stockholder took out a summons to determine whether they were entitled to do so:—Held: (1) the co. had no power under their memorandum of assocn. to issue irredeemable debenture-stock, which was really equivalent to a perpetual annuity; the arts. might be referred to to explain the borrowing powers of the co., but the granting of perpetual annuities was not a borrowing within those powers; & the stockholder was only entitled to a return of his money paid to the co. & interest; (2) if this was really a borrowing upon the terms that the debenture-stock should not be repayable as long as the co. was a going concern, applt., now that the co. was in liquidation, was upon that view also only entitled to a return of his money paid to the co. with interest.—*Re SOUTHERN BRAZILIAN RIO GRANDE DO SUL RY. holders. A verdict having been found for pltf. on the question of fact & law:—Held: though the railway co. had exceeded the borrowing powers given by their original Act of incorporation, yet that sufficient borrowing powers having been given by subsequent Acts, & their exercise having been sanctioned by the shareholders, the borrowing was not ultra vires the authority of the managers & directors & the grant of a new trial on the ground of misdirection, was correct.—Com-

of the objects of the co.; they were also expressly authorised to borrow, on the security of the property of the co., any sum of money not exceeding two-thirds of the capital of the co. not called up. The directors mortgaged a ship, the only property of the co., to secure the payment of a sum of money advanced to the co., & of unpaid purchase-money of the ship; the amount so secured much exceeding two-thirds of the amount not called up of the shares actually issued, but being within two-thirds of the whole nominal capital not called up:—Held: the mtge. was within the powers of the directors, & was valid; & the term "capital not called up" included shares which had not been issued.—*ENGLISH CHANNEL S.S. 4593. Capital only capable of being called up in winding up—Resolution under Companies Act, 1879 (c. 76), s. 5.—The M. P. Co., Limited, was registered in Aug., 1892, with a capital of £50,000 in 5,000 shares of £10 each, & both the memorandum of assocn. & the arts. authorised the creation of a charge on the unpaid capital for the time being. By a special resolution passed on Sept. 21, 1892, & confirmed on Oct. 12, 1892, it was declared, "That such portion of the co.'s capital as consists of £5 per share remaining uncalled upon all the ordinary shares of the co. shall not be capable of being called up, except in the event of & for the purposes of the co. being purpose the board might consider advisable; & also the borrowing of money & the issue of debentures based upon all or any of the real or personal property or other assets of the co.:—Held: it gave power to mortgage uncalled capital.

Two series of debentures were issued, all of which on their face "charged by way of floating security" all the co.'s property whatsoever & wheresoever both present & future. By conditions endorsed on both series of debentures the charge thereby created was to be a floating security, & the power of the directors to call up the capital in the case of the first series of debentures was restricted to the extent of the debenture debt for the time being, & in the case of the second series, half the subscribed capital, except for the purpose of payment of its debentures:—Held: reading the words "future property" with the conditions, the debentures constituted a valid charge over uncalled capital.—ANSTED v. wound up in accordance with the provisions of the Companies Act 1879." In June, 1894, the co. issued 160 first mtge. debentures of £10 each to appct., purporting to be a charge on all its property whatsoever & wheresoever, both present & future, including its uncalled capital for the time being. On Aug. 8, 1896, the present action was commenced on behalf of all the debenture-holders & a receiver was appointed on Aug. 12. On Aug. 8, a compulsory winding-up order was made against the co.; at that time only £5 per share remained uncalled. This was an application by a debenture-holder to have it declared that these debentures were a first charge on £5 per share which had been called up by the official receiver & liquidator in the winding up:—Held: the language of sect. 5 of the above Act created a statutory disability in a certain event to call up capital for any purpose except winding up, & the uncalled capital mentioned in the special resolution passed under that sect. was to be preserved intact for the purposes of the liquidation.—*Re MAYFAIR PROPERTY CO., BARTLETT v. 4597. Enforcement of charge—In favour of debenture-holders—Whether by receiver or liquidator.—When a co. is ordered to be wound up, the power of its directors, under its constitution, to make calls on shares ipso facto comes to an end, & the only power to make calls is that which is by statute given to the liquidator acting in the winding up.

Therefore, where uncalled capital has been charged by the co. in favour of debenture-holders, & the co. is ordered to be wound up, the ct. has no jurisdiction to order either a receiver appointed in an action brought to enforce the debentures, or the liquidator, to make a call in the action, but can only order the liquidator to make the call in the winding up. The receiver in the action may, however, be empowered to take proceedings in the name of the liquidator for getting in the call.—FOWLER v. BROAD'S PATENT NIGHT LIGHT CO., [1893] 1 Ch. 724; 62 L. J. 4598. ——— ——— ———.]—The ct. approved the practice of allowing, in proper cases, the receiver, who has been appointed in a debenture-holders' action against a co. in liquidation whose uncalled capital is included in the debenture-holders' security, to use the name of the liquidator, upon giving him a proper indemnity, for the purpose of recovering the calls made by him. The ct. refused to sanction the application of a debenture-holder, whose security was upon the uncalled capital of a co., that a person nominated by him with the approval of subsequent debenture-holders should be allowed to recover calls made by the liquidator.—Re WESTMINSTER SYNDICATE, LTD. (1908), 99 L. Before nominal capital subscribed.]—A joint-stock co., established with limited liability, under 1862 Act, may lawfully commence business & exercise their borrowing powers before the whole of the nominal capital has been subscribed; & a representation by prospectus issued on behalf of a co., that the capital consists of a given sum, in shares of a certain amount, does not imply that the whole capital named is to be raised at once, & that the borrowing powers are to be suspended until the whole of such capital has been subscribed.—MACDOUGALL v. 4612. What amounts to—Acquiescence by company.]—By a co.'s deed of settlement power was given to a meeting of two-thirds in number & value of the shareholders to authorise the directors to borrow on debentures. The directors raised money on debentures upon the resolution of a meeting at which the requisite number of shareholders was not present. The debentures were issued to persons actually present at the meeting, & the money raised was applied in payment of the debts of the co. Interest was duly paid on the loans for two years:—Held: the original issue of debentures was invalid, but the subsequent acquiescence of the co. had cured their invalidity, & they could not now be disputed.—Re MAGDALENA STEAM NAVIGATION CO. (1860), John. 690; 29 L. 4613. Effect of—Whether authority for further borrowing.]—The ratification by the shareholders of a co. of a particular act of the directors in excess of their authority does not authorise them to do similar acts in future.

One of the arts. of assocn. of a registered co. provided that the directors' power of borrowing on the credit of the co. should be limited, so that "the total amount should not exceed in the aggregate, as an existing debt at the same time, one-half of the then actually paid up capital of the co." The arts. contained no restriction on the borrowing powers of the co., & the directors' power of borrowing was capable of being extended by the votes of one-half of all the shareholders at a general meeting. The directors obtained a letter of credit for an amount exceeding one-half of the then paid-up capital of the co., which was ratified by a general meeting. The letter subsequently expired, & was renewed, & a second letter was obtained. These latter acts were never ratified:—Held: though the limitation above-mentioned was merely a limitation of the powers of the directors, & not of the general powers of the co., so that the acts of the directors were capable of ratification, yet the ratification of the first letter of credit did not authorise its renewal, nor the obtaining of the second letter.—IRVINE v. UNION BANK OF AUSTRALIA (1877), 2 App. Cas. 366; L. R. 4 Ind. App. 86; 46 L. J. P. C. 87; 37 L. T. 176; 25 W. R. 682, P. C.

The directors of a co. having no borrowing powers, being pressed for money by their contractor, obtained for him, on credit, £2,000 at a banker's upon their guarantee. The contractor afterwards agreed to abandon the plant, etc., to the co., on receiving £600 & being indemnified against the banker's claim. Subsequently to this, the secretary of the co., with the sanction of the directors, borrowed £500 in his own name for the co., which was applied in paying the banker & a judgment debt of the co. The co. had the benefit of the plant, etc.:—Held: the secretary could recover the amount from the co. of the money bonâ fide applied for its benefit, with interest.—*ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH CO. The directors issued debentures to the amount of £3,050, of which A. held £1,650, the nominal capital of the co. being £10,000, & mortgaged to A., for money advanced, lands & other property of the co. for £3,950, & the mtge. was sanctioned at a general meeting of the co.:—Held: the restriction in the clause of the arts. of assocn. was imposed on the co. itself, & not merely on the directors; the sanction of the mtge. by the co. was ultra vires, & the security void as to the excess over one-third of the nominal capital.—Re BANSHA WOOLLEN MILLS CO., LTD. (1887), 21 L. 4620. Improperly sealed—No meeting of directors to sanction issue—Irregularity cured by special clause in articles.—Arts. of assocn. of a co. empowered its directors to secure the repayment of money by debentures. The common seal of the co. was not to be affixed to any document except in the presence of two directors, or of one director & the secretary, & in pursuance of a resolution of the directors. No director was to vote in respect of any contract in which he was personally interested, & if he should vote his vote was not to be counted. But one of the arts. (115) provided that any debenture bearing the common seal, & issued for valuable consideration, should bind the co. notwithstanding any irregularity touching the authority of the directors or officers or servants of the co. to issue the same. The co. had agreed to pay B. who was a director, a sum of money with interest at 6 per cent., & B. owed D. a smaller sum. On D. pressing for payment it was arranged that the co. should issue to B. a debenture for the amount owing by him to D., with interest at 5 per cent., & that B. should transfer it to D. Prior to the debenture being issued D.'s solrs. were furnished with a print of the arts. The debenture bore the seal of the co., which was stated to be affixed in the presence of B. as a director, & was signed by him & counter-signed by M. the secretary of the co.

No meeting of directors was called to sanction the issuing of the debenture, but there were minutes of a meeting held about the same time which stated that B. & M. were present, & that a resolution was passed authorising the issuing & sealing of the debenture:—Held: (1) the debenture was given for valuable consideration, & the irregularities attending its issue were cured by art. 115; (2) there being nothing on the face of the debenture to show that the arts. had not been complied with, D. was not affected with notice of its infirmities by the fact of his solrs. having seen a print of the memorandum & arts. prior to the transfer to him.—*DAVIES v. was invalid, the terms Canada Joint Stock Co.'s Act, 1877, s. 85, which required the sanction of a two-thirds vote of the shareholders not having been complied with:—Held: under the decree the master had no power to adjudicate upon the validity of the instrument in question as a mtge., & the execution creditors not having moved against the judgment, by virtue of which they were made parties were also bound by the decree.—*McDOUGALL v. These debentures were signed by two directors, & sealed with the common seal of the co. No meeting granting authority to borrow money on debentures was in point of fact held; but there was an entry in the directors' agenda book dated two days before the issue of the debentures, of a resolution, "that the co.'s seal be affixed to the said debentures for £4,000," & the entry of the resolution was signed by three directors:—Held: the debentures were binding upon the co.

Semble : it was competent for the co. to introduce a clause into their deed, providing that an instrument which, in fact, accords with the statute law as regards signatures, & is sealed with the common seal, shall not be valid unless it has the additional formality of being signed by three directors, &, therefore, the provisions of sect. 28 of the deed of settlement cannot control the express terms of 1844 Act, which provides that contracts entered into on behalf of any joint-stock co. shall be signed by two directors, & sealed with the common seal of the co.—*AGAR v. A plea of non est factum cannot be sustained by evidence that regulations have been made requiring a quorum of three directors.

He is presumed to know the constitution of the co. but not what may or may not have taken place within doors that are closed to him. k. ——— Regularity of resolutions.]—Defts., a trading co., were heavily indebted to a trading partnership; & upon the suggestion of the partnership, took into their employment as manager M., who was related to a member of the partnership. The pltf. co. took over the business of the partnership. The indebtedness of the debts. amounted to $19,378.19. A mtge. upon their land was then made by debts. to pltfs. to cover liabilities for goods purchased, for advances made to enable debts. to discharge other liabilities, & for future advances. The mtge. purported to be duly executed under the seal of debt. co. & the hands of its president & secretary, & was duly registered in the land registry office, but was not filed in the office of the Provincial Secretary:—

Held: (1) pltfs. had no knowledge of any irregularity in the execution or giving of the mtge., & knowledge was not to be attributed to them because M. had such knowledge, for M. did not represent pltfs. as their agent & they had no control over him, & he was not accountable to them in any way; (2) the mtge. was one which the directors had power to give, & the liability which it purported to secure being such as was enforceable by pltfs. against debt. co., pltfs. were not put upon inquiry as to the regularity of the resolutions authorising its execution—it was a case of the indoor management.

(2) The employment by pltf. of her husband to apply & pay for debentures for her does not affect her with notice of all he knew as director, & the question whether one director could form a quorum of a board of two is a matter of internal management of the co., & does not affect a debenture-holder seeking to enforce her security.—Re FIRE-PROOF DOORS, LTD., UMNEY v. The debentures were in blank as far as regarded the name of the obligee:—Held: the debentures were void at law; but as the directors' minutes could be read in connection with the debentures & the trust deed for securing them, there was a sufficient memorandum of a contract under which the bank was entitled in equity to be treated as if the name of the bank had been inserted in the debentures prior to their execution by the co.—Re QUEENSLAND LAND & COAL CO., DAVIS v. 1. Holder for value without notice—From director in whose hands bonds were left—Misappropriation—Company negligent.—A railway co. issued bonds under the usual deed of trust. The N. T. C., a body corporate, was the original trustee, but after having executed the deed, resigned. Another trustee was appointed who signed & issued a number of the bonds a few days before the co. passed into the hands of a receiver. The bonds on their face recited that they should not be “obligatory until certified by N. T. C., trustee.” D., the new trustee, signed the bonds in the name of the original trustee, adding thereto “succeeded by D.” The bonds were also signed by the president & secretary of the co. A certain number of the bonds were handed to H., the president of the co., by the trustee D., after he had signed them. H. borrowed money for his own use from R., & gave some of the bonds as collateral security, also depositing sixteen of them with R. for safe keeping. R. used all the bonds as collateral for a loan subsequently obtained by him for his own use. The holders of these bonds for value & without notice made claim:—Held: they were entitled to recover against the co. on the ground that the co. had by their negligence in allowing H. to have the bonds under his control made it possible for the bonds to find their way into the hands of bond fide purchasers.—RAILWAYS & CANALS

SUB-SECT. 3.—DEBENTURES AND DEBENTURE-STOCK.

A. Nature, Contents, and Construction of Instruments of Security.

(a) Nature of Debentures.

4637. General rule.—An agreement between a co. of the one part & a lender of the other part, whereby the co. agreed to pay the lender the sum of £600 with interest, & charged certain hereditaments with the repayment of the said sum of £600 & interest, & further agreed with the lender that they would at any time during the continuance of the security at the request of the lender execute a legal mtge., & further agreed to issue debentures of the co. to the extent of £600 secured over all the capital stock, goods, chattels, & effects of the co., including uncalled capital, both present & future:—Held: to be in effect a debenture.

Any document which either creates a debt or acknowledges it, is a "debenture."

A debenture means a document which either creates a debt or acknowledges it, & any document which fulfils either of these conditions is a "debenture." I cannot find any precise legal definition of the term, it is not either in law or commerce a strictly technical term, or what is called a term of art. It must be "issued," but "issued" is not a technical term, it is a mercantile term well understood; "issue" here means the delivery over by the co. to the person who has the charge; as to what "company" means I have already said it must be by "an incorporated company," & it must be secured on "the goods, chattels & effects" of the co. 4647. Effects in & upon the premises—Whether stock-in-trade & book debts included.]—The debentures issued by a manufacturing co. provided that the co. should not thereby be prevented from dealing with their property for the purposes of the co. By the debenture-deed the business premises of the co., & the plant, machinery, & effects in & upon the premises, or used in connection therewith, were assigned upon trust to permit the co. to hold & enjoy the premises, & carry on their business therein & therewith until default, & after default to sell, etc., with a power to the trustees to sell the same & the goodwill as a going concern. The deed also contained a covenant by the co. that all lands, etc., & all machinery & effects which they should thereafter acquire should be included in the security, with a proviso that the co. should not be precluded, on purchasing any lands, from mortgaging them to raise or secure the purchase-money; & a further covenant that the sum to be secured by the debentures should be a first charge upon the property assigned, subject to any mtge. under the proviso. The co. having gone into liquidation:—Held: (1) the assignment included all the stock-in-trade upon the premises of the co. at the time of default, but not the book debts owing to the co.; (2) the power to carry on business did not operate to give to ordinary creditors a claim for goods supplied, chargeable in priority to the debenture-holders against the property comprised in the deed.—Re ANGLO-AMERICAN LEATHER CLOTH CO., LTD. (1880), 43 L. A winding-up order having been made, the liquidator proceeded to sell certain freehold & leasehold estate belonging to the co. ; but the purchaser refused to complete unless the debenture-holders were satisfied. The debenture-holders thereupon took out a summons in Chambers :—Held : (1) the effect of the debentures was to give the holders a charge, in priority to other creditors, upon the land & other property of the company ; (2) upon the construction of the debentures, they did not include the capital of the co., & the issuing of them did not necessarily paralyse the business of the co., & was not, on that account, a transaction ultra vires, or a breach of trust.—Re MARINE MANSIONS Co. (1867), L. R. 4 Eq. 601 ; 37 L. J. Ch. 113 ; 17 L. T. 50

4670. Power of investment.—The debenture trust deed of a brewery co. contained the usual common form powers for the trustees to settle, adjust, refer to arbitration, compromise, & arrange all accounts, questions, claims, etc., with regard to the mortgaged premises, & also generally to act in relation to the mortgaged premises in such manner as they might think expedient in the interest of the debenture stockholders. It also contained a power, which was said to be common form in debenture deeds of the kind in question, to invest capital money arising (inter alia) under the powers first mentioned in the purchase of new licensed premises. Renewal having been refused of the licence of part of the premises comprised in the trust deed under the power conferred on the licensing authority by the above Act, & compensation money having been paid for such refusal :—Held : this money came to the trustees by virtue of the power to settle, adjust, etc., all accounts, questions, claims, etc., mentioned above, & they were therefore entitled under the power of investment mentioned above to re-invest the money in the purchase of fresh licensed premises.—NOAKES v. The deed provided by clause 17 that at any time before the security thereby constituted became enforceable the trustees might, inter alia, sell & convert, or concur in selling & converting, all or any of the mortgaged premises in the same manner as they could do if the primary trust for conversion had then arisen; & by clause 18, that the trustees should hold the capital moneys arising under clause 17 upon trust to lay out the same in, inter alia, the purchase of the licensed premises suitable to be held for the purposes of the co. :—Held : moneys paid under the above Act for compensation for the licence of one of the mortgaged premises comprised in the trust deed were capital moneys arising under clause 17 as above set out, & were applicable under the provisions of clause 18.—DAWSON v. "shall purchase those bonds which are offered to it at the lowest price" :—Held : according to the plain intent of this direction "the lowest price" offered meant the price which was lowest on the average as applied to the whole block purchased. There was no breach of contract with resp. in refusing his offer for a small number of bonds, if by its acceptance the average price of the whole block acquired would, having regard to the terms of other offers, have been increased.—NATIONAL TRUST CO., LTD. v. 4675. — Distribution of proceeds of sale of property charged.—In 1902 a co. issued debenture stock payable by the instalments mentioned in the application form, which were all called up by May, 1903. The trust deed securing the stock provided for a distribution of the net proceeds of any sale thereunder first in payment of arrears of interest in proportion to the amount due, & secondly in payment of principal in proportion to the stock held by the stockholders. All the stockholders were entered on the register & received certificates for the full amount of stock allotted, but several had not paid their instalments. The trustees had realised the security & were distributing the assets, & the question arose whether the partly paid stockholders could participate without notionally bringing in their unpaid instalments in accordance with the principle of Cherry v. Boulbee (1839), 4 My. & Cr. 442 :—Held : the transaction simply amounted to a contract to make a loan by instalments to the co. on the security of debenture stock, which contract prior to Companies Act, 1907 (c. 50), s. 16, re-enacted by 1908 Act, s. 105, was not enforceable either in debt or specific performance but only in damages; as therefore the unpaid instalments did not constitute a debt to the co. or the trustees, the principle of Cherry v. Boulbee was inapplicable, & the partly paid stockholders were entitled to a rateable distribution in respect of the loans they had actually made.—Re SMELTING CORPN., SEAVER v. instrument, caused certain proceedings to be instituted in a German ct., the result of which was that the trust property was sold at an undervalue by the officer of the ct., part of the property being purchased by a person who was an agent of the co. & held a fiduciary position. The trustees took no steps, notwithstanding a long period had elapsed, to get in any of the purchase-moneys:—Held: the breach of trust thus committed justified the removal of the trustees from office, & the purchase by the agent must be declared to be for the benefit of the trust for the debenture-holders.—*REID v. Petitions had been presented to wind up the corpn., who had been in financial difficulties, but their difficulties had been surmounted & the petitions withdrawn, & they were now solvent & working efficiently, & it did not appear that the interest of the debenture-holders had suffered or been in danger:—Held: no sufficient cause had been shown for removing the corpn. from being trustee.—*ASSETS REALISATION CO. v. C. Floating Charges.(a) What constitutes a Floating Charge.

4690. General rule.—A co., by way of security to guarantors, assigned by deed all its present & future book & other debts, with the benefit of all securities for the same, to a trustee in trust for the guarantors. The deed contained no express provision against possession being taken by the trustee, but declared that the trustee should at any time, if required by the guarantors, give notice of this assignment to the co.'s debtors, but that it should not be incumbent on the trustee to give notice unless he thought fit; with provisions that the trustee might at any time give notice, appoint a receiver & exercise the statutory power of sale, but meanwhile should not be answerable for allowing the co. to receive the book debts:—Held: upon the true construction of the deed it was clearly intended that the co. should carry on its business in the ordinary way & receive the book debts for that purpose, & the deed was "a floating charge" within Companies Act, 1900 (c. 48), s. 14, & void for want of registration in a question between the trustee & a creditor of the co.

A mtge. or charge by a co. which contains the three following characteristics is a "floating charge" within Companies Act, 1900 (c. 48), s. 14 (1) (d): (1) if it is a charge on a class of assets both present & future; (2) if that class is one which in the ordinary course of the business of the co. would be changing from time to time; (3) if it is contemplated by the charge that, until some future step is taken by or on behalf of the mtgee., the co. may carry on its business in the ordinary way so far as concerns the particular class of assets charged (ROMER, L.J.).—*ILLINGWORTH v. 4691. Debenture charging present & future property—Expressed to operate as first charge.—A debenture charging all the property present & future of a co., although expressed to be intended to operate as a first charge upon the property, will be construed to be a general floating security, operating as a first charge against the general creditors of the co. over the property of the co. as it exists at the time at which the debenture comes into operation. A co. which has issued debentures in such a form, & has power to dispose of its property in the course of carrying on business, can give to an equitable mtgee. an effective first charge upon its property with priority over the charge created by the debentures.—WHEATLEY v. SILKSTONE & HAIGH MOOR COAL CO. (1885), 29 Ch. D. 715; 54 L. J. Ch. 778; 52 L. T. 798; 33 W. R. 797.

4692. Obligation binding estate, property, & effects—No specific charge.—The arts. of a co. incorporated for the purpose of acquiring land in Florence & building thereon, & selling, mortgaging, or leasing the same, gave power to the directors to borrow money by mtge. of any part of the co.'s property, or by "bonds, debentures, or mtge. debentures," which should entitle the holders to be paid out of the moneys, property, & effects of the co. pari passu. The co. issued instruments called "obligations," which were expressed to be made under the power of their arts., by which they bound "themselves, their successors, & assigns, & all their estate, property, & effects," to repay the sums mentioned therein at a future date, with power to redeem a certain portion of the obligations at intermediate times:—Held: reading the obligation with reference to the arts. of assocn., they constituted a charge on the property of the co., subject to the power of the directors to dispose of any part of such property in the ordinary course of their business.

Upon the construction of the obligations themselves, without reference to the arts., except as to whether they were ultra vires, there was sufficient to constitute a charge upon the property of the co. (JAMES, L.J.).

4695. Agreement to give a "floating charge" in certain events—Whether charge or right to charge.]—

(1) A co. being indebted in respect of an overdraft to its bankers, L., one of its directors, gave the bankers security on his own property for the overdraft—£3,000, & the co. in July, 1914, gave L. an agreement that in the event of (a) the bankers pressing the co. for the overdraft, or (b) the bankers calling on L. to redeem the property charged by him, the co. would give L. a debenture containing a floating charge on its assets to secure £3,000 & interest, & this agreement was registered under 1908 Act, s. 93. One of the events having happened within 3 months of the commencement of the winding up of the co., the co., on Feb. 1, 1915, gave L. a debenture for £3,000 & interest, stating that it was given under the agreement & containing the floating charge therein referred to. This was also registered under sect. 93. On Feb. 23, 1915, the co. passed an extraordinary resolution for voluntary winding up. L. having died, his exors. on Feb. 12, 1915, commenced an action against the co. for realisation of the assets comprised in two debentures for £3,000 & £1,000—both cash—given to L. in 1912 & 1913—the validity of which was not disputed—and the debenture of Feb. 1, 1915, & on Feb. 19, a motion for a receiver was by consent of pltfs. & the co. treated as the trial, & judgment was given omitting any declaration of charge, but directing accounts & inquiries, in answer to which the master found that there was owing to pltfs. on the three debentures the sum of £7,000 & interest. After the master's certificate had become binding the liquidator in the winding up took out a summons asking that the certificate might be varied by disallowing the £3,000 & interest under the debenture of Feb. 1, 1915:—Held: (1) there were special circumstances within Ord. 55, r. 71, entitling the liquidator to have his summons heard; (2) the form of the judgment did not preclude the ct. from considering whether the debenture of Feb. 1, 1915, gave an effective charge, having regard to 1908 Act, s. 212; & (3) that debenture was invalidated under the sect. by the winding-up resolution; because, (a) assuming in favour of L. & his estate that one of the events referred to in the agreement of July, 1914, occurred about Feb. 1, 1915, pltf.'s position was not saved by the agreement, as the debenture was so complete a performance of the executory agreement as to leave no obligation or right still subsisting under it, & (b), even if that was not so, the agreement gave no present charge, but merely a right to a floating charge, not as at the date of the agreement, but on the occurrence of one of two events, one of which occurred within 3 months of the winding up.

(2) Cos. or their liquidators should not as a rule consent on a motion for judgment in a debenture-holder's action to a declaration that the debentures constitute a charge on the co.'s assets.—*Re LOVE (GREGORY) & Co., FRANCIS v. the ordinary carrying on of the businesses was not intended to be interfered with, & the mtge. constituted a charge upon chattels which would in the ordinary course of the business be changed from time to time, & was therefore a floating rather than a specific charge on the chattels & consequently a debenture within 1908 Act, s. 107.—*NATIONAL PROVINCIAL BANK OF ENGLAND, LTD. v. 4698. Whether particular assets affected—Before charge becomes fixed.]—A debenture, constituting a floating security over the undertaking & assets of a co., does not specifically affect any particular assets until some event occurs or some act on the part of the mtgee. is done which causes the security to crystallise into a fixed security. A demand by the debenture-holder of the payment by the co. of the money secured by his debenture is not such an act; nor is a notice by him to the co.'s bankers claiming payment to him of the co.'s bank balance which has been attached by a judgment creditor of the co. under a garnishee order; for there is no equity in a debenture-holder, whose security is a floating charge, arising from his merely giving notice to seize a particular asset of the co.—*EVANS v. 4700. "Within three months"—Agreement to give debenture more than three months before winding up—Debenture given within three months.]—A co., finding that its capital was insufficient for its needs, authorised one of its directors to arrange an overdraft with its bankers, & requested him to secure the same to the satisfaction of the bank by depositing securities belonging to him personally or by his own guarantee, & in consideration for arranging such overdraft, the co. passed a resolution that they would, whenever called upon by him to do so, give him full & sufficient security over its assets by means of debentures or other charge in respect of the amount for which he should render himself liable. About seven months after the overdraft had been arranged the director wrote to the co. demanding security in respect of the amount for which he was liable to the bank on the co.'s behalf. A debenture which created a floating charge on all the co.'s property was accordingly given to him for that amount with interest. Within a month of the creation of the debenture a resolution was passed for the voluntary winding up of the co.:—Held: the debenture was invalid as a fraudulent preference, as an agreement to give security must be registered under Companies Act, 1900 (c. 48), s. 14, & a promise could not be allowed to take effect if insistence on it was postponed till a date when the period prescribed for fraudulent preference had arrived.—Re JACKSON & BASSFORD, LTD., [1906] 2 Ch. 467; 75 L. "At the time of the creation of the charge"—Question of fact.—Where a floating charge is created on the property of a co. within three months of the commencement of the winding up of the co., the question whether cash is paid "at the time of the creation of the charge" within 1908 Act, s. 212, is a question of fact to be determined by all the circumstances of the case, & as a general rule a payment on account made in consideration for the charge, although made a few days before the execution of the debenture, is made at the time of its creation.

A co. being in need of funds, the directors on Nov. 25, 1909, accepted an offer by S. to advance £1,000, upon the security of a floating charge on the property of the co. & passed a resolution that a debenture should be prepared to be executed at the next meeting of the board. On the strength of this resolution S. paid to the co., on account of the £1,000, £350 immediately & a further £350 on Dec. 2. At the next meeting on Dec. 6, the debenture was duly executed & the balance of the £1,000 was paid. The debenture was registered on Dec. 23. The co. went into liquidation in the following Jan., & the liquidator disputed the validity of the charge:—Held: (1) for the purposes of 1908 Act, s. 93, the charge was created at the time when the formal instrument was executed, & it was registered within 21 days of its creation; (2) the whole of the £1,000 was advanced "at the time" of the creation of the charge within sect.

At the time of the winding up, however, there was nothing due on current account, the advance having been discharged by payments to that account in the ordinary course of business:—Held: under 1908 Act, s. 212, the debentures so far as issued as security for the past debt on the loan account were invalid, & so far as issued as security for the fresh advance on the current account they were only valid to the extent of the money owing on that account at the date of the winding up, & this being nil, they were wholly invalid.—*Re HAYMAN, CHRISTY & LILLY, LTD., CHRISTY v. a. Ordinary course of business—Sale & delivery of goods.—A co. had, for the purpose of raising capital, issued as a first charge on all the property of the co., debentures, which were secured by a trust deed executed at the time of their issue. By the terms of the debentures & the trust deed the co. was to be at liberty, notwithstanding the charge, in the course of its business, & for the purpose of continuing & carrying on the same, to use, employ, sell, lease, exchange, or otherwise deal with, all or any part of the property until the principal money thereby secured became payable, but nothing should authorise the creation of any mtge. or charge upon the property, or any part of it, in priority to the debentures. The co., being subsequently in want of money to carry on its business, & unable to borrow in consequence of the debentures, it was agreed that a syndicate should purchase a certain amount of whisky from the co. at a named price, & the money so paid should be applied, under the direction of the syndicate, in satisfaction of the trade debts & other pressing liabilities of the co. None of the syndicate, or of the creditors whom they represented, were engaged in the whisky trade:—Held: having regard to the position in which the co. was placed the sale was one in the course of business.—*Re OLD BUSHMILLS DISTILLERY CO., Ex p. debenture debts. Subsequently an order appointing a receiver was made in a debenture-holders' action, the co. being ordered to deliver up to such receiver all documents relating to the property comprised in the debentures. The co.'s title deeds were then in the possession of their solr., who refused to deliver them up, claiming a lien for costs incurred by the co. to him as their solr. prior to the appointment of the receiver:—Held: so long as the debentures continued to be a "floating security"—that is, until the appointment of the receiver—they did not interfere with the co.'s business being carried on in the ordinary way, & the debenture-holders could not prevent the co.'s solr., employed by them in the usual course of their business, from acquiring the ordinary solr.'s lien; & inasmuch as that lien was a right given by the general law, & not a "charge," or, at any rate, not a charge "created" by the co., the solr. was not precluded by the condition of the debentures from asserting his lien in priority to the debenture-holders.—*BRUNTON v. 4713. —.]—(1) Debentures whereby a charge in the nature of what is called a floating security over all a co.'s property is given to the debenture-holders, allow the co. to deal with its assets in the ordinary course of business until the co. is wound up, or stops business, or a receiver is appointed at the instance of the debenture-holders; or, in other words, such debentures constitute a charge, but give a licence to the co. to carry on its business. So long as the debentures remain a mere floating security, that is to say, so long as the licence to the co. to carry on its business has not been terminated, the property of the co. may be dealt with in the ordinary course of business as if the debentures had not been given, & any such dealing with a particular property will be binding on the debenture-holders, provided that the dealing be completed before the debentures cease to be merely a floating security.

(2) The holder of a debenture which constitutes only a floating security as long as the co. continues to carry on its business, & no steps have been taken to wind it up or to get a receiver appointed, cannot single out a particular debt due to the co., & give notice requiring that debt to be paid to him, or not to be paid to the co., or to persons validly claiming under the co., & under such circumstances where a garnishee order has been obtained against the debtor, the garnishee may safely pay his debt to the judgment creditor without reference to the notice.

(3) The word "charge" in a debenture providing that the co. shall not be at liberty to create any mtge. or charge upon any property in priority to the debenture will be construed strictly, & accordingly garnishee proceedings—which are only a form of execution—do not lead to any "charge" in the true sense being created on the debt garnished.

(4) Pltf. was the holder for value of a co.'s first mtge. debenture, which gave him a charge in the nature of a floating security over all the present & future property of the co., real & personal. On Sept. 27, 1893, two garnishee orders nisi were obtained by two judgment creditors against defts., who admitted a debt of £200 to the co., & these orders were made absolute on Oct. 4, 1893. On Sept. 28, 1893, pltf. also, as a judgment creditor, obtained a garnishee order nisi against defts., which was made absolute on Oct. 5, 1893. On Oct. 11, 1893, pltf. gave notice to defts. of his debenture as a prior charge, & required them to pay their debt to no person other than himself. Defts., however, paid the creditor whose garnishee order was first in time. In Oct. 1894, the co. passed resolutions for a voluntary liquidation. In an action by pltf. for payment by defts. to him of the amounts of their said debts, evidence was given that the co. had procured the completion by other firms of the existing trade orders which they had, after Sept. 5, 1893, when their goods had been seized & sold under an execution, so that they had in that way continued to carry on business:—Held: in spite of the notice of Oct. 11, the payment by defts. under the garnishee order was good as against pltf.—ROBSON v. SMITH, [1895] 2 Ch. 118; 64 L. J. Ch. 457; 72 L. T. 559; 43 W. R. 632; 11 T. L. R. 351; 2 Mans. 422; 13 R. 529.

4714. Ordinary course of business—Payment of debts—Payment of insurance moneys received by company to creditors—Advances by directors to company.]—By its debentures a co. agreed to pay to the lender the principal sum thereby secured on a date therein mentioned, & charged with the payment of such principal & interest its undertaking & all its property, both present & future. By the conditions indorsed on each of the debentures it was provided that the charge executed by the debentures should be a floating security, & that, accordingly, the co. might in the course of its business deal with & dispose of the property in such manner as it thought fit. The works & part of the stock of the co. having been destroyed by fire, two directors who had made considerable advances to the co. held a meeting of directors, two directors being a quorum, & passed a resolution authorising actions against the co. for the moneys they had advanced, & instructing solrs. to appear for the co. & to consent to an immediate judgment, & the amount of the insurance money was obtained for them under a garnishee order:—Held: the transaction was a payment of a just debt, & was therefore in the course of the business of the co., & that being so, conditions endorsed on the debentures, the co. was to be permitted, until default in payment of interest, etc., in course of its business, & for the purpose of carrying on same, to deal with the property thereby charged in such manner as the co. might think fit, & in particular might sell, lease, or exchange same, pay & receive money, & might declare & pay dividends out of profits, but nothing therein should be taken to authorise the creation of any mtge. or charge on the property for the time being of the co. in priority to the charge thereby created. By the trust deed the co. mortgaged the freehold & leasehold premises of the co. to secure the repayment of the debentures to the lenders pari passu, & the co. covenanted to pay the principal & interest secured by the debentures, & that same should be a first charge on the mortgaged premises, & should take precedence over all money which might thereafter be raised by the co. by any means whatsoever. Afterwards a receiver was appointed in a debenture-holders' action, who claimed to be entitled to the money paid by the co., which still remained in the hands of the sheriff & had not been handed over by him to the execution creditor:—Held: the true effect of the transaction was that the money was paid to the sheriff as part of the debt owing to the execution creditor, who was therefore entitled to retain it as against the debenture-holders.—*ROBINSON v. The co. sold the whole of its property & assets, including the goodwill, with the exception of certain securities, which it retained as its own property, to a new co. formed for the purpose of acquiring & working the old co.'s business & similar undertakings, the sale being in consideration of debenture-stock & shares in the new co. & the old co. agreeing not to carry on any similar business otherwise than in conjunction with & for the benefit of the new co. In a debenture-holders' action against the old co. claiming that by the sale it had ceased to carry on its objects as defined by the memorandum, & that therefore the debenture charge immediately attached:—Held: pl'tfs.' claim failed, because (1) the sale was not ultra vires of the memorandum of assocn.; (2) the old co.'s undertaking had not ceased to be a going concern, so that the debentures were still nothing more than a "floating security"; & (3) the debentures, being a floating security, did not give the holders any right to interfere with what the co. had done in the ordinary course of its business as defined in the memorandum of assocn.

made in payment of the principal sum secured, or until a receiver should be appointed, & that from & after such default, or the appointment of a receiver, the liberty of the co. to carry on their business should forthwith cease & determine, & the charge created by the debenture should be immediately enforceable. The co. subsequently issued to debts., with whom they had been & were trading, a debenture payable on Oct. 1, 1900, & expressed to be subject to the debenture held by the bankers. The co. made default in payment both of the debenture issued to the bankers & of that issued to debts. The bankers took no steps to stop the co. carrying on their business until Oct. 2, 1901, when they appointed a receiver. In an action brought by the co. & the bankers to recover from debts. the balance of the price of goods sold & delivered by the co. to debts. between July 1, 1900, & Oct. 1, 1901:—Held: debts. were entitled to set off the sum which on Oct. 1, 1900, became due under their debenture against the sum due to pltf. for the goods.—*NELSON (EDWARD) & Co. v. 4725. — Assignments of “drawbacks” owing by the Crown.]—A co. issued debenture-stock secured by a trust deed whereby certain freehold & leasehold properties were specifically mortgaged to the trustees of the deed, & a floating charge was created in their favour on all the assets of the co. Subsequently the co. assigned to W. & H. certain book-debts, including rents in arrear in respect of leases, some of which were specifically included in the trust deed, & also certain drawbacks owing to the co. by the Crown in respect of beer exported by the co. on which the co. was entitled to receive payments equal to the amount of the excise brewing duty paid thereon. W. & H. gave notice of their assignment to the tenants from whom rents were due, & to the shipping agents who had been employed by the co. to export the beer; but gave no notice to the Crown. A receiver & manager of the assets & undertaking of the co. was appointed on behalf of the debenture-holders. He gave notice of his appointment to the tenants & to the Crown:—Held: the rents in arrear in respect of property not specifically charged belonged to W. & H. but the rents of properties specifically mortgaged belonged to the debenture-holders inasmuch as they had taken possession by the appointment of a receiver & giving notice; the drawbacks were only subject to the floating charge & could be dealt with by the co.; & as the co. had this power by their contract with the debenture-holders the latter could not, with notice of the assignment, obtain priority to the assignees by giving notice to the Crown.—*Re IND, COOPE & Co., LTD., FISHER v. 4726. — Sale of fixtures—Machinery.]—In Aug., 1903, a co. issued certain first mtge. debentures secured by a deed of which B. & E. were trustees. In 1912 the co., issued certain “A” debentures to a bank which were registered in the names of M. & S., managers of the bank. In the autumn of 1916 the co., with the assent of the trustees, sold to pltf. certain loose & fixed machinery for £1,880 which was applied by B. & E. to recoup certain advances they had made to the co. It was a term of the agreement of sale that pltf. should be at liberty to leave the machinery in situ as long as he liked, although it was to become his property at once. In Dec., 1916, the bank appointed T. their receiver, who when he went into possession gave orders that pltf. might remove the loose machinery but not plant which was fixed to the freehold. In Jan., 1917, the co. went into liquidation, T. being appointed liquidator. Pltf. brought an action against the bank, the receiver, the trustees, & the co. claiming a declaration that the plant & machinery were his, & an injunction to restrain debts. from dealing with it:—Held: (1) the bank was properly joined as a party, there being evidence that they had instructed the trustee & the liquidator to prevent pltf. having the fixed machinery; (2) the charge given to the bank was a floating charge, which merely gave them a right to seize the property subject to any right created in good faith; (3) the fixtures had been sold with the concurrence of the trustees & in the ordinary course of business, & the property in them had passed to pltf. before the bank's charge had crystallised; (4) the mere fact that the money was applied towards payment of trustees did not affect the question whether the sale was in the ordinary course of business; & pltf. was entitled to judgment.—*HAMER v. 4732. Charge on particular freights.]—The directors of a shipping co. passed a resolution authorising its brokers to hypothecate the freight of two ships during their present voyages, to secure a present advance of sums not exceeding £5,000. Shortly afterwards the brokers transferred the freight of one of the ships to H. & Co. to secure an advance of £3,000. The transfer was signed by the brokers as managers of the co., who also gave an undertaking to collect the freight as agents to H. & Co. An action having been brought by the debenture-holders of the co. for the enforcement of their securities, & the co. having gone into liquidation, H. & Co. applied for an order that the liquidator of the co. should pay to appcts. out of moneys representing the freight of the ship in question the sum of £3,000:—Held: the co. had power under its arts. of assocn. & the resolutions passed pursuant thereto, notwithstanding the debenture debt, to charge specifically a particular asset for the purpose of carrying on the co.'s business; & therefore, H. & Co.'s security was prior to that of the debenture-holders.—*WARD v. It became necessary for the co. to obtain an advance to pay for pulp wood & to carry on their business, & debt. bank were applied to for a loan, & granted same upon security being given, under the terms of the Bank Act, s. 74, upon the co.'s wood at different places:—Held: (1) in determining the question

4733. Hypothecation to bankers of remittances from foreign agents.]—A limited co. owned a railway & also valuable coal mines in a foreign country. In 1888 it issued 5 per cent. debentures on the security of its railway, it being provided by the trust deed securing the same that the security should not, except in the case of suspension of payment by or liquidation of the co., affect its other property. In 1892 it issued 6 per cent. debentures charged on all its property, & ranking as a first charge on its property other than its railway, in respect of which the 1892 debentures ranked as a second charge after the 1888 debentures, it being provided by the trust deed securing the 1892 debentures that the co., notwithstanding that issue, should be at liberty in the ordinary course of its business, & for the purpose of carrying on the same, to sell, lease, & deal with its property for the time being, but not to create any mtge. or charge on its railway or coal mines in priority to the debentures, & not to sell its undertakings or any substantial part thereof without the concurrence of the trustees for the debenture-holders.

The ordinary course of business was for its foreign agents when they had sufficient cash in hand on account of the co. to remit it to the co. by bills through its agents in England, who sent the bills to the co.'s bankers for discounting or for collection on account of the co., & the bankers placed the proceeds to the credit of their account with the co. In Aug., 1896, the co. being in need of money to pay interest on its 6 per cent. debentures, obtained an advance from its bankers on the security of a letter hypothecating all remittances to be received from its foreign agents; & in Sept. the co., being in need of money to pay off certain debentures, obtained another advance from its bankers on a similar letter of hypothecation. In Mar., 1897, the co. made default in payment of interest on its debentures, & a debenture-holders' action was brought against it & a receiver appointed on Mar. 27. On Mar. 18, & again on Mar. 27, the foreign agents having no notice of the appointment of the receiver sent remittances to the co., which were handed to the receiver on Apr. 23 & May 3, respectively:—Held: the bankers, by virtue of the two letters of hypothecation, were entitled to these remittances in priority to the debenture-holders.—Re ARAUCO Co., LTD. (1898), 79 L. 4735. — Title deeds of company's property left with company—Deposit of deeds with bank to secure overdraft.]—In 1885 a limited co. issued a series of debentures charged upon all its property both present & future, such charge to be a floating security, but so that the co. was not to be at liberty to create any mtge. or charge upon its freehold or leasehold hereditaments in priority to the said debentures. In 1895 the co. deposited the title-deeds of some of its property with its bankers, on a memorandum of charge under seal, as a security for an overdraft. When this charge was given, the bank had no notice of the existence

whether or not the restrictive clause in the trust deed was brought to the attention of the bank before the money was advanced, the positive evidence of an officer of the co. giving details of what occurred must be preferred to the evidence of the bank manager, who testified that he had no recollection on the subject; (2) the fact that the bank, in making the loan, relied upon

of the debentures & made no inquiries. In 1896 a debenture-holders' action to enforce the security was commenced in which an inquiry as to priorities was directed:—Held: the debenture-holders, having left the title-deeds with the co. so as to enable it to deal with its property as if it had not been incumbered, could not set up their prior charge against the equitable mtge. to the bank; the bank had not been guilty of negligence, & having a stronger equity than the debenture-holders, was entitled to priority.—*Re CASTELL & BROWN, LTD., ROPER v. 4736. Transfer of shares standing in company's name to bankers.]—The C. co. for the purpose of raising capital issued mtge. debentures amounting to £38,000 secured by a trust deed. By each debenture the C. co. thereby charged its undertaking & property whatsoever & wheresoever including its uncalled capital. By indorsed conditions the debentures were to rank pari passu on the property charged, but so that the co. might from time to time mtge. or charge the premises up to £20,000 with its bankers. With that exception the charge thereby created was to be a floating security, but so that the co. should not be at liberty to create any mtge. or charge ranking in priority to or pari passu with the charge thereby created. The C. co. was to keep a register of the names of debenture-holders & particulars of their debentures. The money secured by the debentures was to become payable if the C. co. created any charge in priority to them. The debentures were duly registered under Companies Act, 1900 (c. 48), s. 14, in the year 1903. The four directors of the C. co. having an overdrawn account with the M. bank—who were not the co.'s ordinary bankers—on Apr. 10, 1905, transferred 5,000 shares in the R. co. which were standing in the share register of that co. in the name of the C. co., to the M. bank, as security for the overdraft, executing a banker's memorandum of deposit under the C. co.'s common seal as security for the overdraft. A receiver & manager of the C. co.'s property was appointed in a debenture-holders' action on July 14, 1906; who, on presentation to the R. co. of the transfer for registration, objected to registration of the shares in the M. bank's name & gave notice to the bank not to deal with the shares. By art. 65 of the arts. of assocn. of the C. co., the directors of the C. co. were empowered to borrow money for the purposes of the co.

On an application by the M. bank to have their names inserted on the register of members of the R. co.:—Held: (1) the transaction with the M. bank was within the ordinary course of business of the C. co. & power of charge fell within the powers of the directors; (2) even if a proportion of the advance was applied in wiping off a private overdraft of the directors, that would not, unless the whole transaction was ultra vires, prevent the bank obtaining registration in order to enforce their mtge. security; (3) assuming that the bank had notice that there were debentures which required to be filed under 1890 (Winding Up) Act, s. 14, if they had inspected the register they would not have found out in that way that the debentures did include a provision that no charge should be created on the C. co.'s property in priority to them, only that there were debentures which charged the property of the co., & not having notice in that way they were entitled to an order for registration of the shares.—Re STANDARD ROTARY MACHINE CO., LTD. (1906), 95 L. 4737. — Consent of debenture-holders—Whether applicable to floating charge or charge on specific assets.]—A limited co. issued first mtge. debentures for £3,700,000 out of a total authorised issue of £6,000,000. These debentures purported to create a floating charge on all the property of the co., but this was not to interfere—until default had been made in payment of principal or interest—with the dealing with & distribution of the said property. Condition 1 of the debentures provided that the debenture was “one of an issue of like debentures for the aggregate sum of £6,000,000—part of the said authorised issue of £6,000,000—the whole of which debentures of such authorised issue are intended to rank pari passu as a first charge upon all the co.'s property.” Condition 17 provided that a meeting of debenture-holders might “sanction the creation & issue by the co. of debentures or any other security ranking as part of or pari passu with the before-mentioned £6,000,000 debentures, & to such amounts & bearing such rates of interest & generally on such terms & conditions as may be sanctioned or prescribed at any such meeting”:—Held: condition 17 only referred to floating charges, & did not prevent the co. from creating specific charges on specific assets, having priority over the debentures, without calling a meeting of the debenture-holders.—COX MOORE v. PERUVIAN CORPN., LTD., [1908] 1 Ch. 604; 77 L. J. Ch. 387; 98 L. T. 611; 15 Mans. 191.

4738. Notice of restriction.]—A limited co. issued debentures charging all its property both present & future, & containing a condition that the co. should not be at liberty to create any mtge. or charge in priority to the debentures. Subsequently the co. obtained a loan from resps. on the security of an assignment to them of its interest in moneys due from an insurance co. When the loan & assignment were effected resps. solr., who negotiated the matter for them, knew that debentures had been issued, but did not know in what form they were issued, & having been misled by the managing director of the co. into the assignment under the Bank Act, s. 74, could not prejudicially affect pltf's. when it was shown that the advance was made after notice of the restriction contained in the trust deed.—INDIAN & GENERAL INVESTMENT TRUST, LTD. v. UNION BANK (1908), 42 N. S. R. 353; 40 S. C. R. 510.—CAN.

factured & unmanufactured, pledged, & certain debts due the co., transferred, to a bank for advances made:—Held: directors of co., notwithstanding the mtge., had the right to pledge the material to the bank, & without a two-thirds vote of shareholders of co., required by Ont. Joint Stock Companies Act, s. 49; & the transfer of debts to bank was a necessary power in the directors in order to carry on business under sect. 46, & both believing that there was nothing in the debentures to affect his client's security, he did not require to see the form. Resps. gave notice of the assignment to the insurance co., & subsequently the debenture-holders gave notice to the insurance co. of the prior charge created by the debentures. There are three forms in which debentures are usually issued. In two of them the debenture does not, & in the third it does, restrict the co. from creating any charge upon its property which shall have priority over the charge created by the debenture:—Held: resps. were not affected with constructive notice of the restrictive clause in the debentures, & therefore the assignment gave them a charge upon the insurance moneys in priority to the debenture-holders.—ENGLISH & SCOTTISH MERCANTILE INVESTMENT CO. v. 4739. ———.]—(1) On Nov. 26, 1898, the managing director of a limited co., forgetting that their first mtge. debentures, though only constituting a floating security, precluded the creation of any prior charge, deposited their title-deeds with their bank to secure the present & future overdraft of their current account. The bank, though aware that debentures had been issued, some of which they held as security for another customer's account, made no inquiry in the matter:—Held: (1) the mere possession of the debentures as security for another customer's account did not affect the bank with notice of their contents in their dealing with the co.; (2) as the co.'s managing director by depositing the title-deeds impliedly represented that the co. could give a valid first charge, the bank, though aware that debentures had been issued, were not put on inquiry, & were entitled to priority.

(2) On Mar. 17, 1900, the co. issued a second mtge. debenture to the bank as a collateral security for an extended overdraft. This debenture was expressed to be subject to the first mtge. debentures:—Held: the bank did not thereby obtain notice of the terms of the first mtge. debentures so as to postpone their equitable mtge. in respect of subsequent advances.—*Re VALLETORT SANITARY STEAM LAUNDRY CO., LTD., WARD v. 4740. Purchase of property—Mortgage to vendor to secure purchase price—Mortgage of equity of redemption.—In 1901 a co. assured all its property present & future upon trust to secure debentures. The debenture trust deed provided that it should operate as a floating security, but so that the co. should not be at liberty to create any mtge. or charge on the premises ranking in priority or pari passu with the security created in favour of the debentures. The debentures provided that the charge thereby created should operate as a floating charge, but that nothing therein contained should prevent the co. from charging by way of specific mtge., either pari passu or in priority to the charge thereby created, any after-acquired real or leasehold property. In 1905 it purchased certain other real property & mortgaged it to the vendor to secure the unpaid balance of the purchase-money. In 1906 it mortgaged the equity of redemption of the same property to pltf., who in 1909, after action brought, took a transfer of the mtge. of 1905:—Held: pltf. was entitled to priority over the debentures in respect of the mtge. of 1905, as the vendor's unpaid lien for the purchase-money, which was secured by the mtge., was paramount to the interest of the purchasers & any persons claiming through them, but by virtue of the terms of the debenture trust deed he was not entitled to priority in respect of the mtge. of 1906.

If the priority had turned upon the question of notice, the particulars registered pursuant to Companies Act, 1900 (c. 48), s. 14, would have amounted to constructive notice of a charge affecting the property but not of any special restrictions upon dealings by the co. with its property in the usual manner when the subsisting charge is a floating security.—WILSON v. These, however, were subject to a floating security contained in debentures covering all the co.'s assets, which were insufficient in value to satisfy the debenture debt. The debentures would not cease to be a floating security for this purpose by reason of the passing by the co. of the first only of the two special resolutions to wind up, nor by reason of the making of an order in the debenture-holders' action appointing a receiver subject to his giving security, which order was never drawn up & never came to 4749. — Condition of debenture—Winding up otherwise than for reorganisation, reconstruction or amalgamation.]—In 1895 a co. issued a series of debentures of £100 each to secure the aggregate principal sum of £100,000. The debentures, which were all in the same form, provided that the co. would, on Jan. 1, 1920, or on such earlier day as the principal moneys thereby secured should become payable in accordance with the conditions endorsed thereon, pay to the registered holder the sum of £100, with interest thereon as therein mentioned. The conditions provided that the principal moneys thereby secured should become immediately payable if an order was made or an effective resolution was passed for winding up the co. otherwise than for the purposes of reorganisation, reconstruction, or amalgamation. The debentures were secured by a trust deed which contained a similar provision. The combined effect of the debentures & the trust deed was to give a floating charge on all the assets. In June, 1913, the co. passed a resolution for winding up for the purposes of reconstruction, & subsequently the assets of the co. were transferred to a new co. which had been incorporated for the purpose of taking them over. Two debenture-holders brought an action on behalf of themselves & all other holders of debentures in the old co. to have the trusts of the trust deed carried into execution under the order of the ct. On an application by plffs. for the appointment of a receiver:—Held: when the business of the transferor co. came to an end by the winding up, the security ceased to be a floating security of that co.; the debentures then became payable & the security became enforceable, & plffs. were entitled to the appointment of a receiver notwithstanding the provisions in the debentures & trust deed with reference to winding up for the purposes of reconstruction.—*Re CROMPTON & Co., LTD., PLAYER v. An interpleader issue having been directed to determine whether pltf. or deft. was entitled to the money:—Held: a garnishee order absolute does not transfer to the garnishor the property in the garnished debt, & consequently the fact that the receiver was not appointed until after the garnishee order had been made absolute was immaterial, & pltf. was therefore entitled to the money in priority to deft.—*CAIRNEY v. 4774. — Prior forfeiture of debentures for non-payment of calls.—Pltfs. were a limited co., & deft. an allottee of certain debentures created by them. The debentures were issued on the terms of a debenture prospectus which contained provisions that the debentures should be payable “on application £1, on allotment £1, & the balance as required in calls not to exceed £4 per debenture at intervals of not less than 4 months,” & that non-payment of any instalment would render all previous payments liable to forfeiture “in the same manner as under arts. 36 to 45 of the co.’s arts. of assocn. shares are forfeitable on which calls are in arrear.” The debentures were allotted on May 26, 1913. On June 23, 1913, pltfs. made a first call payable on July 5. & on Oct. 23, 1913, a second call payable on Nov. 8. Deft. failed to pay these calls. Subsequently, the co. forfeited the debentures standing in his name. Art. 43 of the arts. of assocn., one of the arts. mentioned above dealing with the forfeiture of shares for non-payment of calls, provided that a shareholder whose shares had been forfeited should nevertheless be liable for all calls made & not paid at the time of the forfeiture. Pltfs. under this art. claimed the amount of the calls as being specific performance of the contract between them & deft.:—Held: (1) pltfs., having forfeited the debentures, were not in a position to ask for specific performance; (2) on the authority of *South African Territories v. co. issued certain debentures, which were in the form of an agreement under the common seal of the co., to pay to the bearer on a specified day a sum of £100, with interest. These debentures themselves created no charge, but each contained a statement that it was issued upon & subject to the conditions endorsed thereon. Condition 5 was to the effect that the debenture-holders were entitled to the benefit of a certain covering deed, by which, subject to a certain mtge., the freehold buildings of the co. & all the machinery fittings, etc., of the co. in or about the premises, & any other that might be substituted therefor, were vested in trustees to secure the payment of the debentures. This deed was not registered under the Bills of Sale Acts. In 1884, the directors of the co. sent a circular to the debenture-holders stating that, in consequence of a defect in the debentures arising from the non-registration of the covering deed, they had caused new debentures to be sealed in their favour. The new form of debentures purported on the face of it to charge in favour of the holder or bearer the amount due on the debenture upon the co.'s undertaking, & all its property, both real & personal & was stated to be supplemental to the original bond of the holder to whom it was given. The co. was in course of being wound up, & the official liquidator now claimed the chattels comprised in the deed on the ground that the deed had not been registered under the Bills of Sale Acts:—Held: (1) having regard to condition 5, there was a contract on the part of the co. to give the debenture-holders a charge upon all the property of the co., & a charge was thereby constituted; (2) the debentures came within Bills of Sale Act, 1882 (c. 43), s. 17; (3) the supplemental debentures were issued to give a better security to the holders of the original debentures, & did not extend to property not comprised in the original debentures.—*ROSS v. 4780. ——— Debenture not in fact issued.]—

(1) A co. issued a prospectus offering for subscription £20,000, first mtge. debentures to be secured upon the entire property of the co. S. filled up a form of application which requested an allotment of debentures "upon the terms of the co.'s prospectus." The directors passed a resolution allotting the debentures to S., & the secretary wrote a letter communicating the allotment to him, & he paid the amount of his subscription. Subsequently a debenture trust deed was executed by which the co. granted to trustees for the debenture-holders "all & singular the freehold land & hereditaments specified in the first schedule hereto." The deed as executed contained no schedule, nor any description. No debentures were ever issued. The co. went into liquidation. S. claimed to rank as a debenture-holder & to be entitled to a charge on the co.'s property:—Held: there was a valid contract to allot to S.

debentures to be a charge on the entire property of the co., & though the debentures had not in fact been issued, still S. must be declared entitled to the charge for the amount advanced by him.

(2) A second prospectus was issued stating the debenture capital to be £20,000 in first mtge. debentures "of which a large amount has already been applied for & allotted. The remainder is now offered for subscription;" but there was no statement as to what the debentures now offered were to be secured upon. Q. applied for debentures on the faith of this prospectus & received notice of the acceptance of his offer to subscribe, & he then paid the amount of his subscription, but no debentures were ever issued to him:—Held: there was nothing to show on what security Q. had advanced his money, & he could not therefore be declared entitled to a charge on the co.'s property.—Re NEW DURHAM SALT CO., STEVENSON'S & QUIN'S CASES (1890), 7 T. 4785. ——— At option of creditor—Exercise of option.]—An option to call at any time for a specific amount of mtge. debentures of a given issue in satisfaction of a debt is a good equitable security while the issue remains unexhausted, & may be exercised after judgment in a debenture-holder's action.

A co. borrowed money from a first mtge. debenture-holder, giving him promissory notes & an option to call at any time for the equivalent in second mtge. debentures out of a series then being issued. In spite of repeated pressure by the co., the creditor refused to exercise his option, preferring to retain the notes as bearing a higher rate of interest & being more readily enforceable than the debentures. Ten years having elapsed, the creditor joined in a debenture-holders' action as pltf. in respect of his first mtge. debenture, but, finding after judgment that there would be no funds available for ordinary creditors, & that there were still mtge. debentures of the second series unissued, he exercised his option, claiming in the alternative to rank as a debenture-holder of the second series:—Held: the above facts raised no case of waiver, & the creditor was entitled to rank as a debenture-holder of the second series.

4786. Agreement to issue debentures when “in a position legally to do so.”—A special verdict found that, by agreement of July 21, 1847, between the directors of the railway co. & deft., he agreed to take all the unappropriated shares in the co., being 4935, & to pay £4 per share on Aug. 15, then next, & meanwhile, to deposit securities to the amount of £20,000; & the co. agreed that, “so soon as £15 per share shall have been paid on the 4,935 shares, & that the co. is in a position legally to do so, they shall deliver” to deft. mtge. debentures of the co. payable three years after date, & bearing 5 per cent. interest, for £24,675, being at the rate of £5 per share. At a meeting of the shareholders, on Aug. 10, 1847, convened for the purpose, the agreement was confirmed by the shareholders, & the shares were registered to deft. with his consent. The call, on which the action was brought, was made in Dec. 1847:—Held: the production of the register made a prima facie case that deft. was a shareholder, which case was not rebutted by anything in the other evidence; even if the stipulation to deliver mtge. debentures in consideration of the shares taken were illegal, this would be no defence, as the action was not on the agreement, & the agreement had been, in part, executed by the transfer of the shares, which transfer took effect in presenti; the stipulation to deliver such debentures, as soon as the co. should be in a position legally to do so, was not illegal.

The directors could not deliver mtge. debentures by their Act of Parliament at the time of the agreement; but they might get the power by another Act; surely there is a difference between an engagement to do a thing that is simply unauthorised & an engagement to do a thing that is either malum prohibitum or malum in se (ERLE, J.). —*WEST CORNWALL RY. Payment by instalments—Forfeiture clause in event of non-payment of instalment—Right to withhold payment of instalment without risk of forfeiture in winding up.—A co. issued scrip certificates for debentures, payable by instalments, containing a condition that if the further instalments were not duly paid, the certificate & the payments credited thereon would become liable for forfeiture without further notice. Before the date on which the last instalment became due, a petition for winding up was presented which was ordered to stand over with liberty for the certificate holders to withhold payment of the final instalment until further order. Subsequently, & after the date named in the certificate for the payment of the last instalment, a resolution was passed authorising the voluntary winding up of the co., & a few days later an order was obtained continuing that winding up under supervision. The certificate holders afterwards, in consequence of a further order, paid the instalment:—Held: they were entitled to have the instalment returned to them without incurring a risk of forfeiting the certificate.

Power to issue—Cancellation of defective issue—Issue of fresh series.—The fact of an agreement having been entered into by a limited co. to issue debentures & to give them to one who advances money to the co. as security for his advance, does not prevent debentures subsequently issued for the purpose being duly registered under Cos. A limited co. on Mar. 1, 1903, resolved to issue certain debentures, & in order to obtain an advance from pltf., the co. at the same time agreed to give him debentures of £1,000 as a security for the advance. These debentures were sealed but not registered, & were, on Apr. 6, cancelled & fresh ones were, on Apr. 7, sealed, & to the amount of £1,000 issued to pltf. Power to issue—To directors at discount—Not ultra vires—Objection raised by other debenture-holders.—The judgment in an action by a bank against a railway co., directed a reference as to who, other than plffs., were the holders of bonds of deft. co. of the same class, & an account of what was due to such bondholders, & it appeared before the master that the managing director of the co. had issued a great number of debentures of the same class as those held by plffs. to J., G. & B., who were themselves directors of the co., at a discount of twenty-five per cent., in satisfaction of their claims against the co. Plffs., who had obtained their debentures subsequently, thereupon contended that these parties could only claim the amount actually advanced by them, & that they could not as directors sell the debentures to themselves at a discount:—Held: inasmuch as the co. did not complain of the transaction, nor any shareholders, & inasmuch as the transaction was not ultra vires, it was not competent for the holders of the debentures of the same class, time prior to May 1, 1909, to exchange his debentures for fully-paid shares in the co. at the rate of one £1 fully-paid share for every £1 of the nominal amount of the debentures; & by the conditions of the debentures, in the event of the debenture-holder giving to the co. a written demand for shares in exercise of this right, the principal moneys were to become immediately repayable:—Held: the proposed issue of debentures was void, inasmuch as it was capable of being used as a means of issuing shares at a discount.—MOSELY v. 4798. ——— Transfer to nominee—Subsequent cancellation & consolidation.—Three years before Jan. 1, 1901, when Cos. Act, 1900 (c. 48), s. 14, came into operation, a co. conveyed & assigned all its present & future real & personal property, including uncalled capital, to trustees to secure an issue of debentures, each of which gave to the registered holder thereof a first charge on the freehold & leasehold property of the co. & a floating charge on all its other assets. A few days after the execution of the trust deed the debentures were sealed & issued, seven of them for £100 each, being issued to A. In 1902 the co. purchased from A. the seven debentures & took a transfer of them to U. as its nominee. U. at once deposited them & a blank transfer with a bank to secure an overdraft. In 1905 the seven debentures were delivered up to the co. & cancelled, & the co. issued one debenture for £700, but otherwise in the same form, to R. to secure a cash advance. This debenture was never registered under sect. 11 of the Act. In Jan. 1907, a winding-up order was made against the co., & on Aug. 28 there came into operation Cos. Act, 1907 (c. 50), s. 15, which retrospectively validates the security of reissued debentures under certain circumstances. In a debenture-holders' action commenced on the same day, the question arose whether, having regard to the non-registration of the debenture given to R., he had any security under either it or the trust deed:—Held: (1) the winding-up order was not an order pronounced before Mar. 7, 1907, "as between the parties to the proceedings in which the order was made" within Cos. Act, 1907 (c. 50), s. 15 (5); (2) there had been a keeping alive & reissue of the original debentures within sect. 15, sub-sect. 1; (3) as the charge claimed by R. was created on the execution of the trust deed before Jan. 1, 1901, & not when he advanced money to the co., non-registration of the debenture did not affect his security.—*Re NEW LONDON & SUBURBAN OMNIBUS CO., APPELYARD v. Certain of the debentures having been issued as security for loans were, on repayment of the loans, returned to the co. with blank transfers. These debentures were subsequently assigned to fresh holders for value by completing the transfers:—Held: on payment off of the loans for which they were issued as security the debentures were paid off, & the holders of these debentures could not rank pari passu with the other debenture-holders.—*Re TASKER (W.) & SONS, LTD., HOARE v. 4801. ——— Further loan from same lenders.—(1) A co. issued a series of debentures as floating securities on the terms that they should not without the authority of the debenture-holders create any charge on the mortgaged assets ranking pari passu with or in priority to the charge created by the debentures. They deposited £100,000 of these debentures with a bank as collateral security for a credit of £150,000, by the terms of which the bank were to accept the co.'s drafts. This credit was not a current account, nor was anything advanced which was strictly speaking a loan. After this arrangement had been in operation for some time the amount due to the bank on the credit was paid off by the co. Immediately before this repayment the bank advanced £500 to the co. in order to avoid the deposited debentures being freed from all charges in favour of the bank; & the debentures were not given back to the co. The other debenture-holders claimed that the deposited debentures were dead, & could not be re-charged with the £500 or any other sum:—Held: inasmuch as the whole amount for which the debentures were originally deposited as security had been paid off, the debentures themselves were spent, notwithstanding that they had not been handed back to the co., & they could not be re-charged with the £500 or any further sum.

The loan from the bank was repaid out of the proceeds of the second debenture issue & some first debentures, which had been deposited with the bank, & transferred to trustees for the bank as security for the loan, were afterwards retransferred from trustees for the bank to nominees of the co.:—Held: these first debentures were not redeemed "in pursuance of any obligation so to do" within one of the exceptions contained in the above sect. & the priority of these first debentures, as such, was not disturbed.—*FITZGERALD v. debentures alive for the purpose of reissue from time to time, as security for advances from the co.'s bankers, without disturbing their priority. The section was retrospective, & operated upon past as well as future transactions, & it preserved the priority of such debentures as of the original date of issue, & not merely as of the date of reissue. A co., before the passing of the 1907 Act, deposited from time to time some of its first debentures with its bankers as security for an overdraft. The practice was to transfer the debentures from nominees of the co. to trustees for the bank, & upon repayment of the overdraft, to retransfer the debentures to nominees of the co.:—Held: the above sect. had the effect of preserving the original priority of these debentures.

A co., in 1901, invited subscriptions for an issue of second debentures by a prospectus which contained a statement that the issue was made for the purpose of repaying a temporary loan from the co.'s bankers. It was expressly stated in the prospectus, in the conditions on the second debentures, & in the trust deed that the second debentures were to be subject to the whole of the first debenture

G. Priorities.

(a) In General.

4803. Determined by order of date.—By an agreement in writing, dated Nov. 11, 1910, M. & Co., Limited, agreed to supply & erect upon the works owned by the firm of J. & Co.—the predecessors of deft. co.—a complete installation of a patent automatic sprinkler for the protection of the premises from fire, at the price of £237, payable by annual instalments. In the event of default being made in any annual instalment, or of any breach of the agreement by the purchasers, the whole unpaid balance of principal & interest was immediately to become due. The agreement further provided that the basis of the contract was that the sprinkler installation remained the sole & exclusive property of the contractors until the whole sum of £237 had been paid, & in the event of default the contractors might enter upon the premises & remove the installation. Deft. co. was incorporated in 1911 & took over the assets & liabilities of the firm of J. & Co., including their interest under the agreement. In Dec. 1911, deft. co. issued a series of first mtge. debentures containing a charge in the usual form on the undertaking, such charge to be a floating security. On Oct. 18, 1912, a receiver & manager was appointed in an action brought by the debenture-holders to enforce their security. On Oct. 21, the last instalment under the agreement fell due & was not paid. The debenture-holders had no notice of the agreement. On an application by M. & Co., for liberty to enter upon deft. company's premises & remove therefrom the sprinkler installation:—Held: the effect of the hire-purchase agreement was to confer upon appcts. an interest in the land to which the sprinkler installation was affixed & to authorise them, in the events which had happened, to enter & remove it; the interest of the debenture-holders being also equitable the ordinary principles of priorities applied; & the interest being subsequent in date was therefore postponed to the interest of appcts.

What the co. did was this: they entered into this contract & they subsequently borrowed money on an equitable security creating only an equitable mtge. It is not disputed that equitable mtgees. without notice rank in order of date. In my opinion this contract does effectually create an equitable interest in land, & the result is that the parties entitled must rank according to the dates of their respective securities (SWINFEN EADY, L.J.).—*Re MORRISON, JONES & TAYLOR, LTD., COOKES v. 4804. Statutory rights of gas company for gas supplied—As against debentures not secured by trust deed.—At the date when a receiver was appointed in a debenture-holders' action against a co., the co. owed a sum of money to a gas co. for gas supplied, which the receiver refused to pay. The debentures were not secured by a trust deed & operated only as an equitable charge on the co.'s property & assets. The gas co. obtained, under Gasworks Clauses Act, 1871 (c. 41), s. 23, & sect. 74 of their special Act, which provided that sums payable to the co. might be recovered summarily or by action, an order & warrant from justices empowering them to levy a distress on the co.'s goods & chattels for the amount of the debt, & then applied in the debenture-holders' action for leave to proceed with the distress:—Held: the statutory rights of the gas co. overrode the equitable rights of the debenture-holders, & leave was granted them to proceed with the distress.—*Re ADOLPHE CROSBIE, LTD., JOHNSON & HUGHES v. The debentures of each set were expressed to rank pari passu inter se. One set was numbered consecutively from 501 to 600, the other from 601 to 650. The debentures were sealed on the same day in order of their numbers:—Held: the set sealed the earlier had priority.—GARTSIDE v. SILKSTONE & DODSWORTH COAL & IRON CO. (1882), 21 Ch. D. 762; 47 L. In 1901 the co. created a second series of debentures each in the same form as those of the first series, except that each debenture was headed "Second Issue of Debentures for £2,000," & that clause 6 stated that the debenture was one of "a second series of twenty debentures for £100 each," & that "all of such debentures, of this & the first series, shall rank pari passu without regard to the date thereof":—Held: the second debentures did not rank pari passu with the first debentures, but after them.—Re COPE (BENJAMIN) & SONS, LTD., MARSHALL v. The co. afterwards issued a second series of debentures, which were a charge on the

as security for present advances. After a first issue of its bonds a co. carried on business for a time, but, pressing claims of creditors arising, by the action of the bondholders & shareholders a trust deed was executed to secure a second issue of bonds, which purported to be in priority to the first issue. All proper proceedings were taken to give effect to this arrangement for the express purpose of borrowing a certain sum upon the credit of the co.:—Held: those creditors to whom the second issue bonds were issued & delivered as collateral security for the co.'s past indebtedness to them, even though they became holders without any actual knowledge of any alleged irregularity in respect to the issuance thereof, were not entitled to priority over the original bondholders as there was no authority given to use the bonds as such collateral security, but holders of the second issued bonds pledged to them for present advances, were entitled to priority over the first issued.—Re BRITISH COLUMBIA same property as the debentures of the first series, & were similar to them in all respects, except that they were stated by the conditions to be subject to the debentures which had been already issued, or such of them as were then outstanding. There was no debenture trust deed for either series. In an action on the bill deft. claimed to be entitled to set off the debt due on the debenture against the amount of the bill. Act, 1854 (c. 104), must be read as if it included sect. 3 of the Act of 1862, & effect must be given to every word of the former Act as explained by that sect. Equitable interests must not be ignored; but on the other hand, the words of sect. 69 of the Act of 1854, "notwithstanding any express, implied, or constructive notice," must not be disregarded. Therefore a statutory registered mtge. of a ship has priority over an unregistered incumbrance which is earlier in point of date, & of which the mtgee. had notice.

4821. Floating charge—Subsequent purchase of property—Simultaneous equitable mortgage.—A co. issued debentures creating a floating charge upon their undertaking & all their property present & future, one of the conditions of the printing machines to a co. The agreement was duly registered but was not renewed in Oct. 1918, as it should have been under the amendment in 1916 of Conditional Sales Ordinance. The co. in 1915 gave to plffs. as security for an advance a first mtge. debenture charging its undertaking & all its property both present & future, the charge as to the fixed assets & goodwill to be a specific charge & as to the other assets to be a floating security, but so that the co. was not to be at liberty to create any mtge. or charge on its property ranking in priority to or pari passu with the debenture. This document was never registered:—Held: the failure to renew the registration of deft.'s lien agreement lost its priority over the debenture & the latter had priority.—FOSTER v. INTERNATIONAL TYPESETTING MACHINE CO., [1920] 2 W. W. R. 697; 51 D. L. R. 229; 60 S. C. R. 416.—CAN.

debentures being that the co. should not be at liberty to create any other mtge. or charge in priority to the debentures. All the debentures were duly registered under the Companies Act, 1900 (c. 48). The co. desiring to purchase certain property, which they had not the money to pay for, borrowed £1,000 from O. upon terms that she should have a charge upon the property so purchased. The co. then bought the property for £1,100 & paid a deposit of £150. Upon completion of the purchase O. was present & gave her cheque for £1,000 which was paid into the co.'s banking account, the co. paying the balance of the purchase-money to the vendor in cash. The same solr. acted for all parties, & he took & retained the title deeds of the property on behalf of O. A week later the co. executed in favour of O. a memorandum of equitable charge upon the property. The solr. did not investigate the title nor search the register of debentures on O.'s behalf. In an action to realise the debentures:—Held: what the co. acquired upon the purchase was only the equity of redemption in the property subject to the equitable charge of O., who was accordingly entitled to priority over the debentures.—*Re CONNOLLY BROTHERS, LTD. 4824. Restriction as to subsequent charges—Specific charge on after-acquired property—Subject to first charge.—By a debenture-stock trust deed a co. gave a specific & a floating charge reserving power to deal with its assets but not to create any further charge over its property generally to rank pari passu with or in priority to or otherwise than subject or in subordination to the security thereby created. After the date of this deed the co. purchased freeholds. By a subsequent debenture-stock trust deed the co. granted to trustees & their heirs certain freeholds, including the after-acquired property, by way of mtge., upon the trusts thereafter mentioned, subject to the provisions of the first deed. The second deed also contained a general charge on all the co.'s assets subject to the first issue. The security constituted by the first deed was now crystallised:—Held: the security of the debenture-stock holders under the second deed was postponed to that of the stockholders secured by the first deed.—*Re STEPHENSON (ROBERT) & Co., LTD., POOLE v. 4825. — Subsequent specific mortgage taking priority over debentures—Compromise between mortgagee & debenture-holders.—A co. having a lease of a brickfield issued debentures creating a floating charge & prohibiting the creation of any mtge. to have priority. Any debenture-holder was empowered to appoint a receiver with power to make arrangements in the debenture-holders' interests. The co. requiring money, the debenture-holders agreed to the creation of a mtge. of the lease to have priority of the debentures. By that mtge. the co. assigned the premises comprised in the lease with erections & plant then or thereafter thereon—so far as legal without registration as a bill of sale—for the residue of the term. The business not succeeding, the mtgee., being also a debenture-holder, appointed a receiver for the debenture-holders, who eventually had to close down the works, & an arrangement was entered into between the mtgee.—who was a solr.—& the receiver for the receiver to offer the loose & fixed plant together for sale, the proceeds of the former to go to the debenture-holders & those of the latter to the mtgee. In an action by a debenture-holder claiming that the debenture-holders were entitled to all the proceeds of sale in priority to the mtgee.:—Held: the co.'s interest in the fixtures as mtgor. continued only so long as it had an interest in the term, & ceased on a sale by the mtgee.; the right, which the mtge. carried, of the mtgee. to remove the fixtures as against the co.'s lessor at the end of the lease did not render the mtge. obnoxious to the Bills of Sale Acts; the receiver was under no duty to insist that the removal should be delayed till the end of the term; the arrangement between the receiver & the mtgee. was beneficial to the debenture-holders, & the mtgee. had obtained no undue advantage; & the action must be dismissed.—*Re ROGERSTONE BRICK & STONE Co., SOUTHALE v. registered owner upon trusts for herself for life, with remainder to her three sons in equal shares, & she executed a deed of transfer of the debentures to C., who was the sole trustee of the settlement, & he had possession of the transfer & of the debentures, but he did not register his transfer in the books of the co. He was also the sole trustee of the debenture trust deed. In 1894 one of the sons assigned his one-third share, or fifteen of the debentures, to F. for value.

In 1911 the settlor, who was a director of the co. & in some way then had possession of the forty-five debentures, deposited them with the bankers of the co. as security for the co.'s overdraft & signed the usual declaration of charge. Before taking the charge the bank ascertained that the settlor was the registered owner of the debentures in the books of the co. The bank gave notice of their charge to C., as the trustee of the debenture trust deed, which he acknowledged, but made no reference to the settlement.

In 1914, after C.'s death, the bank first had notice of the settlement & C.'s deed of transfer, & they at once took a transfer of the forty-five debentures from the settlor & were registered as the owners in the books of the co. In an action by F. & the executors of C. claiming fifteen of the debentures in priority to the bank:—Held: that neither C.'s omission to register his transfer nor his silence when he received notice of the bank's charge estopped the pltf. from asserting their title; & also that F.'s assignment, being prior in date to the bank's charge, was the better in equity.—*COLEMAN v. The conditions of the debentures provided that transfers must be delivered at the registered office of the co. with a fee, & such evidence of identity or title as the co. might reasonably require, & thereupon the transfers would be registered; & that the principal & interest secured by the debentures would be paid without regard to any equities between the co. & the original or any intermediate holder. After R. had taken his transfer it was discovered that C. had been guilty of misfeasance, & he was ordered to pay a sum of money to the liquidator in respect thereof. R., who had had no notice of any cross-claim by the co., duly sent his transfer to the liquidator, who was also receiver in the action, for registration, but the liquidator declined to register it, & claimed to deduct C.'s debt to the co. from the amount due on his debentures:—Held: the right to transfer & to have the transfer registered was not affected either by the winding up or by the judgment in the action, & consequently R. was entitled to receive without deduction any dividend payable in respect of C.'s debentures.—*Re GOY & Co., LTD., FARMER v. Debentures transferable by instrument—Bonâ fide purchaser for value without notice.—Debentures under the common seal of a joint-stock co. incorporated under 1844 Act, were given to P. in July, 1854, in pursuance of an arrangement made between P. & the chairman of the directors, which was a fraud on the co. These debentures were afterwards bought by L. in the market in the ordinary course of business. The transfer to L. was registered in the books of the co., & interest was paid to July, 1855, inclusive, but the matter was not made known to the shareholders till Dec. in that year, when an investigation of the affairs of the co. took place, in consequence of which the directors resigned, & the further payment of interest was refused:—Held: L., though a purchaser bonâ fide for value without notice, yet being only the purchaser of a chose in action not assignable at law, must take it subject to the equities attaching to it; & under the above circumstances, neither the registration nor the payment of interest had the effect of a confirmation of L.'s title, & he ought to be restrained from suing at law upon the debentures.—*ATHENÆUM LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY v. or a fund distributed, a party cannot take anything out of the fund until he has made good what he owes to it, whether his indebtedness is actually ascertained or not at the date of distribution. The application of this rule is general & wider than that of the doctrine of set off. So where the assets of a co. in liquidation consisted partly of an unascertained claim against a director for moneys of the co. come to his hands:—Held: in a distribution of assets in ct. the director could not receive anything in respect of debenture-stock for which his name was on the co.'s register until the amount of his indebtedness was ascertained; & persons to whom he had transferred the stock since the liquidation commenced, but who had not been registered as owners, were in no better position, the trust deed not containing a provision that transferees should be recognised as entitled free from any equity, set off, or cross-claim of the co. against their transferor.—*Re RHODESIA GOLD-FIELDS, LTD., PARTRIDGE v. Issue of debentures to company's agents—Claim by company to set off against debenture sums due from agents.]—Debentures were issued by a limited co., & certain ships were assigned to trustees upon trust to secure "to the holders for the time being" of the debentures the amount therein expressed to have been lent to the co. Some of these debentures were issued to agents of the co. who had incurred expense on its account. An assignee for value from the agents now sought to have the debentures paid out of the proceeds of the sale of the ships. The co. alleged that there were outstanding accounts between themselves & their agents, on which a large balance would be found due to them, & they claimed to set off this balance against the amount payable on the debentures:—Held: even without reference to the peculiar form of the trust deed, the co. had no such equity against the parties to whom they issued the debentures, & therefore they had none

4844. Who may take advantage of estoppel—Original holder.]—Where a co. has power to issue legally transferable securities an irregularity in the issue cannot be set up against even the original holder if he has a right to presume omnia rite acta. If such securities be legally transferable such an irregularity & a fortiori any equity against the original holder, cannot be asserted by the co. against a bonâ fide transferee for value without notice. Nor can such an equity be set up against an equitable transferee, whether the securities were transferable at law or not, if by the original conduct of the co. in issuing the securities or by their subsequent dealing with the transferee he has a superior equity. If the original conduct of the co. in issuing debentures was such that the public were justified in treating it as a representation that they were legally transferable, there would be an equity on the part of any person who had agreed for value to take a transfer of these debentures to restrain the co. from pleading their invalidity, although that might be a defence at law to an action by the transferor.

A co. having, subject to the conditions in the 1845 Act, the power of borrowing, issued, after resolutions passed at a meeting at which an insufficient number of shareholders were present, debentures to the contractor P., who was present at the meeting & knew of the irregularities of the co. P. transferred some of the debentures to Y., a sub-contractor, for a nominal consideration, & some to C. for value. Y. had a bill against P., & P. discounted it & took as security a deposit of some of the debentures which had been registered in the name of P. These debentures were not transferred to P. & the transfer to Y. was not registered. T. took a transfer of other debentures from Y. for a nominal consideration which had not been registered in the name of P., but the transfer to Y. had been registered & T. alleged that he gave value to Y. Registration of the transfer to T. was refused. He brought an action against the co. for payment & for registration, but it was stopped by the winding up. C. had a transfer for full value & registered :—Held : (1) C. had a valid claim to be paid his debentures, & the co. were estopped from setting up the irregularity in the issue of them ; (2) P. & T. must be treated as equitable transferees only, but without reason to suspect any irregularity in the issue, & they could be allowed to recover only such a sum as each of them might be able to prove he bonâ fide advanced upon the securities which he received.—Re ROMFORD CANAL CO., POCOCK'S CLAIM,

Some of these debentures he afterwards assigned to C. & S., transfers to whom were duly registered. Defts. also issued certificates to C. & S. describing them as “registered proprietors” & in other dealings with them treated them as being in fact such proprietors. After the assignment, but previous to the day fixed for payment of the debentures & previous to some of the dealings with C. & S. above mentioned, pltf. became indebted to defts. for unpaid calls on shares held by him in their co. Defts., under their arts. of assocn., had a primary lien on the debentures of any member of the co. who might be absolutely or contingently liable to the co. in any amount or on any account whatsoever ; & the debentures assigned to C. & S. having become due, defts. sought in actions brought against them in the name of pltf., to recover the amounts due to C. & S. respectively, to set off the debt due to them from pltf. :—Held : defts. had by their original contract with pltf. so contracted & by their subsequent dealings with C. & S. so conducted themselves as to have lost in equity the right to set off pltf.'s debt against the claims of C. & S.—*HIGGS v. Two of these bonds were purchased for value from the contractor, without notice of the arrangement between him & the co. The bonds & the transfers were registered in the co.'s books. The transferee sued the co. for eighteen months' interest, & recovered the amount due. Subsequently proceedings at law were taken against the co. to recover principal & interest, & judgment was entered up by consent against the co., which was then ordered to be wound up:—Held: upon adjourned summons, whether the bonds were valid or invalid in the hands of the contractor, the official liquidator was precluded by the subsequent conduct of the co. from questioning their validity in the hands of a purchaser for value without notice.—*Re SOUTH ESSEX ESTUARY CO., Ex p. B. made no enquiry as to the validity of the bond before taking the assignment, but gave notice of the assignment to the co. The co. accepted notice of the assignment but did not register it. Before the money secured by the bond became payable, the co. was ordered to be wound up:—Held: upon the application of the representatives of B. for leave to prove in the winding up against the co., the co., & not persons dealing with it, were answerable for the neglect of its officers to register the assignment of the bond, & whatever equities might have existed between the co. & the original obligee of the bond, the co. by accept-4854. Representation to transferee that debentures validly issued—Request for time for payment of interest.—Although debentures issued by a joint-stock co. to a director in payment for work contracted to be done by him for the co. are invalid in his hands under 1844 Act, their invalidity will not affect a bonâ fide assignee for valuable consideration without notice, if the co. have encouraged him in the belief that they were valid, asking for time for payment of arrears of interest on the debenture.—Re SOUTH ESSEX GAS-LIGHT & COKE CO., HULETT'S CASE (1862), 2 John. & H. 306; 31 L. A. co. being desirous of borrowing £3,000, requested its brokers to negotiate the loan. The brokers applied to G. to advance not £3,000, but £6,000, which he agreed to do upon having a debenture-stock certificate for £8,000 deposited at his bank by way of security. The certificate was made out in the name of G., & stated that he was the registered holder of £8,000 debenture-stock in the co., & G. advanced the £6,000 & paid the same to the brokers, but only £3,000 of this sum was handed to the co.:—Held: G. was not bound to enquire what were the relations between the brokers & the co., but had a right to assume that the brokers had authority from the co. to deal with the certificate; & therefore he was, as regards the co. & other debenture-holders, in the position of a bonâ fide purchaser for value to the extent of his advance, & entitled in the liquidation of the co. to prove for the full amount of £8,000 until he obtained dividends not exceeding the amount due in respect of his loan of £6,000.—*ROBINSON v. 4864. ———.]—A co. issued certain debentures which were a charge on all its property. It was provided by a clause in the debentures that a general meeting of debenture-holders should have power by special resolution to sanction any modification or compromise of the rights of the debenture-holders against the co. or against the property. The co. was afterwards wound up voluntarily, & its assets were transferred to a new co. subject to the debentures. In Aug. 1892, the new co. passed resolutions for a voluntary winding up with a view to reconstruction. Its property consisted of certain mining rights which would be forfeited unless a large sum in fees was paid by the end of 1892, & there was no money to make these payments. A scheme was formed for the constitution of a new co., & amongst other things, it provided that the debenture-holders should accept ordinary shares in the new co. in place of their debentures. This scheme was duly sanctioned by the shareholders & also by a special resolution at a meeting of debenture-holders:—Held: what was proposed to be done was a compromise of the rights of the debenture-holders within the clause, & a majority of the debenture-holders had power to bind the minority.—*SNEATH v. The deed contained a power to a general meeting of debenture-holders to sanction any modification or compromise of the rights of the debenture-holders. Pltf. was the holder of a debenture which became due in 1895. By a general meeting a resolution was passed, clause 2 of which provided that, subject to the provisions of clause 15 of the trust deed, the outstanding debentures were to be redeemed at dates not earlier than 1898, & by clause 3, no debenture becoming due before Dec. 31, 1907, was to be payable unless & until it was drawn for:—Held: clauses 2 & 3 of the resolution must be read together; their effect was to postpone all debenture-holders till 1898, but to preserve the privilege given by priority of date, & the resolution was within the scope of the authority conferred upon the general body of debenture-holders by the trust deed.—*FINLAY v. 4869. — —.]—By one of the conditions as to the issue of the debenture-stock of a co. it was provided that a meeting of the holders might, by a resolution of three-fourths, agree to any compromise or adjustment of any claim by the holders against the co., or for the settlement of any question in dispute, or the giving of time to the co. for the payment of any principal or interest or the release of the property or any portion thereof charged to secure the stock; & that such resolution should bind all the holders. Debenture-stock to the extent of £75,000 had been issued by the co., which was redeemable on Oct. 1, 1901. The directors had endeavoured to raise funds to redeem the stock, but the negotiations were unsuccessful. The co. therefore was not in a position to redeem on Oct. 1, 1901, & the redemption could not be carried out without prejudicing the stockholders themselves. The co. convened a meeting of the stockholders under the above condition, at which two resolutions were passed by a majority present, one extending the period for redemption of the stock until July 1, 1904, & the other authorising the increase of the stock up to £100,000 by the issue of £25,000 further stock to rank pari passu with the existing stock:—Held: the condition was not limited to cases where disputes had arisen within the strict meaning of that term, but was applicable to a case where difficulties had to be met & the majority of the debenture-stockholders, acting honestly & bona fide, & with a view to the preservation & improvement of their security, had power to bind the minority under the language of the condition when passing the resolutions.—*WALKER v. The deed gave to a certain majority in value of debenture-stockholders present at a meeting wide powers, including a power to sanction any modification or compromise of the rights of stockholders as against the co. At a meeting of the debenture-stockholders held in 1904 a resolution was passed by a large majority that the debenture-stockholders consented to the conversion of their existing 4 per cent. mortgage debenture-stock, redeemable at par on Oct. 1, 1907, into or for 4½ per cent. irredeemable debenture-stock, interest on the new stock to commence as from Oct. 1, 1904:—Held: the resolution was a modification of the rights of the debenture-stockholders; it was competent for the majority in meeting to make such modification; & the true meaning of the resolution was that the debenture-stock which by the trust deed was to be paid off on Oct. 1, 1907, was to be replaced by stock which was not so liable.—*Re STOCKS (JOSEPH) & CO., LTD., WILLEY v. 4871. — Reissue of redeemed debentures.—To rank pari passu with existing debentures.]—A co. issued debentures which were to rank pari passu with each other, & which were secured by a trust deed. By the deed the registered holders of the debentures were entitled to vote at any meeting of debenture-holders, & each voter at a poll was entitled to one vote in respect of every principal sum of £10 secured by his debentures.

The deed also gave power to a meeting, by extraordinary resolution, to modify the rights of debenture-holders & the provisions of the deed; & extraordinary resolution was defined as meaning a resolution passed by a majority consisting of holders of not less than three-fourths in value of the debentures represented at the meeting. At a meeting of debenture-holders called for the purpose of modifying the trust deed so as to enable the directors to reissue paid-off debentures, a bank, to whom the co. had issued debentures for £55,000 as security for an over-draft of £25,000, voted in respect of the face value of their debentures:—Held: the bank were entitled to do so under the provisions of the trust deed; & the trust deed might be modified so as to empower the company to issue debentures in the place of those paid off in such a way as to make them rank pari passu with the outstanding debentures.—Re KENT COLLIERIES, LTD., DAY v. KENT COLLIERIES, LTD. (1907), 23 T. L. R. 559; 51 Sol. Jo. 498, C. A.

4872. — Conversion of redeemable to irredeemable debentures.—A debenture trust deed conferred upon a general meeting of the debenture-holders a power, exercisable by extraordinary resolution passed by a majority of not less than three-fourths of the number of persons voting thereat, to sanction any modification or compromise of the rights of the debenture-holders against the co. or against its property, whether arising under the debentures, or the trust deed or otherwise, & provided that an extraordinary resolution duly passed should be binding upon all the debenture-holders:—Held: the conversion of redeemable debentures into irredeemable or perpetual debentures was a modification of the rights of the debenture-holders within the meaning of the power, & the existence of some serious or special circumstances was not a condition precedent to the exercise of the power.—*NORTHERN ASSURANCE CO., LTD. v. 4874. What court may sanction — Exchange of debentures for fully-paid shares — Or cash.—A railway co. incorporated under 1862 Act, issued debentures to a large amount, the payment of which was secured by a mtge. of the railway to trustees on behalf of the debenture-holders, & the mtge. deed empowered the trustees, in case default should be made in payment of the debentures & interest, to sell the railway with the sanction of three-fourths in number & value of the debenture-holders present at a meeting, of which the quorum was to be fifty persons holding not less than a moiety of the outstanding debentures. The co. went into voluntary liquidation, which was afterwards continued under the supervision of the ct., & a bill was filed for the administration of the trusts of the mtge. deed. At a meeting held for the purpose, 29 out of 31 debenture-holders then present, & holding a moiety of the outstanding debentures, agreed to a scheme, whereby it was proposed that a new co. should be formed to take over the railway, & that in exchange for their debentures, the debenture-holders should receive certain paid-up shares in the new co., or should be paid off in cash at a fixed sum which was estimated to be the value on the debentures. Two out of the 31 dissented from the scheme:—Held: the ct. had power in the suit for administering the trusts of the mtge. deed & to sanction the scheme, as it really amounted to a sale under the power contained in the deed.—*Re TUNIS RYS. 4878. — Creation of prior charge.—A co., registered in 1881 issued debentures to the extent of £60,000 which did not charge its property, but were secured by a trust deed, made between the co. & trustees for the debenture-holders. The trust deed expressly provided that the debenture-holders might assent to any modification of the provisions thereof by passing resolutions to that effect. Such resolutions were to be passed at meetings summoned by the trustees of the deed, notice whereof was to be given by means of advertisements. A meeting of the debenture-holders was duly called, & resolutions were passed for the purpose of creating a rentcharge of £720 per annum, & the debenture-holders gave to the holders of the rentcharge priority over the debentures. Subsequently the co. determined upon a voluntary winding up. In the course of the winding-up proceedings, the liquidator prepared a scheme of arrangement, pursuant to the Joint-Stock Companies Arrangement Act, 1870 (c. 104), under which the assets of the co. were, in the first place, to be charged with the payment of the sum of £20,000, whereof £12,000 was to represent the claims of the holders of the rentcharge & £8,000 certain fresh moneys obtained, & in the second place, with the payment of the £60,000 debenture moneys. One of the debenture-holders opposed the petition on the ground that the proposed scheme was not fair to the debenture-holders; that the majority of the debenture-holders had no power to bind the minority; & that if they had such power the resolution of the debenture-holders approving the scheme was invalid, because the notice sent to the debenture-holders did not state that there was a question of priority between the secured creditors of the co.:—Held: the scheme was within the scope of the authority given by the trust deed, & was a fair scheme such as the ct. ought to sanction under the above Act.—Re DOMINION OF CANADA FREEHOLD ESTATE & TIMBER CO., LTD. (1886), 55 L. In exercising the power of sanctioning a scheme of arrangement conferred on it by the Act, the ct. will not only ascertain that all the statutory conditions have been complied with, but will also consider whether the class of creditors summoned to the meeting was fairly represented by those who attended, & whether the statutory majority who approved of the scheme were acting bonâ fide or were seeking to promote interests adverse to those of the class whom they professed to represent, & generally whether the arrangement is such as a man of business would reasonably approve.—*Re ALABAMA, NEW ORLEANS, TEXAS & PACIFIC JUNCTION RY. i. In General.

4883. Meaning of “redeemable.”—Debentures issued by a co. provided that the co. should carry to the credit of a sinking fund in each half-year the sum of £2,500 which should be applied in redeeming at a specified premium, on Jan. 1 & July 1 in each year, so many of the debentures issued as the sum from time to time standing to the credit of the sinking fund should suffice to pay off, the particular debentures to be redeemed on each occasion being determined by half-yearly drawings. The prospectus which the co. had previously issued, inviting subscriptions for the debentures, stated that they were to be “redeemable within seventeen years by half-yearly drawings on Jan. 1 & July 1 in each year by the application of a sinking fund of £5,000 per annum”:—Held: even if the prospectus could be looked at in order to ascertain the contract between the co. & the debenture-holders, the word “redeemable” meant only that the debentures were to be liable to redemption during the seventeen years, but there was no obligation upon the co. that they should all be redeemed within that period.—*Re CHICAGO & NORTH WEST GRANARIES CO., LTD., MORRISON v. The interest on the debentures had fallen into arrear for seven half-years, during which time it had been the practice of the co. to hold drawings of a certain number of debentures, & to pay off the same, together with the interest on them which was in arrear. The co. by means of an additional traffic increased its revenue to a amount more than sufficient to pay the annual interest on the debentures, but not enough to pay off the arrears of interest & also provide for the payment of drawn bonds:—Held: the co. could not pay off any debentures while any interest on like debentures was in arrear; it was obligatory on the co. after the arrears of interest had been discharged to provide a sinking fund in order to pay off the drawn debentures; the co. could not capitalise the interest in arrear & give interest-bearing bonds for the amount in such a way as to interfere with the interest or capital due on any of their debentures; & they ought to suspend their drawings & sinking fund until the payment of arrears had been effected.—*HALE v. The further advance was made & debentures in accordance with the agreement were issued by pltf. co. to deft. co. for the total amount of the advances. These debentures had since been paid off, but deft. co. insisted upon the grant of the mining licence. Pltf. co. impeached the validity of the stipulation for a licence on the ground that it was a clog on the equity of redemption under the debentures:—Held: the agreement imposed upon pltf. co. an absolute & immediate obligation to grant a licence but no absolute or immediate obligation to issue debentures; the stipulation for the licence was not part of the mtge. transaction & was not a clog on the equity of redemption.

If the interest was punctually paid the loan was not to be called in until Sept. 30, 1915, but the co. might pay off at any time on giving one calendar month's notice. The loan was secured by a floating charge on the undertaking of the co. The agreement provided that for a period of five years from the date thereof the co. should not sell sheepskins to any person other than the lenders so long as the latter were willing to buy at the best price offered by any other person & that the co. should pay to the lenders a commission on all sheepskins sold by the co. to any other person. The loan having been paid off by the co. in Jan., 1913, in accordance with the agreement, the lenders claimed to exercise their option of pre-emption notwithstanding the payment off of the loan:—Held: the stipulation for the option of pre-emption formed no part of the mtge. transaction, but was a collateral contract entered into as a condition of the co. obtaining the loan; it was not a clog on the equity of redemption or repugnant to the right to redeem & the lenders were entitled to an injunction restraining the co. from selling sheepskins to any person other than the lenders in breach of the agreement.

Semble: the equitable doctrine against clogging applies to a floating charge as much as to any other mtge. security.—KREGLINGER v. NEW PATAGONIA MEAT & COLD STORAGE CO., LTD., [1914] A. C. 25; 83 L. J. Ch. 79; 109 L. T. 802; 30 T. L. R. 114; 58 Sol. Jo. 97, H. L.

4896. — Right to share of surplus assets in winding up.]—A private co. in 1912 created an issue of £20,000 6 per cent. debenture-stock secured by a deed-poll which gave the debenture-holders a right in a winding up to 50 per cent. of the surplus assets. This debenture stock, of which £15,950 was issued, could be paid off at any time by the co. on six months' notice. In 1913 the debenture-stockholders by extraordinary resolutions sanctioned the issue in priority to the existing debenture-stock of £20,000 perpetual Prior Lien Debenture Stock, carrying 6 per cent. interest payable out of profits only & the right to one-third of the surplus assets in a winding up; & they resolved that the interest on the 6 per cent. debenture-stock should only be payable out of profits & that they should be entitled to only one-third of the surplus assets in a winding up. £10,000 Prior Lien Debenture Stock were issued accordingly. In Apr. 1920, the co. sold its principal asset, & out of the purchase-money paid off the two debenture stocks. In Oct. 1920, it was resolved by special resolution that the co. should be voluntarily wound up:—Held: as to both debenture stocks, the holders were entitled to share in the surplus assets, as there was nothing in the bargains inconsistent with or repugnant to the right of redemption.—Re CUBAN LAND CO., [1921] 2 Ch. 147; 90 L. Interest was payable on Aug. 1 & Feb. 1, & had not been paid since Aug. 1, 1907, but the debenture-holder had not since then presented himself and demanded payment at the co.'s office at the dates fixed for payment. On an application by the debenture-holder for the appointment of a receiver of the assets of the co. upon the ground that the principal money secured by the debenture was due:—Held: as the debenture-holder had not given the co. the opportunity of performing the obligation of payment at its registered office, there had been no default by the co., & the debenture-holder's application failed.—*Re ESCALERA SILVER LEAD MINING CO., LTD., TWEEDY v. of its intention to pay it off, "but so that in such case a bonus of £5 shall be paid along with such principal moneys." o. On amalgamation of companies—New bonds issued to retire old bonds—Dissentient bond holders.]—Deft. co. took over the property of three other cos., subject to certain outstanding bonds. The bonds of deft. co. were issued to retire the bonds of the other cos., & by this means all the outstanding bonds were retired except certain bonds of two of the cos. respectively. The holders of these bonds contended that the bonds retired by deft. co. had been paid & cancelled by such retirement, & that these bonds should be paid in full out of a fund in ct.:—Held: the redemption of the bonds by deft. co., by the issue & substitution therefor of bonds of its own, did not operate as a payment of the bonds so redeemed, but that the bonds so redeemed continued to be subsisting securities & entitled to share in the fund in ct. proportionately with the bonds not so redeemed.—*PRATT v. p. Proof of title of holder—Bonds destroyed—Payment of interest for twenty years.]—A corpn. issued debentures, charging the rates, duties & revenues under its control with payment of the interest half-yearly, but not mentioning any date for payment of the principal. Five of these bonds were destroyed in a fire, which occurred accidentally in the owner's residence.

for a period of three months after such interest ought to have been paid. In 1896 the co. made default in payment of the interest on the debentures. Thereupon a petition was presented by a debenture-stockholder to wind up the co., but was withdrawn by him on certain terms which included the payment to him of the interest due on his debentures. A petition was now presented by the same debenture-stockholder, who had received payment of all interest due on his debentures, to wind up the co. alleging that the co. was only able to pay the interest on the debenture-stock by borrowing the amount required; that default had been made in payment of the interest on the debentures; and that the principal of his debenture-stock had thereupon become due & was payable to him:—Held: petitioner, by receiving the interest on his debentures, had waived the default by the co. in 1896, & could not now take advantage of it, & as no interest was due to him & the debentures were not repayable until 1904, there was no debt presently due to him in respect of which he could petition, & the petition must be dismissed.—Re MELBOURNE BREWERY & DISTILLERY, [1901] 1 Ch. 453; 70 L. 4904. ——— No place of payment provided for.]—A co. having borrowing powers limited to £3,000, procured an overdraft from their bankers on the guarantee, up to £3,000 of pltf. & two others. When the overdraft was nearly £3,000, each guarantor at the request of the co. gave the co. his cheque for £1,000, & the co. afterwards paid off the overdraft with these cheques. The co. issued to each guarantor a debenture for £1,000 & interest with conditions which made the principal payable if the holder should serve a notice on the co. requiring payment of principal & interest & the co. should make default for three days in payment of any part thereof & that the principal should be paid at Lloyds Bank, 222, Strand. Pltf. & another debenture-holder gave the co. notice to pay off the principal & interest; the co. made default for three days & thereupon pltf. brought this action to enforce the debentures, asking the usual relief. The principal defence pleaded was that the limit had been exceeded. No demand for payment had been made at Lloyds Bank. This objection was not pleaded, but was raised at the hearing:—Held: (1) the conditions for payment at Lloyds Bank applied only to principal, & as the co. had made default in payment of interest for three days after pltf.'s demand, the principal had become due; (2) the money was advanced by pltf. & the others for the purpose of, & was applied in, paying off the overdraft at the bank, & therefore the limit on the directors' borrowing

The corpn. paid interest for twenty years on the debentures. No claim to the debentures had been made by any other party, notwithstanding the publication of advertisements:—Held: the owner of the debentures was entitled to require payment of the principal money thereby secured.—WAISH v. DUBLIN PORT & DOCKS BOARD (1881), 7 L. R. Ir. 533.—IR.

q. ——— Bearer debentures—Deposited with bank.]—In an action brought against the liquidator of a co., pltf. claimed to be a creditor in respect of certain debentures payable to bearer which had been issued by the co., as being the legal holder thereof. Pltf. was not in possession of the debentures, but they were produced in ct. by an official of the A. Bank, who stated that he did not recognise pltf. as the legal holder. It appeared that the A. bank held the debentures on account of its London office, which had 4905. Seizure of goods under distress.]—A debenture issued by a co. contained a condition that the principal moneys should become payable if any of the property of the co. should be seized under a distress. A bailiff called at 10 a.m. at the co.'s shop with a warrant to collect a sum of £10 due for rent. The secretary of the co. tendered a cheque for £20 which was refused. The secretary then said that he would go & pay some rates & thus obtain change. While he was gone the bailiff & his man remained in the shop. The secretary returned in a few minutes, saying that the collector would not take the cheque, & he left again to get it cashed at the bank. During his absence the bailiff went home, leaving his man in the shop. The bailiff returned at 2 p.m. & was paid the £10. He did not ask for any expenses.—Held: there had been no seizure under a distress, & the principal moneys secured by the debentures had not become due.—*CENTRAL PRINTING WORKS, LTD. v. 4906. Proviso for repayment by ballot—Failure to hold ballot.]—A co. issued a series of debentures each of which contained a covenant by the co. that it would "on or after" Jan. 1, 1898, pay to the registered holder of the debenture the principal sum thereby secured. The debenture then stated as follows: "The debentures to be paid off will be determined by ballot, & six calendar months' notice will be given by the co. of the debentures drawn for payment." The co. never paid off any of the debentures or held any ballot, but after Jan. 1, 1898, one of the debenture-holders gave the co. six calendar months' notice to pay off her debenture, & at the expiration of the notice, commenced an action to enforce her security.—Held: on the construction of the covenant & in the events that had happened the principal money secured by pltf.'s debenture was presently due & payable, & if the provision as to balloting & notice meant that the co. was never to be bound to pay off any debenture unless it elected to do so & balloted & gave notice accordingly, the provision was void for repugnancy.—*Re TEWKESBURY GAS CO., TYSOE v. 4912. ——— Conveyance of additional property in substitution of property withdrawn.—By a trust deed made between a joint-stock co. & trustees for the debenture-holders, the former stipulating that they might redeem the debenture stock after giving certain notice, covenanted that after giving such notice they would redeem at nominal value, plus 10 per cent. By further clauses of the deed certain freeholds & leaseholds were assured to the trustees to secure payment of all principal moneys, bonuses, & interest which might become payable in respect of the debenture stock, & a floating charge on all the co.'s property was created for the same purpose. There was a clause giving the co. power to withdraw any of the freeholds or leaseholds assured to the trustees & substitute other property of equal value. By a subsequent indenture a small part of the leaseholds so assured was withdrawn & other leaseholds belonging to the co. assured to the trustees to be held on the trusts of the earlier indenture. This second indenture contained no covenant for payment of the debenture principal money or interest, & no express declaration of the trusts on which the property acquired was to be held:—Held: the second indenture was a "mtge." within sect. 86, sub-sect. 1 of the above Act, & a "substituted security" within the above sched. & heading "Mtge., Bond, Debenture, Covenant" of that Act, & the Comrs. of Inland Revenue were right in holding that the stamp duty was to be calculated at the rate of 6d. per cent. on the whole principal money of the debenture stock.—GARTSIDES (BROOKSIDE BREWERY), LTD. v. The co. subsequently acquired the property & conveyed it to the trustees upon the trusts & purposes & subject to the provisions of the trust deed, Stamp duty was paid on the trust deed under the above sched. on the amount of the debenture stock. The comrs. assessed the duty on the second deed under the same sched. clause 2, at 6d. per cent., on the amount of the debenture stock. The indenture contained a covenant to surrender to the use of the trustees certain copyholds, & an assignment to them of a goodwill & other matters. By the indenture it was agreed that the trustees should stand possessed of the hereditaments & premises upon the trusts contained in an indenture dated May 20, 1897. The indenture of May 20, 1897, after reciting that the co. had determined to issue certain debenture stock, to be constituted & secured as therein provided, contained a covenant by the co. with the trustees that the co. would cause the hereditaments to be forthwith conveyed to & vested in the trustees for securing the payment by the co. of the debenture stock & the dividends thereon, with a provision for reconveyance to the co. upon proof that all the stock-holders had been paid off or satisfied & upon payment of all costs incurred by the trustees in relation to the indenture. The indenture also created a floating charge upon all the property & assets for the time being of the co. In addition to other provisions for the maintenance & enforcement of the security thereby created, the indenture contained a provision that if default should be made in keeping the mortgaged premises in a good state of repair & working condition, & so insured as in the indenture specified, the trustees might from time to time repair or renew, or insure the mortgaged premises or any part thereof, & the co. would on demand repay to the trustees every sum of money expended by them for the above purposes, with interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum from the time of the same having been expended, & until such repayment the same should be a charge upon the mortgaged premises. The indenture was stamped with 2s. 6d. per cent. upon £230,000, the amount to which the stock was limited, & £23,000, the premium at which the stock was redeemable at the co.'s option. Debenture stock to the amount of £223,200 was subsequently issued by the co. upon the security of the indentures:—Held: the indenture of May 20, 1897, was the primary security & the indenture of May 28, 1897, a mortgage by way of further assurance, within the meaning of the head of the above sched., & in addition to the duty to which the indenture of May 28, 1897, was liable as a conveyance on sale, duty at the rate of 6d. per cent. upon £223,200, the amount of the debenture stock issued, was payable upon it.—*SUFFIELD (LORD) v. 4918. What mortgages must be registered—Mortgage created before formation of company.]—An equitable charge over certain leasehold property had been given in 1879 to B. by A. On Mar. 18, 1880, A. formed a co., of which B. acted as the solr. On Mar. 17, 1880, A. agreed to sell to a trustee for the

co. the property in question, free from incumbrances. The purchase-money, if paid, would have been sufficient to have paid off all the then incumbrances in full. The agreement was adopted by the co., but it was unable to carry out the same, & in Jan. 1881, A. agreed to waive his vendor's lien until the co. should pay a certain dividend. Before it was able to do so it had been wound up. No register of mtges. had ever been kept by the co. B. claimed the property in question under his equitable charge. It was contended by the official liquidator, that B. was an officer of the co., that by 1862 Act, s. 43, the equitable charge “specifically affected” property of the co., & ought to have been registered, & that in default of registration it was void:—Held: the words “if any property is mortgaged” in sect. 43 had a future meaning, & referred to any mtges. & charges created by the co. itself; the equitable charge in question thereof did not require registration, & was a valid one which could be enforced & the contention of the official liquidator failed.—Re GENERAL HORTICULTURAL CO., WHITEHOUSE'S CLAIM (1885), 53 L. 4919. What is sufficient registration—Registration after seven years—In book wrongly described.]

—In 1874 a limited co. mortgaged their property to a partnership consisting of three persons, of whom two were directors of the co. The mtge. was made for a term of seven years. It was not registered as required by 1862 Act, s. 43. In 1876 the partner who was not a director assigned his interest in the mtge. to the other two. In 1881 it was arranged that the mtge. should be continued for another seven years. The directors having been then informed that the mtge. ought to be registered, the secretary entered the particulars required by sect. 43 on a blank page in the co.'s register of transfers, altering the headings accordingly. The book in which the entries were made was marked on the outside “Register of Transfers.” No other mtge. was ever made by the co., & the secretary deposed that no one had ever inquired for the register of mtges. The co. being in liquidation:—Held: there had been a sufficient registration of the mtge. in compliance with sect. 43, & the mtgees. were entitled to enforce their mtge.—Re UNDERBANK MILLS COTTON SPINNING & MANUFACTURING CO. (1885), 31 Ch. Effect of omission to register—Whether charge avoided—As against officer of company—Solicitor.]—A solr. not usually employed by a co. was employed by them to act in a particular matter, & having required security for costs, they gave him a charge on certain debts due to them. About five weeks after this a winding-up petition was presented, on which an order was shortly afterwards made. The charge had not been registered:—Held: though, under 1862 Act, s. 43, the want of registration did not make the charge void, yet the solr. could not avail himself of the charge, for it was his duty, as being the solr. of the co. in this transaction, to see that the directions of the Legislature as to registration were obeyed.—

This bill was subsequently renewed in the name of S. alone, but it was known to the co. that the debt remained a debt due to the firm. When the renewed bill became due the co. deposited with S. certain iron as a security, which he held on behalf of his firm.

The register of mtges. kept by the co. contained no notice of this transaction. The co. having afterwards been ordered to be wound up, the liquidator claimed to have the iron delivered to him, on the ground that as S. was a director the security was bad for want of registration:—Held: the rule in Re Native Iron Ore Co., No. 4921, ante, did not apply to a case where the mtge. was made to partners who were not all directors of the co.—Re SOUTH DURHAM IRON CO., SMITH'S CASE (1879), 11 Ch. The “creation” of the charge is not by the resolution, but takes place when the debenture is issued to the holder. The registration of each debenture within 21 days is required even when the debentures form a series, if registration under sub-sect. 4 is not effected. When registration under sub-sect. 4 is effected, the time-limit of 21 days does not apply except to this extent, that the registration protects debentures issued within 21 days prior to such registration. A leasehold public-house was subsequently purchased out of the proceeds of sale of certain of the specifically mortgaged property, & was in Aug. 1902, sub-demised by the co. to the trustees to be held by them upon the trusts of a covering deed:—Held: the sub-demise was a “mtge. or charge” created by the co. upon the property thereby sub-demised, & required registration under Cos. 4940. Sale by trustees of part of property & purchase of other property—Company not party to conveyance.]—Where property is conveyed by a co. to trustees to secure debentures or debenture-stock, & the trust deed empowers the trustees to sell any part of the property conveyed before the security is enforceable, & with the proceeds to purchase other property which is to be held upon the like trusts, & the trustees sell part of the property, & with the proceeds of sale purchase other property which is conveyed by the vendor to them upon the trusts of the trust deed, the co. not being a party to the conveyance, the conveyance is not a mtge. or charge requiring registration under Companies Act, 1900 (c. 48), s. 14.—BRISTOL UNITED BREWERIES CO., LTD. v. ABBOT, [1908] 1 Ch. 279; 77 L. J. Ch. 136; 98 L. T. 23; 24 T. L. R. 91; 52 Sol. Jo. 59; 15 Mans. 82.

4941. Subsequent mortgage of same or substituted assets—To secure debt already registered.]—(1) Debenture-stock of a co. secured by a trust deed & having the benefit of a charge on assets of the co. is equivalent to a series of debentures containing a charge within Cos. Act, 1900 (c. 48), s. 14 (4). Therefore, where particulars have been registered under that sub-sect. & a copy of the Registrar's certificate of registration indorsed on the debenture-stock certificates, no subsequent mtge. for securing the same debt, either of the same assets or of others substituted for them under a power in the trust deed, requires registration under sect. 14.

(2) It is not a convenient way of deciding whether a mtge. requires registration under Cos. Act, 1900 (c. 48), s. 14, to make a motion under sect. 15 of the Act for leave to extend the time for registration. Even if such an order is made on such a motion it does not decide that registration of the mtge. is in fact necessary. Such a point ought to be decided in an action properly constituted.—CUNARD S.S. CO., LTD. v. HOPWOOD, [1908] 2 Ch. 564; 77 L. J. Ch. 785; 99 L. T. 549; 24 T. L. R. 865; 11 Asp. M. L. made & copies of the bills of lading & of the invoices relating thereto, & stating that deft. co. hypothecated the goods or the proceeds thereof to pltfs. As between deft. co. & their customers the terms of sale were such that the property in the goods passed on shipment to the customers to whose orders the bills of lading were drawn. Pltfs. having accepted drafts in the above circumstances, & deft. co. having gone into liquidation, pltfs. claimed to be entitled to the proceeds of the goods as against the liquidator:—Held: the effect of the transaction was that deft. co. had created a charge on the co.'s book debts within 1908 Act, s. 93 (1) (e), which charge, not having been registered as required by the sect., was void as against the liquidator, & pltfs.' claim failed.—LADENBURG & CO. v. When it was time to sell the goods, the co. in accordance with the well-established mercantile practice obtained the bills of lading from the bank for realisation on the terms stated in the usual letter of trust given by the co. to the bank, to wit that the co. received the bills of lading in trust on the bank's account & undertook to hold the goods when received & the proceeds when sold as the bank's trustees & to remit the entire net proceeds as realised:—Held: as the letter of trust merely recorded the terms on which the co. was authorised to realise the goods on the bank's behalf, & did not really create any charge at all, it did not require registration under 1908 Act, s. 93 (1), either as a bill of sale within clause (c) or a charge on book debts within clause (e).—Re ALLESTER (D.), LTD., [1922] 2 Ch. 211; 91 L. After executing that deed the co. wrote to deft. requesting him to pay the debt due to them to the bankers. A few days later the co. went into voluntary liquidation. The assignment to the bankers was not registered. The liquidator claimed to recover the debt from deft. on the ground that the assignment to the bankers, being unregistered, was void as against him, but deft. insisted upon paying the debt to the bankers:—Held: the liquidator was entitled to recover, inasmuch as, by 1908 Act, s. 93, the unregistered assignment was void as against him.—SAUNDERSON & CO. v. Some of the series were issued before Cos. 4960. ———.]—The directors of a co. in 1898 resolved to raise £5,500 on debentures of £100 each charging the co.’s assets, including its uncalled capital, & ranking pari passu. Before Jan. 1, 1901, fifty of the debentures were issued. The remaining five debentures were issued to D. in July, 1901. D. never registered his debentures, having been advised by his solr., who had considered the provisions of Cos. Act, 1900 (c. 48), that registration was unnecessary. In Oct. 1901, the co. passed an extraordinary resolution for voluntary winding up, & subsequently D. applied, under sect. 15 of the Act, for an order extending the time for registration of his debentures. The assets were valued at £5,030 without providing for costs:—Held: although the omission to register was not “accidental” or “due to inadvertence” within sect. 15, it was due “to some other sufficient cause”; but it would be unjust to the other creditors to grant the extension of time without qualifying the order as in Re Joplin Brewery Co., No. 4963, post, & to make an order in that form in a case where the winding up of the co. had commenced could not benefit any one.—Re ABRAHAMS (S.) & SONS, [1902] 1 Ch. 695; 71 L. 4974. Receiver appointed by trustees—Deed providing receiver agent for company—Liability of receiver.]—A trading co. executed a trust deed to secure the payment of debentures issued by them. The deed empowered the trustees, on the happening of certain events, to enter into possession of the property therein comprised, & to carry on the co.'s business, to appoint managers, clerks, etc., & to use the name of the co. It was also provided that, at any time after the right of the trustees to enter upon the mortgaged premises should have arisen they might appoint a receiver of the property thereby charged, in like manner as if the trustees were mtgees. within the meaning of Conveyancing Act, 1881 (c. 41). Every receiver so appointed was to have all the powers conferred by that Act, & in particular, power to exercise any of the powers previously by the deed conferred upon the trustees, & he was to be deemed to be the agent of the co., & as such to be in the same position as a receiver duly appointed by a mtgee. under the Act:—Held: a receiver appointed by the trustees under this deed, & carrying on the co.'s business in their name, was a mere agent, & in so doing he did not incur any personal liability.—*OWEN & CO. v. 4975. ———.]—A limited co. mortgaged all its assets to trustees for debenture-holders to secure payment of the debentures, & by the deed it was provided that the trustees might in writing appoint a receiver who should carry on the business of the co., & that any receiver so appointed should be the agent of the co. who alone should be liable for his acts & defaults. The trustees appointed a receiver under the deed, & he took possession of the assets & carried on the business of the co. Soon after his appointment the co. was ordered to be compulsorily wound up. The receiver continued to carry on the business & in so doing ordered goods from resps. In an action against the trustees for the price of the goods:—Held: though after the winding-up order the receiver ceased to be the agent of the co. he did not thereby or at any time receive any implied authority from the trustees to act as their agent, & as the trustees never gave him any authority in fact they were not liable for the goods.—*GOSLING v. The debenture interest had been regularly paid, & no event had happened which either under the provisions of the debentures or of the trust deed entitled the debenture-holders to enforce their security:—Held: the case came within the principle of jeopardy, & the debenture-holders were entitled to have a receiver appointed.—Re TILT COVE COPPER CO., LTD., [1913] 2 Ch. 588; sub nom. Re TILT COVE COPPER CO., TRUSTEES, EXECUTORS, & SECURITIES INSURANCE CORPN. *v. (c) Who may be Appointed.

5004. Liquidator—General rule.—A receiver was appointed in a debenture-holders' action after a winding-up petition had been presented, but before a winding-up order was made. Subsequently an official liquidator was appointed. The debentures included all the property of the co. except certain real & leasehold property. At the date of the winding up substantially the whole of the capital had been called up:—Held: the official liquidator was not entitled to be substituted as receiver in the action, on the ground that the liquidator had no special duties to perform.

Under ordinary circumstances, where an application is made to the ct. by debenture-holders to appoint a receiver, & an application is also made to appoint a liquidator, the same person ought to be appointed receiver & liquidator.—Re JOSHUA STUBBS, LTD., *BARNEY v. The co. proposed the liquidator as receiver, but the judge in chambers appointed another person who had been proposed by pltf.:—Held: the liquidator, inasmuch as no personal objection was alleged against him, ought to have been appointed receiver, since the appointment of another person would cause great & unnecessary expense.—*PERRY v. 5006. ———. ———.]—Though receiver already appointed.—It is more convenient, & a saving of expense, that the official liquidator appointed in a winding up should be the sole receiver of the co.'s assets. Where, therefore, before a winding-up order is made a receiver is appointed in an action pending against the co., the ct. will, as a general rule, appoint the liquidator sole receiver in the place of the receiver appointed in the action, even although leave be given to proceed with the action.

5007. ————.]—Where a co. is being wound up, the principle of the ct. is, not to sanction the continuance both of a receiver & a liquidator unless it is absolutely necessary, the latter being, except in special cases, the proper & sufficient officer of the ct.

A co. mortgaged property to trustees to secure mtge. debentures. On Sept. 13, the trustees commenced an action against the co. to carry the deed into execution, & for a receiver. On Sept. 19, a receiver was appointed. On Sept. 11, a petition for the compulsory winding up of the co. had been presented, & on Nov. 10, a winding-up order was made, a liquidator being appointed shortly afterwards. It appeared that questions might arise as to the scope of the trust deed. The liquidator moved that the receiver might be discharged, & that he might be appointed in his stead:—Held: the application must be granted, on the principle above stated, inasmuch as the questions which might arise as to what was receivable by the receiver & what by the liquidator would cause expense & difficulty.—TOTTENHAM v. In Oct. the co. went into voluntary liquidation, & on Nov. 15, an order was made for carrying on the winding up under the supervision of the ct. The ct., on June 3, 1885, removed pltfs. from being receivers, & appointed the liquidators of the co. to be receivers in their place, on the ground that the liquidators could collect the outstanding calls more expeditiously & less expensively than pltfs. On appeal:—Held: the ct., without laying down that a receiver already appointed should be displaced by the liquidator, would not interfere with the exercise of the discretion of the judge.—BARTLETT v. The ct. made the winding-up order, but declined to appoint a receiver, on the ground that the appointment of a liquidator would be a sufficient protection to the debenture-holders. On appeal:—Held: the debenture-holders were entitled to special protection, & the official liquidator was appointed receiver, he not objecting.—WILLMOTT v. LONDON CELLULOID CO. (1885), 52 L. 5012. ———— Of part of assets—Special receiver to get in special assets.—An order to wind up a co. was made, & on the same day a receiver was appointed in an action by debenture-holders. The estimated value of the assets was sufficient to cover the debentures, leaving only a small margin. The Official Receiver applied to have the receiver discharged & to have himself appointed receiver. The ct. below held that when both a receiver's action & a winding up by the ct. were pending, the ct. would, in the absence of special circumstances, appoint the official receiver or liquidator to be receiver in order to avoid unnecessary expense & the possibility of conflict. The receiver was discharged & the official receiver appointed to be receiver, he undertaking to keep a separate account on behalf of the debenture-holders.

The debenture-holders appealed, & adduced fresh evidence which satisfied the ct. that a considerable part of the assets consisted of securities which could not be realised in the ordinary way of business, but could only be advantageously got in by a commercial liquidator:—Held: the ct. had proceeded on correct principles, but having regard to the special nature of the above securities, the receiver approved by the debenture-holders ought to be appointed to get them in, the official receiver being appointed receiver of all the other assets.—BRITISH LINEN CO. v. (f) Effect of Appointment.

5024. Order amounts to entry into possession—No order as to security.—An action was brought by debenture-holders to realise their security. On Jan. 10, 1883, A. was appointed interim receiver, with power to take possession of the property of the co. On Jan. 12, 1883, he was continued as receiver. In neither order was there any direction as to his giving security. The receiver entered into possession & remained & was in possession on Mar. 18, 1888, when a judgment creditor of the co. levied execution on the goods & chattels of the co., then in the possession of the receiver. The receiver gave notice of his claim on behalf of the debenture-holders, & an interpleader issue was directed. On Apr. 21, 1888, the ordinary judgment in a debenture-holders' action was taken, & the receiver was continued & was directed to give security:—Held: the receiver had been duly appointed with directions to take possession; he was therefore validly in possession, & the judgment creditor was not entitled to the goods.—MORRISON v. SKERNE IRONWORKS CO., LTD. (1889), 60 L. T. 588.

5026. Whether appointment amounts* to new occupation—Electric Lighting Act, 1882 (c. 56).—Under sect. 19 of the above Act, no person within the area supplied with electric current by an electric lighting co. is entitled to a supply of current by the co., unless & until he has entered into a contract with the co. for the purpose. Therefore, upon a change in the occupation of premises to which current is being supplied by an electric co., there being a debt due to the co. from the outgoing occupier in respect of current already supplied to him, the co. are entitled to discontinue the supply until the new occupier has entered into a contract with them for a supply to him.

At the instance of debenture-holders of an hotel co. the ct. appointed a receiver of the undertaking & property of the co. The order directed the co. to deliver to the receiver possession of the hotel "so far as is necessary for the purpose of such receivership," & the receiver at once took possession of the hotel. At this time electric current for lighting the hotel was being supplied by an electric lighting co., & a large sum was due to them from the hotel co. for current already supplied:—Held: the electric co. were entitled to discontinue the supply of current until the receiver had entered into a new contract with them for its supply.—*HUSEY v. judgment. The judgment was stayed upon terms which were not complied with, & the receiver remained in possession for some time. The lessor applied in the debenture-holders' action for an order that the receiver should pay the rent for the period during which he was in possession, either out of assets in his hands or personally as a trespasser:—Held: the effect of the judgment while subsisting was to prevent the lessor from asserting any rights against the persons in possession, & the receiver was not liable for the rent.—*Re WESTMINSTER MOTOR GARAGE CO., BOYERS v. 5040. Right to deduct payments made in respect of landlord's property tax.]—By a lease dated in 1907, certain premises were demised to a co., & the co. thereby covenanted to pay the rent & taxes in respect thereof, except land tax & landlord's property tax. The co. never paid any of the rent reserved, but made certain payments in respect of landlord's property tax. In 1911 a debenture-holders' action was commenced & a receiver was appointed. Subsequently the lessor threatened to distrain for the rent in arrear, & in order to avoid distress the receiver signed an undertaking by which he undertook to pay an occupation rent, & also to pay the "arrears of rent" then owing out of a particular fund. The receiver paid one year's landlord's property tax, & subsequently made a payment of occupation rent without deducting anything for property tax:—Held: the joint effect of Income Tax Act, 1842 (c. 35) sched. A., No. IV., r. 9, & Income Tax Act, 1853 (c. 34), was to treat the payment by a tenant of landlord's property tax as a pro tanto payment of rent; therefore, the receiver was entitled to deduct the payments made by the co. & himself in respect of landlord's property tax from any future payments of rent to be made by him under his undertaking.—*Re STURMEY MOTORS, LTD., RATTRAY v. 5041. ———.]—On taking possession of an insolvent co.'s premises a receiver & manager appointed in May, 1916, in a debenture-holders' action agreed with the landlord to pay rent during his occupation at the rate reserved by the leases. Being subsequently required to pay the landlord's property tax for the financial year 1915-6, anterior to his appointment, for which year no rent had been paid, the receiver paid the tax & deducted it from his first payment of rent in the current financial year 1916-7:—Held: the deduction was lawful under Income Tax Act, 1842 (c. 35), s. 60, sched. A., No. IV., r. 9, & Income Tax Act, 1853 (c. 34), s. 40, & it was not precluded by the agreement.—Re HAYMAN, CHRISTY & LILLY, LTD. (No. 2), CHRISTY v. THE CO., [1917] 1 Ch. 545; 86 L. J. 5042. Payment of rates.]—On Nov. 9, 1898, holders of debentures of a co. commenced an action to enforce their security, & a receiver was appointed. The debentures were a charge on the undertaking of the co. & its property present & future. On Dec. 1, 1898, the co. went into liquidation. In Jan., 1899, the receiver paid poor rate & district rate made in Oct., 1898, & water rate, which was payable according to meter. He claimed to be recouped these payments as preferential payments under Preferential Payments in — Act, 1888 (c. 62), & Preferential Payments

Amendment Act, 1897 (c. 19):—Held: the question being one between mtgor. & mtgee., not between successive occupiers, & the poor rate & district rate being due from the co. at the date of the commencement of the winding up, the liquidators must pay the whole amounts out of the general assets of the co.; but the water rate was not due until the water was supplied, & must be apportioned, the liquidators paying only so much as was due at the date of the commencement of the winding up.—*Re MANNESMANN TUBE CO., LTD., VON SIEMENS v. 5052. Where security not in jeopardy—Principal due—But interest not in arrear.]—The ct. has jurisdiction to appoint a receiver & manager of the undertaking & assets of a co. on the application of the holder of a debenture issued by the co., secured by a floating charge, if the principal money thereby secured has become due before the time when the application is made, although at the date of the issue of the writ no default had been made in payment of interest, the money was not payable, & the security was not in jeopardy.

The holder of a debenture secured by a floating charge on the assets of the co. issued a writ in an action claiming an account, execution of the trusts of the debenture trust deed, realisation of the security, & the appointment of a receiver & manager. At the date of the issue of the writ the principal money secured was not due & no default had been made in payment of interest. Pltf. moved for the appointment of a receiver & manager, but the motion was refused on the ground that the money was not due, no default had been made, & the security was not in jeopardy. After the money became due pltf. served another notice of motion for the appointment of a receiver & manager. This was opposed on the ground that pltf. had no cause of action when he issued his writ & that the action could not be maintained :

5070. — Of court.]—(1) Where advances for the preservation of a limited co.'s assets are made to a receiver & manager by a party to a debenture-holders' action under an order of ct. which directs that the sum advanced shall be a first charge on the assets in priority to the debenture-holders, the receiver & manager is nevertheless entitled to take his costs & expenses properly incurred out of the assets in priority to the sums advanced, if it appears that the true bargain was that the assets should be realised by the receiver & manager for the benefit of all concerned.

Qu.: whether the same rule applies where the person making the advance is a stranger to the action.

An order was made in a debenture-holders' action against a mining co. appointing a receiver & manager. Successive orders were then made on the application of pl'tfs. giving the receiver & manager liberty to borrow on the security of first charges to be created by him, certain sums of money for the purpose of preserving the co.'s property & carrying on the business. The receiver & manager borrowed the money from pl'tfs. themselves on the security of deeds executed by him & creating first charges in their favour on the property of the co. comprised in the debentures. By each of those charges the receiver & manager expressly stipulated that he should not be personally liable to repay the sums advanced out of his own moneys; but he made no express reservation of his right to be indemnified out of the assets in respect of his costs & expenses properly incurred. He then continued to carry on the co.'s business, but it proved a failure, & he eventually realised the assets, but the proceeds were insufficient to satisfy both his costs & expenses, including his remuneration allowed by the ct., & also pl'tfs.' charges:—Held: inasmuch as, in the circumstances, the receiver & manager had acted in the preservation & realisation of the assets for the benefit of every one concerned, he was entitled to indemnity out of the assets in priority to pl'tfs. & all other persons for whose benefit he had so acted.

5075. ———. Limit exceeded without leave of court—Personal liability of receiver & manager.—Orders were made in a debenture-holders' action appointing a receiver & manager, & authorising him to borrow £3,000 for the general purposes of the business, the sum to be a first charge on the assets. The co. was ordered to be wound up. The manager carried on the business & incurred debts beyond the £3,000, but made no further application for leave to raise money. He retired from his office, & pl'ts. in the action applied for a declaration that he was not entitled to any indemnity in respect of liabilities incurred beyond the £3,000, or that if he was so entitled, he had by his conduct forfeited his rights:—Held: (1) the order authorising him to borrow for the general purposes of the business had not deprived the manager of his right to be indemnified out of the assets; (2) if without any application to the ct. he had incurred further liabilities, he would only be entitled to be indemnified in respect of them so far as he could show that having regard to all the circumstances he was justified in incurring them without leave; (3) this must be separately determined in each particular case; & (4) it would not be enough for him to show that the further liabilities had been incurred bonâ fide & in the ordinary course of business.—*Re BRITISH POWER TRACTION & LIGHTING CO., LTD., HALIFAX JOINT STOCK BANKING CO., LTD. v. (1) inasmuch as the receiver had reasonable ground for believing that he would be able to discharge the liabilities out of the purchase-money of the cars, & it would not have been practicable to apply to the ct., he ought to be indemnified in respect of (a) & (c); (2) the motor bodies supplied for the show were ordered as a speculation, so there should be no indemnity in respect of (b); (3) although the £1,500 overdraft had all been spent on payments which were necessarily made to keep the business going, there was no reason why the receiver should not have applied to the ct. for leave to make these payments, & he was therefore not entitled to an indemnity in respect of (d).—*Re BRITISH POWER TRACTION & LIGHTING CO., LTD., HALIFAX JOINT STOCK BANKING CO., LTD. v. During the proceedings in the action a summons was taken out by the creditor for an order that the receiver & manager should pay him out of the assets or out of his own moneys. An action against the co. was brought by a debenture-holder, & a petition for winding up was presented by an unsecured creditor. By a consent-order in the winding-up petition it was ordered that £5,000 should be raised by pl'tf. in the action & the unsecured creditors in order to complete the contracts, which sum was to be a first charge on the assets of the co. in priority to all the debentures, that all the unsecured creditors should have second debentures given them, that two receivers & managers should be appointed, one of whom was nominated by the unsecured creditors, to carry on the business, but the co. was to incur no fresh debts or liabilities. £4,250 was accordingly raised; but the receivers & managers in completing the contracts incurred considerable further expenses, for which they claimed to be indemnified:—Held: the receivers & managers were entitled to be indemnified out of the assets of the co. in priority to the persons who advanced the £4,250, as well as to the holders of debentures.—*STRAPP v. 5081. ———— Priority of costs of realisation.]—A ferry co., which was in occupation of works in the bed of the Thames, under a licence from the conservators, which reserved an annual payment, were unable to meet their liabilities. An action was commenced against it by the debenture-holders to enforce their security, which comprised all the assets of the co., & a receiver & manager was appointed. The receiver, who continued to maintain & use the works with a view to the realisation of the assets, under an order of the ct. giving him leave to raise money to carry on the co.'s business, borrowed £1,000 from a corpn., who were debenture-holders of the co., giving them therefor a charge on the assets in priority to the existing debentures. Certain other debenture-holders also advanced £196 to the receiver for the same purpose. Under an order of the ct. the receiver sold the assets & paid the proceeds into ct. Claims being made by summons against the fund:—Held: (1) the co., having continued in beneficial occupation, the conservators, although only licensors, & having no power of distress, were entitled in priority to the sums due under their licence as costs of realisation; (2) the receiver was next entitled to his costs of realisation, but such costs only included costs of actual sale, & not the costs of preserving the property; (3) the corpn., although debenture-holders, having advanced their £1,000 under an entirely separate contract, were entitled next in priority to the existing debentures; (4) those who advanced the £196, having done so in their character of debenture-holders, could only come in with the other debenture-holders after payment of the expenses of the litigation.—LATHOM v. GREENWICH FERRY CO. (1895), 72 L. T. 790; 2 Mans. 408; 13 R. 503.

5082. Priority of costs of realisation.]—(1) Where a receiver & manager appointed by the ct. properly incurs debts in carrying on the business, the ct. will see that such debts are satisfied either by the receiver, or if the receiver becomes bkpt. or there is any other reason which makes it advisable, by payment direct to the creditors of the business out of the funds in ct. available for that purpose.

(2) In a debenture-holders' action a receiver & manager was appointed. In carrying on the business of the co. he incurred considerable debts without the leave of the ct. or the consent of the debenture-holders & subsequently became bkpt. The funds in ct. were the only assets of the co., & were insufficient to discharge pltf's. costs of realisation & the receiver's costs of carrying on the business. The trustee in bkpcy. of the receiver claimed that the funds in ct. less the costs of realisation ought to be paid out to him for distribution amongst the receivership creditors, whilst pltf's. contended that the receiver, having acted improperly, was not entitled to be indemnified out of the assets & that the funds less costs of realisation ought to be paid to the debenture-holders:—Held: the funds in ct. must be applied first in payment of the costs of realisation; & then in payment of the receiver's costs.—Re LONDON UNITED BREWERIES, LTD., SMITH v.

He properly incurred, & was entitled to be indemnified by the estate against, trade liabilities to the extent of £900 for goods supplied to him on credit, of which the estate had the benefit, & his cash account was deficient by £400, which he was unable to pay:—Held: the trade creditors could only claim against the estate to the net amount of the receiver's indemnity, i.e. £500, & they & not the sureties must bear the loss of the £400.—*Re BRITISH POWER TRACTION & LIGHTING CO., LTD., HALIFAX JOINT STOCK BANKING CO., LTD. v. The co. became in arrears with the deliveries, & it was agreed that the time should be extended to June 30, 1906. In Nov. 1905, pltf. was appointed by the ct. receiver & manager of the co. on behalf of the debenture-holders, & notice thereof was given to defts. Pltf. delivered a quantity of props at various times in pursuance of the contract, & then gave defts. notice that he could not undertake to carry out their contract with the co. In an action by pltf. to recover the price of the props supplied by him:—Held: as pltf. delivered the props under the contract between the co. & defts., & not under a new contract with him, he did so as assignee of the co., & he could only recover subject to the right of defts. to set off any claim which they might have arising out of the same matter; & defts. were, therefore, entitled to set off as against pltf.'s claim, the difference between the contract price & the market price of the props not delivered.—*FORSTER v. Where therefore a receiver & manager of the undertaking & property of a colliery co. had been appointed in a debenture-holders' action against the co., the ct. declined to authorise him to repudiate the co.'s forward contracts for the supply of coal notwithstanding that, since those contracts were made, the price of coal had risen, & if the contracts were disregarded, a much larger sum would be obtained for the coal.—*Re NEWDIGATE COLLIERY, LTD., NEWDEGATE v. On the same day an order was made on the application of pltf. in the action authorising the receiver to borrow £500, to be secured by a first charge on the assets of the co. in priority to the debenture-holders. The receiver borrowed the money from a bank, & the deed containing the charge did not in express terms exempt the receiver from personal liability to repay the loan. The receiver realised the whole of the assets comprised in the debentures, & there was in ct. a fund insufficient to satisfy all the claims upon it. The bank claimed that, subject to the costs of realisation in the strict sense, they were entitled to be first paid out of the fund their charge, on the ground that the receiver, having borrowed the money from them, was their debtor, & that they were entitled to be subrogated to him in respect of his indemnity against the fund:—Held: (1) the proper inference to be drawn from the transaction was that the receiver did not intend to pledge his credit & the bank did not rely upon it, & therefore there was no right of indemnity to which the principle of subrogation could apply; (2) the fund must be applied, first, in payment of the pltf.'s costs of the action as between solr. & client; then in payment of the receiver's remuneration; & lastly, in repayment of the loan to the bank, so far as the balance of the fund would extend.—*Re BOYNTON (A.), LTD., HOFFMAN v. 5099. Appointment secured on misleading affidavit.—In a debenture-holders' action by plffs., S. had been, by order, appointed receiver & manager of the property & assets of defts. In an affidavit, C., described as a "director of public cos.," stated that for five years past he had known S., of No. 1, R.-street, A., "accountant," the proposed receiver & manager, that the accountant had carried on business as such for upwards of five years at No. 1, R.-street, & elsewhere in the City of London, & that S. was a person of respectability & a fit & proper person to be appointed receiver & manager of defts.' property & assets. S. was, according to the evidence, secretary to a political league, & had had an office at No. 1, R.-street for two months past, & there was no evidence that he had carried on business as an accountant. On motion to discharge S. from the receivership:—Held: the appointment had been procured by means of a misleading affidavit, & the receiver must be discharged. There was no reflection upon S. personally.—Re CHURCH PRESS, LTD., VICTORIA HOUSE PRINTING CO., LTD. v. CHURCH PRESS, LTD. (1917), 116 L. T. 247.

D. Foreclosure and Sale.

(a) Foreclosure.

5100. Application — By originating summons.—A foreclosure order can be made at the instance of debenture-holders on an originating summons, & a writ is not necessary in order to enable the ct. to make such an order.—OLDREY v. UNION WORKS, LTD. (1895), 72 L. T. 627.

5102. What may be foreclosed—Uncalled capital.—The remedy by foreclosure is applicable to the uncalled capital of a limited co.

Therefore, when debentures were a floating security in the usual form charging all the property of the co., both present & future, including uncalled capital, with a condition that on default in payment of interest or on a winding up the principal should immediately become payable & the condition was fulfilled, an order was made directing the co. at the debenture-holders' request to assign the several items comprised in the debentures.

Whether period for redemption will be extended—Creditor who has obtained equitable execution applying to be added as defendant.—Where in a foreclosure action a debenture-holder mtgee. had obtained a foreclosure order nisi, & subsequently a judgment creditor in another action, who had obtained the appointment of a receiver by way of equitable execution of the property of the mtgor., applied to be added as a deft. to the foreclosure action, & that the period for redemption might be extended, the ct. made an order adding appct. as deft. but refused to extend the period for redemption.—Re PARBOLA, LTD., BLACKBURN v. (b) Sale.

5104. Application of Conveyancing Act, 1881 (c. 41), s. 19.—The above sect. conferring on a mtgee., where the mtge. is by deed, a power of sale, does not apply to the debentures of a joint-stock co.

By a provisional order under Gas & Water Works Facilities Act, 1870 (c. 70), authorising a waterworks undertaking, two individuals, & "the survivor of them & the exors. or administrators of such survivor, their or his assigns" were declared to be "undertakers" for the purposes of the order, & power was conferred on the undertakers to acquire lands by agreement, but not compulsorily, to construct waterworks, & to supply water to the inhabitants of a district, & charge rates for such supply; the amount of the capital of the undertaking was specified, & the amount of all moneys borrowed by the undertakers & "secured by mtge. of the undertaking" was not at any time to exceed a specified sum. The undertaking was assigned to a limited co. formed for that purpose, & the co. issued debentures whereby they charged their undertaking lands, works, property, & effects both present & future, with repayment of the money borrowed, the charge being expressed to be a floating security not hindering any sale, exchange, or lease of the lands, or the receipt or payment of any moneys, or any other dealings in the course of the business of the co., but attaching to all the property for the time being, whether real or personal, of the co. By a subsequent provisional order further powers were conferred on the co., & it only was recognised as undertaker for the purposes of that order. The co. afterwards made default in payment of the principal moneys secured by the debentures on the day named therein for payment. In an action by the debenture-holders claiming a sale of the undertaking & property comprised in the debentures as a going concern, & the appointment of a manager until sale:—Held: (1) the debentures did not confer upon the holders a power to sell the undertaking; (2) the ct. ought not to direct a sale of the undertaking or the appointment of a manager.—BLAKER v. HERTS. & ESSEX WATERWORKS CO. (1889), 41 Ch. D. 399; 58 L. J. Ch. 497; 60 L. T. 776; 37 W. R. 601; 5 T. L. R. 421; 1 Meg. 217.

5105. When sale ordered—Jeopardy—Principal not due & interest not in arrear.]—(1) The ct., on motion for judgment on admissions in the pleadings in a debenture-holders' action, in which pltf. sued on behalf of himself & all other debenture-holders, & the debenture-holders were entitled to a charge on the property of the co., directed a sale of the property of the co. under R. S. C. Ord. 51, r. 18, upon proof of the insolvency of the co. & the jeopardy of the property comprising the debenture-holders' security, although the principal moneys secured by the debentures were not due, no interest thereon being in arrear for six months, & no resolution having been passed, or order made, for the winding up of the co.

5107. — Sale at less than reserve price by mistake of clerk in chambers.]—In a debenture-holders' action an order was made for the sale of the assets included in the debentures, & two valuations were made for the purpose of fixing the reserves. The judge accepted the higher valuation & ordered a sale of the land by auction at reserves amounting to the higher figure. Through the mistake of a clerk in chambers the lower figure was given to the auctioneer as the amount of the reserves, & the properties were knocked down to the highest bidder for a sum intermediate between the higher figure & the lower. When the facts were brought before the master he declined to grant the usual certificate allowing the purchaser. The debenture-holders took out a summons asking that proceedings might be taken to certify the result of the sale, or alternatively that directions might be given how to proceed in the matter:—Held: notwithstanding Sale of Land by Auction Act, 1867 (c. 48), s. 7, as the reserve price was that in fact fixed by the judge & as the purchaser did not bid up to the reserve price there was nothing to compel the ct. to certify the highest bidder to be the purchaser, & he ought not to be so declared.—Re CLAYTON (JOSEPH), LTD., SMITH v. CLAYTON (JOSEPH), LTD., [1920] 1 Ch. 257; 89 L. J. Ch. 188; 122 L. T. 517; 36 T. L. R. 109; 64 Sol. Jo. 176.

5108. — Dissentient minority.]—(1) Pltfs., on behalf of holders of debenture-stock & mtge. bonds of the co. secured respectively by deeds of 1905, 1910, & by supplemental deeds, had, on June 18, 1915, obtained the appointment of a receiver & manager, who had since made reports to the ct. & to the trustees. By clause 15 (2) of the third schedule to the deed of 1905 a general meeting of the stockholders was empowered to agree that the stock should be exchanged for the shares or obligations or debenture-stock of any co. taking over the co.'s business. On Nov. 18, 1917, an order was made for sale of the co.'s undertaking, with the approval of the ct. In his report of Mar. 31, 1920, the receiver proposed a scheme for realisation & reorganisation by which the trustees should offer the co.'s assets for sale in the Argentine by public auction for £480,000 in cash, but if such offer was not forthcoming, the property was to be purchased by a new co. for £511,000, under an agreement with the receiver payable in cash & fully-paid shares of the new co. which would take over the assets & contracts & discharge the liabilities of the vendor co. The holders of debenture-stock were to receive shares equal in nominal value to 100 per cent. of their present holding; bondholders to receive in shares 66½ per cent. of their holding. In Apr. 1920, a majority of the holders of both classes of securities attended meetings at which the scheme & an agreement for carrying it out were approved, only three holders of £866 of the stock voting against the resolution. Deft. was the holder of £600 debenture-stock, who had obtained liberty to attend the proceedings. Pltfs. now applied that the scheme might be authorised to be carried out & the co. directed to concur. Deft. objected that there was no authority for the sanction of a scheme after the ct. has ordered a sale, & that alienation by trustees pending suit is void:—Held: there were no grounds shown for realising the stockholders' & bondholders' securities separately, & for not selling the whole undertaking in one lot. Their interests had been considered by the receiver whose views had been adopted by the stockholders. The trustees' powers under the trust deed of 1905 were not abrogated by the decree of the ct., but their exercise was rendered subject to the ct.'s sanction & approval. Clause 15 remained operative & in force. The proposed transaction was intra vires. The wishes of the committee, adopted by the majority of the shareholders, & fortified by the receiver's conclusion, deft. putting forward no alternative proposal, ought to be carried out & the scheme sanctioned, subject to verification of the receiver's report.

(2) When an action is brought by the holders of debenture-stock & mtge. bonds against a co. for the realisation of their security, it is the duty of all who are concerned in the conduct of the proceedings to see that realisation is brought about at the earliest possible opportunity. The ct. will not, therefore, refuse to sanction a sale merely because a minority of the creditors allege that the price to be paid is unsatisfactory if the only alternative is to continue the working of the undertaking indefinitely.—Re BUENOS AIRES PORT & CITY TRAMWAYS, UNITED STATES DEBENTURE CORPN. v. BUENOS AIRES PORT & CITY TRAMWAYS (1920), 89 L. J. Ch. 597; 123 L. T. 748; 64 Sol. Jo. 667.

5109. Restraint of sale—Mortgage to secretary authorised by directors after ceasing to hold office.]—A mtge. to the secretary of a co. was authorised by a resolution passed at a meeting of the directors, who had ceased to be directors by being concerned in previous contracts with the co.:—Held: a sale by the mtgee. ought to be restrained until the hearing of the cause.—SOUTHAMPTON BOAT CO., LTD. v. RAWLINGS (No. 3) (1864), 9 L. T. 749; 12 W. R. 331.

5110. Jurisdiction of court to review order—After order perfected—Allegation of misrepresentation.]—When an order has been perfected there is no jurisdiction to rehear the matter, & make a new order or alter the former one, although the order is wrong by reason of some misrepresentation or mistake of fact.

An order was made in a debenture-holders' action that the property comprised in the debentures should be sold out of ct., & L., one of the debenture-holders, afterwards applied that the sale & other proceedings under that order should be carried out under the direction of the ct. The application was granted subject to L. paying £250 into ct., as security for the costs, in default of which the application was ordered to be dismissed with costs. L. did not pay in the money. On the sale of the property a sum was available for distribution among the debenture-holders, & L. then applied that, notwithstanding that order, the costs directed to be paid by him should be costs in the action, & that all further proceedings under the order should be stayed on the ground that when the order was made there had been misrepresentation as to the value of the assets:—Held: there was no jurisdiction to alter the former order & to make the order asked.—*PRESTON BANKING CO. v. n. Jurisdiction of court—To order repayment by overpaid debenture holder—Mistake in allocation schedule.]—In a debenture-holder's action brought by trustees for debenture-holders against an insolvent co., the realised assets were insufficient to pay debenture-holders in full. The allocation schedule was, by mistake, framed on the basis that certain banking cos., who held debentures as security for advances made by them to the co. should receive dividends on the amounts of the debts due to them instead of on the face value of their debentures. As a result, the amount allocated to the banking cos. was less than it should have been, & certain debenture-holders, directors of the co. & parties to the action, were consequently overpaid. Upon motion by pltf., who had carriage of the suit, the directors were ordered to bring back into ct. the amounts by which they had been overpaid.—PLATT v. CASEY'S DROGHEDA BREWERY CO., [1912] 1 I. The trust-deed, which was thereafter executed, provided that money arising from calls, should, in certain events, be paid to the P. Hearing as short cause—Order for—Form—Provision for notice of trial.]—A debenture-holder's action was set down by the master, for trial without pleadings to be heard as a short cause; judgment to be applied for on minutes; the evidence to be taken by affidavit. Two days' notice of motion was served on defts., & an objection was taken at the hearing that this was not in compliance with the master's order, & that ten days' notice of trial ought to have been given under R. S. C. Ord. 36, r. 14:—Held: the order was defective in that it did not give pl'tf. leave to serve notice of trial, but, assuming that leave to serve such notice was implied in the order, it remained that the order was to set down the action for trial, & ten days' notice must be given.

Two days' notice has been given instead of ten days. That is not a good notice to bring an action on for trial, & the notice itself is not a notice that the action has been set down for trial. Therefore I cannot hear this action as a short cause. One of defts. is not here. 5190. When debenture ceases to carry interest—Bonds drawn for repayment but not paid.]—By a deed for declaring the trusts of remittances to be sent from time to time to this country from Peru for the purposes of a railway undertaking, after reciting that arrangements had been made for the issue of a public loan of £1,000,000 in mtge. bonds, redeemable by half-yearly drawings in ten years, it was provided that the sums to be remitted from time to time should be applied on the next following Dec. 1 & June 1, as the case might be, in payment of the principal sums secured by such of the said mtge. bonds as should have been drawn on the preceding Nov. 1 & May 1, as the case might be, & of the half-yearly interest on such of the said mtge. bonds as should be outstanding & bearing interest, but no interest should be payable on any drawn bond after the day fixed for its redemption; that the mtgors. might in any year redeem any larger amount than 10 per cent. of the bonds, & for that purpose might cause any larger number of bonds than before provided, to be drawn for redemption in any year. Clause 3 provided for the advertisement of drawn bonds on the assumption that the funds for payment were duly remitted, & clause 8 charged all bonds on the undertaking; & by clause 15, after giving power to the trustees to take possession of the mortgaged property if default were made in payment of principal & interest, it was provided that the trustees should, out of any money which should come into their hands, after certain necessary payments, apply the residue of the said moneys in or towards payment of the principal moneys & interest secured by the said mtge. bonds in the following order: first, in payment of all arrears of interest actually due on such of the said bonds as should be outstanding & bearing interest; secondly, in redemption of such an amount of the said mtge. bonds as ought to have been redeemed on any previous June 1 or Dec. 1, but might not have been redeemed in consequence of default in providing the necessary funds; & lastly in the payment of the future interest on the bonds & the redemption of the same in any future half-year. The bonds issued in pursuance of this deed were for payment to the bearer of each bond of the principal sum secured on June 1 or Dec. 1, as the case might be, next following the day on which the bond should be drawn, & interest thereon at 7 per cent, half-yearly on every June 1 & Dec. 1, up to & including the day on which the principal sum should become payable; & to each bond were attached coupons for the half-yearly interest extending over ten years. Default having been made in the remittances, the trustees took possession of the property, & from time to time received various sums of money on account of the profits, but not enough to pay in full the half-yearly interest & also the principal due upon the bonds, which were from time to time drawn for repayment. In an action for determining the rights of the holders of the drawn & undrawn bonds respectively, it was held that, after the day fixed for redemption, interest on the principal sums secured by the drawn bonds was only recoverable as damages, & was not, upon the construction of the deed, payable out of the moneys in the hands of the trustees on drawn bonds after the day when they ought to have been paid. But upon appeal:—Held: (1) interest at 7 per cent. was payable pari passu upon the drawn bonds until actual payment; (2) as well the drawn bonds, in payment of which default had been made, as the undrawn bonds, were outstanding & bearing interest within the meaning of the deed, & interest upon them was payable pari passu with the undrawn bonds.—*GORDILLO v. principal. The co. made default, & an action was brought on behalf of the debenture-holders to enforce their security. The judgment in the action ordered that the trusts of the deed should be carried into execution, & directed that the usual accounts & inquiries should be taken & made. The securities were gradually realised, & orders were from time to time made under which certain sums were paid to the debenture-holders on account of interest, after deducting income tax. When the order on further consideration was made there was evidence that the securities would prove insufficient, & that order directed that pl'ts.' taxed costs as between solr. & client should be paid by the trustees out of the moneys in their hands. The subsequent orders for payment to the debenture-holders directed that the payments should be made on account generally of what was due for principal & interest. The securities having been practically all realised, the trustees had in their hands a sum of money which they proposed to pay to the debenture-holders. It was admitted that if the whole of the payments to the debenture-holders were attributed to principal they would be insufficient to discharge the full amount due. The Commrs. of Inland Revenue claimed that all the payments made on account generally ought to be attributed to interest in the first place, & that income tax should be deducted from them. Upon a summons taken out by the trustees of the deed to determine this question:—Held: upon the construction of the orders which directed payments on account generally, & having regard to the circumstances of the case the ct. when making those orders had purposely left open for future determination the question how the payments were to be ultimately appropriated as between principal & interest, & it being now clearly for the benefit of the debenture-holders that those payments should be appropriated to principal, they ought to be so appropriated, without putting the debenture-holders to an election how the appropriation should be made, & consequently income tax ought not to be deducted.

But the order was made without prejudice to the question whether the payments, or any part or parts thereof, ought, in the hands of the persons to whom payments had been made, to be treated as principal or interest.—SMITH v. LAW GUARANTEE & TRUST SOCIETY, LTD., [1904] 2 Ch. 569; 73 L. J. Ch. 733; 94 L. T. 545; 20 T. L. R. 789; 12 Mans. 66, C. A.

5193. —.—.]—A debenture trust deed provided that the trustees should, in case of default by the co., apply the net proceeds of any realisation of the securities, first in payment of interest, secondly of the principal, due on the debentures. The co. made default, & a representative action was brought on behalf of the debenture-holders to enforce their security, in which the trusts of the deed were ordered to be carried into execution & the usual accounts were directed. The master certified the amounts due to the various debenture-holders for principal, but, as the security was believed to be insufficient, he forbore to compute interest. The securities were gradually realised, & orders were made in chambers from time to time whereby dividends of 5s. in the pound, 10s. in the pound, & 5s. in the pound were directed to be paid "on the principal sums by the master's certificate certified to be due to" the debenture-

holders; the last of the dividends being further described as "the balance of the principal sum" so certified. A further sum was subsequently received sufficient to pay all arrears of interest & leave a small surplus for the co. The question now raised was whether by the terms of these orders the debenture-holders had lost their rights under the trust deed:—Held: (1) there had been no final & complete appropriation by these orders as between principal & interest, & the debenture-holders were entitled to receive the whole of their arrears of interest in accordance with the provisions of the trust deed, before any surplus was payable to the co. From the first the ct. had professed to be carrying into effect the trusts of this deed & not to be varying those trusts: (2) pl'tf. suing in his representative capacity could not elect on behalf of the persons whom he represented, to take less than they were entitled to according to the trust deed, but each individual member of the class had a separate right to elect when the facts were known; (3) the ct. had no jurisdiction to vary the trusts of the deed without the consent of all parties, & did not profess to do so; (4) the earlier payments were therefore subject to final adjustment so as to give effect to the trusts of the trust deed, & must be treated as having been made first in discharge of interest, & only after all liability on account of interest had been discharged in payment of principal, & the moneys now available for division must be applied on the footing that the earlier payments had not completely paid off the principal.—*Re CALGARY & MEDICINE HAT LAND CO., LTD., PIGEON v. 5309. To order taxation of costs—Incurred before winding up.]—This co. was ordered to be wound up compulsorily in Sept. 1909. At that date the co.'s solrs. had in their hands large sums of money belonging to the co. They repaid a considerable amount to the co. or liquidator, but retained £471, against which they claimed to set off their costs incurred before the winding up. The official receiver, who was liquidator, took out a summons for delivery of a bill of costs & cash account, taxation, & payment. The registrar made an order, which the solrs. did not oppose, for delivery of a bill of costs & cash account only. The solrs. delivered them, showing a balance due from them to the co. of £13. The official receiver then brought the summons on again for an order for taxation in the winding up & payment. The solrs. resisted the application, claiming to have their costs taxed under the Solrs. Act, 1843

(c. 73):—Held: the solrs. in this case by submitting to the order to deliver a bill of costs had submitted to the jurisdiction for a proper consequential order for taxation & payment in the winding up. A judge sitting in winding-up matters has jurisdiction to make an order for taxation of costs incurred before the winding up either under the Solrs. Act, 1843 (c. 73), or in the winding up.—Re PALACE RESTAURANTS, LTD., [1914] 1 Ch. 492; 83 L. J. Ch. 427; 110 L. T. 534; 30 T. L. R. 248; 58 Sol. Jo. 268; 21 Mans. 109, C. A.

That may be done by a judge, as in conformity with the usual course of proceedings in other causes & matters, but it is not the practice, save in one or two exceptional cases, to have references ordered by the master in chambers to the master in ordinary. arts. of assocn. referred in several places to the English law, & especially to 1862 Act. There was an office of the co. in Westminster, but it was doubtful whether any general meeting was intended to be held in England:—Held: if the circumstances occurred which, by 1862 Act, s. 79, were such as, in the opinion of the ct., made it "just & equitable" that the co. should be wound up, the ct. might lawfully & properly issue the order for winding it up.

It is exactly one of those cases where it would be just & equitable that the co. should be wound up, because it is a co. not trading in this country, & because it is a co. dealing with its shares in a manner calculated to mislead the public & defeat the just rights of creditors (LORD CAIRNS).

There are no means by which such a co. can be got rid of, except by a winding up under the Act, & the ct. has jurisdiction to order it to be wound up under 1862 Act, s. 79.—*REUSS (PRINCESS) v. objects (inter alia): to acquire a certain block of claims; to search for minerals; to purchase & acquire movable & immovable property; to acquire, purchase, sell, hold or deal in the shares of any other co. or cos. In Jan. 1902, the co. sold its assets to E. Co., receiving in return £97,000 in cash & 250,000 shares. The directors then invested the cash in further shares of E. Co. The largest portion of these shares were locked up, but some 47,000 were, together with shares belonging to the directors & other persons, made the subject of a pooling arrangement which continued till June, 1903, large profits accruing thereby. In the meanwhile no meet-

C. Inability to pay Debts.

(a) In General.

See 1908 Act, s. 130.

5335. "Debts"—Meaning.—In 1862 Act, s. 80 (4), the word "debts" means debts absolutely due—that is, debts on which a debtor can go to the co. & demand payment.

It is just & equitable to wind up a co., within s. 80 (5), when it is shown that its assets are such & its existing liabilities are such as to make it reasonably certain that the existing & probable assets will be insufficient to meet its existing liabilities.

On a petition to wind up a co. the ct. will not order the manager to produce documents to prove its insolvency.—Re EUROPEAN LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY (1869), L. R. 9 Eq. 122; 39 L. J. Ch. 324; 18 W. R. 9.

5336. Neglect "for three weeks" after demand to pay debt—Presentation of petition before expiration of three weeks.—To warrant a winding-up order against a co. on the ground of neglect for three weeks after demand to pay or secure a debt, the three weeks must have expired before presentation of the petition for winding up.

c. Non-compliance with statutory demand of creditor—Service of demand—"Acknowledgment" of insolvency—Judgment unpaid.—Notice of an application for a winding-up order need not be served upon creditors, contributories or shareholders of the co. Where, then, the capital of the co. is not exhausted, & no new state of things has arisen as compared with what existed at the date of the formation of the co., the fact that a loss has been hitherto, or even is likely to be hereafter, sustained on the operations of the co., is not an adequate reason for the exercise of the jurisdiction under sect. 79 (5) & the ct. has not in time past suffered, & will not suffer, its winding-up process to be used as a means of evoking a judicial decision that the business will, or will not, continue to be an unprofitable mode of employing the capital of the co. Semble: in the event of the whole of the business which a co. was incorporated

Where a co. was established for working a gold-mine in New Zealand & it turned out that the co. had no title to the mine, & had no prospect of obtaining possession of it, except as to a small portion for a few months, a winding-up order was made, although there were general words in the memorandum of assocn. enabling the co. to purchase & work other mines, & the large majority of the shareholders wished to continue the co. Semble: the mere fact of there having been fraud in the formation of the co., or fraudulent misrepresentation in the prospectus, would not in itself be sufficient to induce the ct. to make a winding-up order, because the majority of the shareholders would have power at a general meeting to waive the fraud & confirm the transactions affected by it.

5362. — Failure of main object.—Whether company can continue under subsidiary powers in memorandum.—(1) The memorandum of assocn. of a co., duly incorporated under 1862 Act, stated in the widest & most comprehensive terms the object of the co. to be (a) the acquisition by purchase or otherwise of patents & patent rights for improvements in the manufacture of gas, & “more especially the acquisition, by purchase or otherwise, of the letters patent granted to R. for improvements in the manufacture of such gas as aforesaid”; (b) to supply such gas in the United Kingdom or elsewhere; (c) to carry on the business of oil refiners; (d) to purchase & deal with mineral oils; & (e) to construct, acquire, & carry on any gasworks. The patent proved a total failure, but the co. obtained some contracts which they were carrying on by manufacturing common coal gas.

A shareholder presented a petition, alleging that the whole substratum of the co. had failed; that the business being carried on was not that contemplated by the memorandum, & such as it was, was being carried on at a loss; that the co. had in fact suspended its operations for a whole year; & that it was just & equitable to wind up the co. The co. filed no affidavit in opposition to the petition, treating it as demurrable on the memorandum:—Held: the business carried on by the co. was within the terms of its memorandum, & the petition was therefore demurrable, & must be dismissed.

(2) Under the General Rules of 1862, there is no distinction in respect to costs between a shareholder's petition & a creditor's petition. The rule that where a winding-up petition is dismissed, the creditors who appear & oppose it are entitled to one set of costs, applies to a petition of shareholders as well as to a petition of creditors.

The co. then promoted another co. for laying a different cable between Halifax & Bermuda, & this cable was about to be laid. The promoting co. held a large number of shares in the new co., from which it would derive an income as soon as the cable was laid. Meanwhile its right to the concession for laying the Azores cable had expired, but whether it had become totally void, or only voidable, was not clear. There was some slight evidence of negotiations for a renewal of the concession. 5377. ———.]—A co. had for some time ceased to carry on business, though it was not clearly made out that it had so ceased for a year. Its business had been carried on at a constant loss; all its capital had been expended; its property had been sold at a ruinous sacrifice with the exception of some patents which were nearly worthless, & it had nothing left but these patents & a sum of money far from sufficient for payment of its debts. A shareholder, who had paid up his shares with the exception of the last call, presented a petition for winding up, alleging a case of misconduct against some of the directors, by reason of which, if established, they would be liable to pay considerable sums to the co., which would probably leave a surplus for division among the shareholders. The objection was taken that petitioner, being in default for payment of calls, could not petition. He offered to pay the amount into ct., & Malins, V.-C., allowed him to do so, & made a winding-up order. A liquidator was then appointed, after which the co. appealed. One of the directors had in the meantime been ordered to pay a considerable sum under 1862 Act, s. 165:—Held: (1) although a liquidator had been appointed, the co. was not precluded from appealing; (2) the fact that a shareholder is in arrear with calls is not an absolute bar to his petitioning for a winding-up order; (3) as it was established that the business of the co. could not possibly be resuscitated, it was just & equitable that the co. should be wound up; & as a reasonable probability was shown that sums could be recovered from the directors to such an amount as would leave a surplus for division among the shareholders, an order for winding up had been properly made on the petition of a fully paid-up shareholder.

p. — Trading loss not per se sufficient ground—Important ingredient—State of company's assets considered.]—The fact that a co. is carrying on business at a loss is not sufficient to justify its being wound up by the ct., although it is an important ingredient in the decision of the question whether circumstances exist which make it just & equitable that the winding up should take place.

A newspaper co. with £24,000 subscribed out of a nominal capital of £30,000, in the first eight months of its working incurred a loss of £6,000, but had a considerable amount of cash in hand with which to continue its business, & additional shares were being taken up. 5388. Private company—Deadlock & litigation between two sole shareholders & directors—Principle of partnership applied.]—In 1914, W. & R. agreed to amalgamate their businesses, & in order to do so formed a private limited co. in which they were the only shareholders & directors. The constitution of the co. was such that under the arts. of assocn. W. & R. had equal voting powers, one director was to form a quorum, & if any dispute or difference should arise consequent whereon inability to pass a directors' resolution should result, the matter in dispute should be referred to arbn., the award to be entered in the minute-book as a resolution duly passed by the board. The co.'s business was successfully carried on until June, 1915, when differences arose between the parties. One of such differences was referred to arbn., which resulted in an award to which R. declined to give effect. He brought an action against W., & the parties became so hostile that neither of them would speak to the other. In spite of this the co. continued to transact business & large profits were made. Under these circumstances W. presented a petition alleging that a complete deadlock had arisen, that the substratum of the co. was gone, & that it was “just & equitable” within 1908 Act, s. 129, that a winding-up order should be made:—Held: if this were a case of partnership there would clearly be grounds for a dissolution, & the same principle ought to be applied where there was in substance a partnership in the guise of a private co. Quarrels between the brothers having ensued at a meeting of the co. it was moved & carried by a majority, the majority consisting of H. & four members of the co. whose interest was merely nominal, & the minority consisting of D. & J., that H. should be one was resident in America & the two others were the present directors of the co. Owing to dissensions between them the affairs of the co. were now at a deadlock, & there were pending actions between the shareholders & the co. The arts. of assocn. provided that a shareholder desirous of withdrawing from the co. should offer his shares to the others, & in the event of neither of them purchasing the same the shareholder desirous of withdrawing should be entitled to have the co. wound up. One of the directors offered his shares pursuant to this clause to the two other shareholders respectively, but neither of them purchased them. He now presented this petition for the compulsory winding up of the co. The petition was opposed by the two other shareholders. It subsequently became doubtful whether the property purported to be sold to the co. did in fact exist, & it seemed that the co. had been defrauded. A petition was accordingly presented by a shareholder for the winding up of the co. Petitioner's case was, that the objects of the co. were impossible, inasmuch as the property alleged to have been acquired did not really exist; that, notwithstanding the generality of the objects of the co., the principal one was the acquisition of this particular property, & the working of gold therefrom; that the substratum of the co. had gone; & that petitioner was therefore entitled to an order, notwithstanding that the great majority of the shareholders desired to continue the co.:—Held: (1) because a co. had been defrauded it was not a ground for saying that it ought to be wound up, inasmuch as the co. might, if it preferred, make the best of things & go on; (2) when

Three of the six directors resided in Sydney & the other three in London. Petitioner, in reply to an advertisement for a secretary, announcing that he would be required to invest £240, applied for & obtained the appointment, & paid £240 for shares in the co. (f) Issue of Shares at a Discount.

5398. Surplus for shareholders if difference paid.—The fact that shares in a limited co. have been issued at a discount is not a ground for making a winding-up order on the petition of a fully paid-up shareholder—even where, if the amounts unpaid on the shares were called up, there would be a surplus to be divided among the members of the co.—Re PIONEERS OF MASHONALAND SYNDICATE, [1893] 1 Ch. 731; 62 L. A. In General.

5399. Nature of petition—Not proceeding to execution—Nor proceeding to enforcement of judgment.—A petition by a judgment creditor to wind up a co. is not a proceeding "to execution on, or otherwise to the enforcement of" the judgment within Courts (Emergency Powers)

PART III. SECT. 36, SUB-SECT. 2.—D. (f).

k. Shares issued at different percentages of their face value.—In winding-up proceedings it appeared, inter alia, that shares had been unlawfully issued at a discount & at different percentages of their face value:—Held: it was just & equitable that the co. should be wound up.—Re FLORIDA MINING CO., LTD. (1902), 9 B. C. R. 108.—CAN.

PART III. SECT. 36, SUB-SECT. 3.—A.

l. Winding-up order set aside for irregularity in notice—Irregularity cured—No new petition necessary.—An order was made for the winding up of the co., & under that order, a provisional liquidator was appointed. The order was set aside, as notice had not been given as required by statute. Notice was thereupon given, & a new order taken without any further petition:—Held: no new petition was necessary.—Re STEEL CO. OF CANADA, LTD. (1884), 5 Ir. & G. 141.—CAN.

m. Grounds to be alleged in petition—Discretion of judge to admit bona fides—Restraining petition.—Any ground alleged under sect. 128 (e) of Indian Cos. Act in a petition for the winding up of a co. presented under sect. 131 of that Act must be of a like nature to the specific grounds given under clauses (a), (b), (c) & (d) of sect. 128. If any other grounds are alleged they do not fulfil the requirements of the Act. Allegations as to the internal management or mismanagement of a co. are matters for the shareholders to deal with & do not call for the interference of the ct. A petition by a shareholder stands on a different footing to a petition by a creditor & should be

Act, 1914 (c. 78), s. 1 (1), & a winding-up order may therefore be made without leave from the ct. in which the judgment was obtained.—Re A COMPANY, [1915] 1 Ch. 520; 84 L. J. Ch. 382; 31 T. L. R. 241; [1915] H. B. R. 65, C. A.

5400. Malicious presentation of petition—Action lies against petitioner—Even though no special damage to company.—An action will lie for falsely & maliciously & without reasonable or probable cause presenting a petition under 1862–1867 Acts, to wind up a trading co., even although no pecuniary loss or special damage to the co. can be proved, for the presentation of the petition is from its very nature calculated to injure the credit of the co.—QUARTZ HILL GOLD MINING CO. v. EYRE (1883), 11 Q. B. D. 674; 52 L. J. Q. B. 488; 49 L. T. 249; 31 W. R. 668, C. A.; subsequent proceedings (1884), 50 L. T. 274, D. C.

5401. Petition not presented bonâ fide—Power of court to restrain.—Where a petition against a co. is presented ostensibly for a winding-up order, but really for another purpose, such as putting pressure on the co., the ct. has an inherent jurisdiction to prevent such an abuse of process, & will do so, without requiring an action to be commenced, by restraining the advertisement of the petition & staying all proceedings on it.

Semble: the power to restrain proceedings against a co., after the presentation of a winding-up petition, given to the ct. by 1862 Act, s. 85, relates to proceedings other than those taken with the view of obtaining a winding-up order.—Re A COMPANY, [1894] 2 Ch. 349; 63 L. J. Ch. 565; 71 L. T. 15; 42 W. R. 585.

5402. Solicitor employed in formation of company—Whether entitled to act for petitioner.—Notwithstanding the rule that a solr. must not use information acquired in his professional capacity in any subsequent proceedings against more closely scrutinised on presentation. There is no obligation of the ct. to admit a petition merely because it is presented. Not only must a petition allege facts which, if proved, would justify an order for winding up a co., but even if it alleges such facts the judge has a discretion to consider whether it is really bonâ fide. The ct. may, if it thinks fit, refuse to admit a petition, or, as an alternative course, give the co. concerned notice that a petition has been presented, so that it may take proceedings to restrain petitioner from proceeding with his petition.—Re PIONEER BANK, LTD. (1914), 1 L. R. 39 Bom. 16.—IND.

n. False & malicious statements in petition—Whether petitioner liable—Allegation of malice.—In an action for damages against shareholders of a co. in respect of the wrongful presentation of a petition to have the co. wound up & of false & malicious statements in the petition concerning the pursuers, whereby their credit had been impaired, defenders pleaded that the action was irrelevant, an action of damages for instituting a judicial proceeding requiring an allegation of malice & want of probable cause, & the present action containing no relevant averment of malice & want of probable cause:—Held: there was sufficient material upon record for which these elements might be inferred; it was hard to believe that shareholders who thought that the co. was insolvent should demand a price above par as the value of their holding in it, yet defenders admittedly, did this former client, a solr., who has acted in the formation of a co. & been discharged, may act for a petitioner to wind up the same co. when all the facts upon which the petition is based might have been ascertained by any person in the position of petitioner.—Re HOLMES, Re ELECTRIC POWER CO., LTD. (1877), 25 W. 5403. Part payment by company after petition presented—Subsequent winding-up order on petition—Duty of creditor to refund amount paid.—A creditor presented a petition for winding up a co. The co. paid a part of the debt, & promised to pay the remainder on a certain day. This was not done, & the creditor proceeded with his petition, & a winding-up order was made upon that petition & another petition:—Held: the creditor must pay back the money paid to him.—Re LIVERPOOL CIVIL SERVICE ASSOCN., Ex p. GREENWOOD (1874), 9 Ch. App. 511; 43 L. J. Ch. 609; 30 L. T. 451; 22 W. R. 636, L. JJ.

5404. Petition by company—By authorised officer—Whether necessary for resolution delegating authority to be under seal.—Semble: In the case of a co. presenting a petition by an officer authorised in that behalf it is unnecessary that the resolution of the board to delegate its authority should be under seal, provided that the seal of the co. is affixed to the authority.—Re MIDGLEY (1913), 108 L. B. Who may petition.

(a) In General.

5405. General rule.—(1) None but a creditor, or a contributory to the debts of a co., can present a petition for an order to wind it up.

Where, therefore, the original inventor & owner borrow—Unsustainable.—A resolution authorising the transfer from one bank to another of an existing overdraft, incurred by a mining co. & giving authority to the directors of the co. to borrow money, was passed at an alleged extraordinary meeting, convened by a person having no authority to call one, by a notice which contained no intimation of any intention to borrow. No mention was made in the co.'s books of any resolution giving authority to the directors of the co. to borrow. An order having been made to wind up the co., the foundation of which order was the debt so transferred & incurred:—Held: there was no valid petitioning creditor's debt, & no foundation for the order.—R. v. BOWMAN, Ex p. WILLAN (1872), 3 V. R. (Law) 258.—AUS.

r. Petition by company—By its attorney—Extent of authority.—A corp'n. by deed authorised its attorney to commence & carry on any action, suit or other proceeding, & upon the bkpcy. or insolvency of any firm, or upon any such firm entering into a composition or arrangement with its creditors, to prove against the estate of such firm & to take such other proceedings in relation to any such bkpcy., insolvency, composition, or arrangement, as the attorney might think expedient for promoting or protecting the interests of the corp'n.:—Held: such a power did not authorise the attorney to originate proceedings in bkpcy., or insolvency, & the attorney having presented a petition for the compulsory winding up of a banking co., it was this only two or three months before the petition was presented; such conduct was scarcely consistent with a belief that the co. was unable to pay its debts, but it was not difficult to see that the presentation of the petition might be considered a means of compelling pursuers to buy up their shares; in the circumstances, pursuers averment that defenders were well aware of the falsity of their statements as to the co.'s insolvency when they presented the petition was sufficient.—*SEASPRAY S.S. (2) It appeared, further, by the arts. of assocn. of the co., & the agreement for the sale of the patent to them, that if the co. was ordered to be wound up the patent was to revert to the petitioner. It appeared, also, that the co. was formed for two distinct purposes, one of which had failed; but that the shareholders & execution creditors were anxious to continue the other, which they believed would be successful:—Held: that was not a case in which the ct. would make a winding-up order.—Re PATENT BREAD MACHINERY CO., LTD. (1866), 14 L. C. R. 661.—CAN.

f. — When entitled to petition.—When an assignment for the benefit of its creditors has been made by a co., a creditor of the co. is not entitled as of course to a winding-up order. A discretion to grant or refuse the order exists notwithstanding the making of the assignment. Where an assignment for the benefit of its creditors had been made by a co., & its assets had been sold with the approval of the great majority of its creditors & shareholders, an application to wind up the co. made by a creditor & shareholder who had taken part in all the proceedings, & had himself tried to purchase the assets, was refused.—Re STRATHY WIRE FENCE Co. (1904), 8 O. g. — Unless impeached—Misrepresentation.—If petitioning creditors wish to make a deed of assignment by a debtor, to which they themselves are parties, the foundation of their petition, & wish to go behind the deed on the ground that their execution of the deed was obtained by misrepresentation, they must allege clearly the circumstances of the misrepresentation in order to enable them to adduce the necessary proof. A deed of assignment was executed by a private co. by a director of the co. signing on its behalf without affixing the common seal. The co. filed a creditors' petition alleging the deed of assignment as an act of bkpcy.:—Held: it is not necessary that the deed should be actually executed by a petitioning creditor in order that he may be estopped by the deed, it being sufficient to show that he is privy to its execution & the equity, is established against a co., it is not, under 1862 Act, a discretionary matter with the ct. to say whether the co. shall be wound up or not; but it is the duty of the ct. to direct the winding up. Where, however, the sole creditor of a co. claiming under a judgment upon which execution had been issued & a return of nulla bona been made, but which judgment was of a suspicious character & was alleged to have been obtained by fraud, applied to have the co. wound up:—Held: the co. ought to have an opportunity of impeaching the debt, by filing a bill, as there was a doubt whether a valid debt existed: & the petition for winding up was ordered to stand over for that purpose.—BOWES v. HOPE, ETC. SOCIETY (1865), 11 H. L. Cas. 389; 35 L. J. Ch. 574; 12 L. T. 680; 11 Jur. N. S. 643; 13 W. R. 790; 11 E. R. 1383, H. L.

iv. Creditor in respect of Disputed Debt.

5425. General rule.—A. having lent a co. £500 required repayment by serving a statutory notice on the co. on Oct. 27, 1881. In Mar., 1881, the co. had by special resolution changed its name & admitted a new class of shareholders, but it was virtually the same co. The money not having been paid, in May & June, 1882, some correspondence took place between A. & the secretary, who resisted payment on the ground that the money was lent to the old co. On July 24, 1882, A. presented a petition for the winding up of the co. The co. was not in fact insolvent:—Held: (1) petitioner had not waived his statutory demand by delay, as he was not bound to present his petition as soon as the three weeks had expired; (2) petitioner had not waived his demand by receiving interest on his debt in the meantime; (3) the co. had no reasonable excuse for not paying the debt, & though, if the debt was bonâ fide disputed, a winding-up petition was not the way to enforce it, petitioner might reasonably think he was being trifled with, & was entitled to succeed on his petition as a means of enforcing payment, unless the debt was paid.—Re IMPERIAL HYDROPATHIC HOTEL CO., BLACKPOOL, LTD. (1882), 49 L. 5426. ——B., a dismissed servant of a co., claimed £15 for arrears of salary, & £95 damages for alleged wrongful dismissal. The co. disputed both claims. B. filed a petition to wind up the co., alleging it to be insolvent, but there was no evidence of insolvency except the common statutory affidavit of petitioner:—Held: where a petition to wind up is improperly filed the ct. has jurisdiction on motion to stay all proceedings under it, or to dismiss it; the present petition was an abuse of the process of the ct., being brought to compel payment of a small debt which was bonâ fide disputed, & being unsupported by any evidence that the co. was insolvent; the petition therefore must be dismissed with costs.—Re GOLD HILL MINES (1883), 23 Ch. o. Under decree-arbitral—Objection by company to part of debt—No proceedings for reduction taken.—In a petition for the judicial winding up of a co. which was admittedly deemed insolvent, petitioners founded on a judgment debt for £58 awarded to them under a decree-arbitral, the inducia of a charge upon the extract decree having expired without payment. The co. admitted that £43 of the £58 was due, & in order to make good their objection to the remaining portion, it would have been necessary to suspend the decree & reduce the decree-arbitral:—Held: no sufficient ground had been shown why the prayer in the petition should not be granted.—COWAN v. SCOTTISH PUBLISHING CO. (1892), 19 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 437.—SCOT.

p. Creditor charging on extract decree—Though under £50.—In a petition by a creditor for an order to wind up a co. it was stated that the creditor had obtained decree against the co. for a sum & interest which decree had been extracted & that the co. had been charged on the extract but the inducia of the said charge for payment had expired without payment being made:—Held: the creditor who had charged on an extract decree but had not received payment within the inducia, was entitled under 1908 Act to a winding-up order, notwithstanding that the debt due to him was under £50 & that the co. had no assets.—SPEIRS (J.) & CO. v. CENTRAL BUILDING CO., LTD., [1911] S. C. 330.—SCOT.

q. General rule—Winding-up proceedings not to be used for recovering disputed debts—Petition dismissed.—Recourse is not to be had to winding-up proceedings for the purpose of recovering a disputed debt. A petition for the winding up of a co. was presented by W., who alleged that he was a creditor of the co. in the sum of $9,000; that a demand for payment of this sum had been served upon the co. & had not been satisfied; & that, accordingly, the co. was insolvent. It appeared that the claim was in good faith disputed:—Held: W. must be left to establish his claim in the ordinary way, by an action against the co., & the petition must be dismissed.—Re MEAFORD MANUFACTURING CO. (1919), 46 O. After the presentation of the petition, but before the hearing of it, an advertisement was inserted in the newspapers which reflected upon the motives of petitioners in presenting their petition. The advertisement stated, inter alia, that they had no legal claim against the co., & they knew it; & was signed by the chairman on behalf of the directors of the co. A motion was made for an order to commit the chairman for contempt of ct., & for an injunction to restrain him & the directors from continuing the obnoxious advertisement, & from publishing any others of the same character in future:—Held: on the chairman giving an undertaking not to continue or repeat the advertisement, he should not be committed; but the costs of the motion must be determined when the petition to wind up was disposed of.

The petition for the winding-up order came on to be heard in due course. The ct. was of opinion that the compulsory powers given by 1862 Act, & enabling any person who claimed to be a creditor of a co. to present, after 21 days' notice, a petition to wind it up, were not intended to permit petitioner to extort payment of a doubtful debt, under threat of annoyance to the co. if they should resist; & that the alleged debt of petitioners in this case was a bond fide disputed one, the nature of which could not be properly determined on a petition to wind up the co.:—Held: (2) petitioners who had had previous notice of the views taken by the co. of the debt, were not now entitled to the relief for which they prayed by their petition: & it must be dismissed, they paying the costs of it; (3) with respect to the costs of the motion to commit, the chairman continuing his undertaking not to publish or repeat the advertisement, & petitioners undertaking not to bring any action at law on account of the advertisement already issued, the directors of the co. must pay the costs of the motion.—Re GENERAL EXCHANGE BANK, LTD. a. Depositor in building society—Right to withdraw deposit "as funds permit"—Debt not "presently exigible."—By the rules of a building society members were allowed to withdraw their shares "at any time after twelve months from the date of entry by giving one month's notice, when the whole instalments in the shares withdrawn shall be repaid, with interest." It was further provided that "members withdrawing shall be paid out in the order of their application, & as the funds permit." A member who had withdrawn & demanded, but not received, payment in terms of the rules, presented a petition to the ct. under 1862 Act, s. 199, for an order for the winding up of the society, on the ground that the society was unable to pay its debts, & that it was just & equitable that such order should be pronounced as the society was in a state of great pecuniary embarrassment. Answers were lodged by the directors to the effect that the co. was solvent, & that petitioner would be paid in due course as required by the rules. They further stated that in their opinion it would be fatal to the interests of the society if the petition were granted.

Petition refused on the ground that petitioner was not a creditor in a debt presently exigible, & that no sufficient ground had been shown to satisfy the ct. that the course suggested would be just & equitable.—MARTIN v. The technical objection has no weight. 5498. ———.]—A creditor of a mining co. made repeated applications for payment through the year 1881, & on Dec. 21 obtained a payment on account, & being unable to obtain more, he, on Dec. 28, issued a writ. On Jan. 4, 1882, a paid-up shareholder in the co., who was under considerable liability as a surety for the co., presented a petition to wind it up, setting out a balance-sheet which showed that the assets greatly exceeded the liabilities, but not alleging as a fact that they did so, stating that the co. was unable to pay its debts, & that it was just & equitable that it should be wound up. On Jan. 8 the creditor recovered final judgment without notice of the winding-up petition, & on the following day issued execution. On Jan. 14 the petition came on to be heard & was supported by creditors, & a winding-up order was made. The creditor then applied for leave to go on with the execution:—Held: (1) the petition could not be treated as a petition collusively presented on behalf of a solvent co. for the purpose of defeating the execution, for that the balance-sheet could not be treated as proving the co. to be solvent, & petitioner, though not legally a creditor, was virtually such, & by amending the petition by joining one of the supporting creditors it might have been made a creditor's petition; & consequently leave to proceed with the execution ought not to be given; (2) leave ought not to be given on the ground that the creditor had given indulgence to the co., as he had never given time to the co. in the sense of binding himself not to sue, but had merely abstained from suing.

He says he is a shareholder, but he is a fully paid-up shareholder & has no locus standi to apply for a winding-up order unless he alleges that there is a surplus & gives some evidence in support of the allegation, for otherwise he has no interest in a winding up (JESSEL, M.R.).—Re VRON COLLIERY CO. (1882), 20 Ch. A creditor of a joint-stock co. presented a petition for a winding-up order. pay to the trustees the interest on the bonds, & also an annual sum by way of sinking fund for the discharge of the bonds; & that the bond debt, interest, & sinking fund should be a charge on the railway. Each bond contained a covenant by the co. with the trustees for payment of £100 to the "bearer thereof," & of interest to the "bearer" of the coupons annexed thereto.

The interest on the bond debt having fallen into arrear, a winding-up petition was presented by a holder of six bonds, but was dismissed with costs, on the ground (1) that neither the bearer of the bond, as to principal, nor the bearer of the coupons, as to interest, was a creditor of the co. either at law or in equity within the Companies Acts, his right of action being through the trustees only; & (2) that assuming a bondholder to be a creditor, then, under 1862 Act, s. 91, regard must be had to the wishes of the bondholders other than the petitioner, all of whom opposed the petition.

As a general rule, an unpaid creditor of a co. is entitled to a winding-up order ex debito justitiæ; but that rule is subject to exceptions: e.g. where all the other creditors oppose the petition, & it appears that the petitioning creditor will not be in a better position by obtaining a winding-up order.

But there is another ground on which I think also the petition should be dismissed, & it is this, that bondholders to the amount of £142,700 have instructed counsel to appear for them to oppose the petition. Now under sect. 91, it has been decided that the ct. may have regard to the wishes of persons opposing a winding-up petition. It has been decided that the sect. authorises the ct. even to refuse a winding-up order. I agree that, as a general rule, a creditor is entitled to a winding-up order ex debito justitiæ; but that rule is not without an exception; & if ever there was a case of exception I think I have it here (JESSEL, M.R.).—*Re URUGUAY CENTRAL & HYGUERITAS RY. The prima facie right of an unpaid creditor of a co. to a winding-up order is rebutted when it is shown that a large mass of other creditors oppose the making of such an order. PART III. SECT. 36, SUB-SECT. 3.—D. (b).

No realisable assets—Beyond uncalled capital—Winding-up order made.—A winding-up order will not be granted where there are no assets, & the petitioning creditor would therefore get nothing by the order. Where, however, on a petition for such an order which was contested on the ground of the alleged non-existence of assets, it appeared that there was an amount of subscribed stock only partially paid up, an amount of stock issued as paid up, the consideration for which did not satisfactorily appear, & also a large issue of bonds which appeared to have been of very little benefit to the co., & it was impossible to say whether they were held for value or not, an order was granted winding up the co.—Re GEORGIAN BAY SHIP

5536. ——Where by the constitution of a limited co. a portion of its uncalled capital is not capable of being called up, except in the event of & for the purpose of the co. being wound up, the contract of a shareholder with his fellow-shareholders as regards such reserve capital is that the business of the co. shall be carried on with a certain amount of capital, of which he is to contribute a fixed proportion, & on the faith of the credit attaching to his liability to contribute a further proportion in the event of a winding up; but it is not a part of his contract that the business shall be carried on, notwithstanding that the original capital has been exhausted, so as in that way to bring into active operation the contingent liability to contribute in the event of a winding up. A banking co. had a capital of £24,000 in 2,400 shares of £10 each, of which £5 was paid & the other £5 was not to be called up except in the event of & for the purposes of the co. being wound up. The co. had been in existence for six years, but had never made any profit, & its business, which had commenced with a considerable staff in extensive premises, was now being carried on in small premises, attended by a single clerk. From the last balance-sheet of the co. it appeared that all the paid-up capital except £337 had been exhausted. Three months after the date to which the balance-sheet was made up a shareholder presented a petition for the winding up of the co. The petition was supported by a considerable number, but not a majority, of shareholders. No creditor appeared:—Held: it was impossible that the business of the co. could be carried on with any reasonable hope of success, & under the circumstances a winding-up order ought to be made.—Re BRISTOL JOINT STOCK BANK (1890), 44 Ch. The whole of the assets of the co. were covered by the debentures, & the debenture-holders practically represented its only creditors. There was evidence, which was uncontradicted, to the effect that the co. had no tangible assets. The judge, however, decided to make a winding-up order, being of opinion that there would be assets forthcoming if the co. was

This objection was taken at the first meeting before the master. Upon a petition presented promptly afterwards, the ct. discharged the order for winding up, with costs against petitioner who had obtained the winding-up order. The ct. refused to sustain the former order at the request of an independent contributory; but discharged it without prejudice to any application that might be made to wind up the co.

k. Reconstruction pending—Right to challenge conveyance of property in favour of creditors.—A minority of the creditors of a co. which was unable to pay its debts presented a petition for a winding up by the ct. The petition was opposed by the co. & by a majority of the creditors, who desired a voluntary liquidation under the supervision of the ct., on the ground that the granting of the petition would prejudice a contemplated reconstruction of the co. Petitioners objected to delay, as the co. had within sixty days of the presenting of the petition granted a conveyance of part of its heritable property in favour of certain creditors, the right to challenge which petitioners wished to preserve. It was not disputed that a resolution for the voluntary winding up of the co., could not be obtained within sixty days of the date of the conveyance. The ct. granted the petition holding that it was for the interest of the creditors to grant a compulsory order in respect that reconstruction would not be hindered by such an order; & it was questionable if the right to challenge the conveyance would be preserved if the co. were to be wound up voluntarily under a resolution to be passed by it.—*BELL'S TRUSTEES v. n. ———.—Authority of solicitor for petitioner to present petition.—A petition for a winding-up order alleged various grounds in support of the application for winding up. It was contended that the petition should be dismissed on the grounds that the authority of the solr. for petitioner to present the petition must be by power of attorney, & was not proved, & that the petition was not signed by petitioner & was in fact the petition of the solr. in question:—Held: the question of authority could not be raised at the hearing; the statement "by the solr." merely served to indicate the fact that the party instituting proceedings was acting by a solr. & this ground of objection was overruled; & the petition need not be signed.—Re NEW ZEALAND GUM

5663. Adjournment on terms—What terms imposed—St. Thomas' Dock Order.]—A co. was formed to repair & work a floating dock in the West Indies. The dock was not finished until Dec. 1875. At that time the whole capital of the co. had been paid up in full, & debentures issued to the amount of £89,000, secured by a charge on the dock & certain concessions, constituting the only assets of the co. The interest on these debentures having fallen into arrear, a holder of a small amount served, in Dec. 1875, the statutory notice to pay the interest, & then presented a petition to wind up the co. The petition was opposed by the co., by debenture holders to the amount of upwards of £70,000, & by the principal unsecured creditor, whose debt amounted to £5,000; & there was no evidence that the sale of the dock & concessions would produce any surplus beyond the amount of the debentures:—Held: petition must stand over for six months, upon the co. undertaking not to consent to a winding-up order on another petition, or to wind up voluntarily, to give petitioner notice of the presentation of any other petition, & not to raise any objection to the petition being brought or in case any other petition should be presented.—Re St. Thomas' Dock Co. (1876), 2 Ch. 5680. ———.]—Two petitions were presented for winding up a co., the first by the co., the second by a creditor. The second petition was advertised before the co.'s petition. It was stated at the hearing that, according to the present practice, a second petition to wind up a co. is always set down before the same judge as the first, & notice is given to the person presenting the petition that a petition has already been presented: Held: this practice put an end to the grounds on which priority of advertisement has been held to give priority to a second petition, & the second petition having been persisted in after notice of the first must be dismissed with costs. If a second petitioner chooses to proceed with his petition for fear the co. should let a petition drop, he must do so at his own risk.—*Re STANDARD PORTLAND CEMENT Co. 5742. Appearing although not served—& although not liable as a contributory.]—In 1845 a co. was projected & was provisionally registered, but, the allottees of shares not having paid any deposits, the undertaking was abandoned. The solr. had given the members a guarantee against any expenses incurred in the formation of the co., but to avoid litigation each of the members paid a sum sufficient to liquidate all liabilities, except the solr.'s bill. The brother of the solr. then presented a petition for winding up the co. under the acts:—Held: (1) although it has been decided that unformed cos. came within the meaning of the winding-up acts, the ct. was bound to regard the inconvenience likely to arise in such cases, where each member was only liable for the debts which he had expressly authorised, &, as there were no liabilities proved, which would not be covered by the guarantee, this was not a case for a winding-up order; (2) although resp. had opposed the petition without being liable as a contributory, & without being served with the petition, he was entitled to his costs. & liability was not favoured by the cts., & should be invoked & attendance thereunder had only when there was any special question on which the appearance of some one to represent the creditors was desirable; attendances & services should not be paid for out of the assets except where contemporaneously approved of by the referee; & it was not proper practice to extend this at the close of the proceedings by obtaining a certificate from him that, had he been applied to from time to time, he might have provided for other attendances & services.—Re DRURY NICKEL CO. (1895), 16 P. a. On right to carry on business—Only in case of necessity.]—The power to carry on the business after winding-up proceedings have been commenced, & thus to postpone the final winding up, is one which is not to be exercised unless a strong case of necessity for doing so exists. That the mtgees. of the co.'s works, who have foreclosed their mtge., will be enabled to dispose of the works to greater advantage, & that by affording facilities for procuring repairs to the purchasers of the machinery manufactured by the co., the chances of obtaining payment of outstanding purchase notes will be improved, are not sufficient grounds to justify the carrying on of the business.—Re HAGGERT BROTHERS MANUFACTURING CO. (1893), 20 A. R. 597.—CAN.

When a co. goes into liquidation its entity is not lost. It preserves it to the end. A liquidator is appointed under the ct.'s authority to look after its affairs, but the co. is in existence during the whole time of its liquidation & it is not until the liquidator has made his final statement & has given the required notice in the Official Gazette that a co. has ceased to exist.—*GLICKMAN v. 5825. On lien—In existence when petition presented—Solicitor's lien.—An order having been made for winding up a co., applications were made by the official liquidator against B., a solr. employed by the co. before the winding up, that B. might be ordered to deliver up the following documents: (a) the share register & minute book, which were in B.'s hands before the commencement of the winding up; (b) other documents which came to B.'s hands after the presentation of the winding-up petition, but before the winding-up order; (c) documents relating to allotments of shares which had come to B.'s hands before the presentation of the petition. B. resisted the applications on the ground that he claimed a lien.

On appeal against an order that all the documents should be delivered to the liquidator subject to the lien, if any, of B.:—Held: (1) the order was right as regarded the share register & minute book, for the directors had no power to create any lien on them which could interfere with their being used for the purposes of the co.; (2) the order was right as to (b), for a solr. could not assert against documents which came to his hands pending the winding up any such lien as would interfere with the prosecution of the winding up; (3) the order for delivery of (c) must be discharged, for the winding-up order could not defeat any valid lien existing at the time when the winding-up petition was presented.—Re CAPITAL FIRE INSURANCE ASSOCN. (1883), 24 Ch. 5829. General rule—Property becomes affected with trust for creditors.]—(1) When a co. has in this country been ordered to be wound up, judgment creditors who are in this country, & have proved under the winding up, will not be allowed to attach property in India belonging to the co.

An English creditor carrying on business in India, who issues execution against property in India of an English co., subsequently to the commencement of the winding up by virtue of a judgment obtained in India prior thereto, cannot retain the proceeds of his execution in satisfaction of his debt, but must hand them over to the official liquidator for the benefit of English creditors generally.

(2) The English Act of Parliament has enacted that in the case of a winding up the assets of the co. so wound up are to be collected & applied in discharge of its liabilities. That makes the property of the co. clearly trust property. It is property affected by the Act of Parliament with an obligation to be dealt with by the proper officer in a particular way. Then it has ceased to be beneficially the property of the co.; & being so, it has ceased to be liable to be seized by the execution creditors of the co. (SIR W. M. JAMES, L.J.).

(3) It appears to me that that [the provisions of 1862 Act, s. 95] constitutes a trust for the benefit of all the creditors, & as far as this ct. has jurisdiction, no one creditor can be allowed to have a larger share of the assets than any other creditor (*SIR G. The coal co. became insolvent, & on Dec. 16, 1885, a petition was presented for winding up, & in Feb. 1886, an order to wind up was made, & on Jan. 20 following a provisional liquidator was appointed. When the petition was presented the coal co. was indebted to the railway co. in respect of charges for freight. Of the fifteen waggons in use by the coal co., & employed in carrying coal over the railway co.'s line, nine had been received by the railway co. prior to presentation of the winding-up petition & had been detained by them ever since; four in the possession of the railway co. when the petition was presented had travelled up & down the line since, but returned into the possession of the railway co. before the date of the winding-up order; two did not come into the possession of the railway co. until between the presentation of the petition & the winding-up order. The liquidator claimed delivery up by the railway co. of the fifteen waggons which the co. claimed to retain in satisfaction of the general lien under the agreement:—Held: the lien given to the railway co. by the agreement, which was made for the ordinary purposes of the coal co.'s business, was good & valid, & took effect upon the insolvency of that co., & had not been displaced by anything that had taken place in the winding-up proceedings.—Re LLANGENNECH COAL CO. (1887), 56 L. On an application, by the liquidators in the winding up, to restrain the overseers from selling the chattels distrained on :—Held : on appeal, the fact of the existence of a provisional liquidator ought not to be allowed to prejudice the right of the overseers to obtain payment in full by means of a distress put in prior to the commencement of the winding up; & though, by reason of the existence of the provisional liquidator, the overseers should not have distrained without having made an application to the ct. for leave to do so, yet they did not lose their right by not having so applied; & therefore, the liquidators in the winding up were not entitled to restrain the overseers from selling, except on condition of paying the rates in full.—*Re DRY DOCKS CORPN. Notwithstanding the provision for a penalty for default in complying with the requirements of the sect., contained in sub-sect. 5 thereof, the inherent power of the cts. to make such orders as are necessary to carry out the objects with which they have to deal is not taken away, & a county ct. has therefore jurisdiction to make an order that a director make out & furnish the statement of affairs required by the sect.—Re NEW PAR CONSOLS, [1898] 1 Q. —(1) An action will not lie against an official receiver in respect of a report made by him under 1890 (Winding up) Act, Sched. I, s. 3, & sent by him to the creditors & contributories of the co. In making such report he acts as an officer of the ct. & absolute privilege attaches to such a report, the same having been made in the performance of a statutory duty.

(2) Neither is an action maintainable against the Inspector-General in Companies' Liquidation in respect of a report made by him to the Board of Trade under 1890 (Winding up) Act, s. 29 (2), for the purpose of being included by the Board of Trade in its general annual report of all matters, judicial & financial, & laid before both Houses of Parliament. In making such report he is merely acting as an officer of the Board of Trade by whom it is enabled to perform its statutory duty, & the fact that the report is delivered into the hands of superior officers of the Board of Trade does not constitute publication at all.—*BURR v. 5908. Application for order under 1890 (Winding-up) Act, s. 7, for exculpation—Appearance of official receiver to oppose application—Application successful—Whether official receiver personally liable for costs.]—A co. having been ordered to be wound up in the county ct., the official receiver, acting as liquidator, made a preliminary report under 1890 (Winding up) Act, s. 8 (1), & subsequently made a further report under sub-sect. 2, in which he stated that he was of opinion that the facts set out in the report constituted a fraud committed in the promotion or formation of the co., & that the persons named in the schedule—of whom the director of the co. was one—were parties to such fraud. The county ct. judge, under sub-sect. 3, ordered a public examination of the persons named, & after it had been held, the director in question applied for an order exculpating him from the charge of fraud made in the report. Notice of the application was served on the official receiver, & he appeared at the hearing & opposed the application. The judge, however, made the order, & further ordered the official receiver to pay to the director the costs of his public examination, & of the application for exculpation. The co. having no available assets, the order in effect was that the official receiver should personally pay the costs. The Div. Ct. discharged the order on the ground that the county ct. judge had no jurisdiction to make it :—Held : (1) in regard to the examination the official receiver was merely discharging a duty of a judicial character cast upon him by sect. 8 of the Act ; & the proviso in sub-sect. 7 of that sect. enabling the ct. in its discretion to "allow" the exculpated person costs meant that the ct. might allow such costs out of the assets of the co., & did not impose any personal liability upon the official receiver, & therefore there was no jurisdiction to order him to pay the costs of the public examination ; (2) in regard to the application for exculpation the official receiver had accepted the position of litigant, & had by his action become a party to a proceeding in the county ct., & consequently the judge had jurisdiction to order him to pay the costs of the application ; & as the judge had exercised his discretion, that was not a matter for appeal.—Re TWEDDLE (JOHN) & CO., LTD., [1910] 2 K. A winding-up order was made on a shareholders' petition. Petitioner, who was largely supported by other shareholders, proposed one person as liquidator. Another person was proposed as nominee of other shareholders. The judge was not satisfied that either side should have the nomination; he therefore gave directions to his chief clerk that, provided a certain independent shareholder submitted the name of a person impartial, competent, & unconnected with the co., such person would be the right person to appoint. The chief clerk afterwards approved the person nominated—no exception being taken on the score of his personal fitness—& notwithstanding the protests of the other shareholders appointed him liquidator. The ct. will consider the condition of affairs to ascertain what parties are most interested in the due administration of the estate in liquidation, & other things being equal will act upon their recommendation. Where upon an application under the Dominion Act, the creditors were those whose interests were most to be regarded, & the great bulk of them favoured the appointment of the sheriff of L., & opposed the nominee of the petitioning creditors, & the sheriff resided in the county where the co.'s operations were carried on, & where all its books & assets were, was already de facto liquidator under voluntary proceedings, & was other-5936. Security—Surety's liability upon bond—Not entitled to receive notice of taking of accounts against liquidator—Right to attend if aware of taking of accounts—Reopening of accounts.]—In the winding up of cos., where the surety for a defaulting liquidator becomes liable upon his bond, it is not the practice to give notice to the surety of the taking of the accounts as against the liquidator; but if the surety becomes aware of the taking of the accounts & applies for leave to attend, such leave will be granted at his own expense.

H. was appointed liquidator in a winding up. The G. Society became his sureties for £3,000,

& for that purpose entered into a bond, which provided that the certificate of the chief clerk should be conclusive evidence as between all parties that the bond had been forfeited to the amount stated in the certificate. On the bkpcy. of H. a fresh liquidator was appointed in his place. The accounts of H., which were carried in & vouched without any notice having been given to the society, showed a probable deficit of £4,500. The society, on receiving notice of the date fixed for the final passing of the accounts, attended & asked to have them reopened in their presence. The ct. allowed the society to have the accounts reopened, on the terms that they should pay into ct. the whole of the £3,000 for which they were liable, together with £100 for the costs of such reopening, & should undertake to pay interest on the amount to be found due from them, & pay the costs of the application.—Re BIRMINGHAM BREWERY, MALTING & DISTILLING CO., LTD. (1883), 52 L. B. Position of Liquidator.

5937. Whether in better position than company.]—He [the liquidator] is appointed for the purpose of assisting the ct. in the winding up of a co., but in all his proceedings he appears to be merely substituted for the co. (LORD CHELMSFORD).

The rights of creditors against the shareholders of a co. when enforced by a liquidator must be enforced by him in right of the co. What is to be paid by the shareholders is to be recovered in that right. What is due to the co. is that only which is in fact recoverable by the co. (LORD WESTBURY).

If the Joint Stock Cos. Acts be thoroughly sifted, there will no doubt be considerable ground for coming to the conclusion when the proper time comes that the official liquidator, who in that capacity is bound to collect all the assets of the co. & distribute them by the direction of the ct. among the creditors, is in a position in which he may assert rights as against the co., & assume a position against the members of the co. which the co. itself possibly might not be in a position to assert (LORD HATHERLEY, C.).—*WATERHOUSE v. m. — Surety's liability upon bond—Assessment of surety's liability—Appeal.]—After the assignee for the benefit of creditors of an incorporated co. had sold part of the assets & received the proceeds, he was appointed liquidator under the Winding-up Act & gave security by a bond which recited all the proceedings & orders, & was conditioned to be void if the liquidator should duly account for what he should receive or become liable to pay as liquidator:—Held: the funds & property in the hands of the assignee became vested in him as liquidator upon his appointment as such, & the sureties were responsible for his subsequent misappropriation thereof.

The bond provided that the certificate of the master in ordinary of the amount for which the liquidator was liable should be sufficient evidence of liability as against the sureties, & should form a valid & binding charge against them:—*Held: the sureties had the right to appeal from the certificate in accordance with the usual practice of the ct.—Re ARMY & NAVY CLOTHING CO. 5938. —.]—(1) The powers of a liquidator of a limited co. are more extensive than those of the co. prior to the winding up order; for instance, he can assert as against the members of the co. rights which the co. itself could not have asserted.

The arts. of assocn. of a limited insurance co. provided—art. 122—that “the directors might, without the sanction of a general meeting, pay interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum upon the paid-up capital.” The co. desiring to raise further capital, passed a resolution, empowering the directors, under 1867 Act, s. 27, to issue to members who had paid up the full amount of their shares, share warrants payable to bearer. Share warrants were issued accordingly, each warrant declaring that the bearer was entitled to interest at 5 per cent. per annum on the amount therein specified. The co. never having made any profits the interest on the warrants was from time to time paid to the holders of them out of capital by the directors with the express sanction of the general body of shareholders, & on the assumption that such payment was authorised by Art. 122. The co. having been ordered to be wound up, the liquidator applied by summons under 1862 Act, s. 165, that the directors might be ordered jointly & severally to pay to him the amount so paid for interest to the holders of the share warrants:—Held: (2) upon the literal construction of sect. 165 the liquidator was entitled to make the application independently of the question whether he, as representing the co., could sue its own agents, or whether he had an independent right to represent the creditors; (3) the directors had, in making payments to shareholders out of capital, acted ultra vires & committed a breach of trust, & they were therefore liable jointly & severally to make good the amount of such payments, but without prejudice to their right to recover from each shareholder the amount of capital he had received.—Re NATIONAL FUNDS ASSURANCE Co. (1878), 10 Ch. For five years W. was never treated as a shareholder in respect of these shares, but on the co. then going into liquidation, the liquidator sought to make W. liable in respect of the shares:—Held: (1) as by 1862 Act, s. 23, to constitute a shareholder a person must have agreed to become a shareholder & his name must be entered on the register, the liquidator was seeking for specific performance of the contract to take shares; he was in no better position than the co.; & the delay of five years was fatal; (2) the ct. was not satisfied that it would be just to place W.'s name on the register.—Re WEST LONDON COMMERCIAL BANK, LTD., WHITELEY'S CASE (1889), 60 L. *s. ———.]—*In fixing the liquidator's commission or compensation in the winding-up proceedings of an insolvent bank, it is proper to take into consideration amounts adjusted or set off, but not actually received by the liquidators; & in this case a commission of 2½ per cent having been allowed on the gross amount of moneys actually collected, a further commission of 1½ per cent on a sum of $231,000, consisting of amounts adjusted or set off, was allowed. So far as possible, the amount allowed as compensation to liquidators in such winding-up proceedings should be provided that the uncalled capital of the co. should be called up by the voluntary liquidators, & that they should thereout, by Sept. 1897, pay sums amounting to a dividend of 12s. 6d. in the £ to the debenture-holders, the balance being payable in 1902, & the interest being kept down in the meantime. Any surplus from calls, after payment of the first dividend, might be applied, according to the liquidators' discretion, for management & other expenses. The scheme also gave the liquidators power to borrow for the purpose of protecting & developing the assets. On the debenture-holders being paid off, the winding up was to be stayed, & the co. was to resume business. By a trust deed executed in pursuance of the scheme the liquidators covenanted to apply the proceeds of the call in accordance with the scheme. In May & Sept. 1897, the liquidators filed with the Registrar of Joint Stock Cos. the statements of account required by 1890 (Winding up) Act, s. 15; but they refused to pay into the Cos. Liquidation Account the surplus of calls shown by the accounts to be still in their hands or under their control, although directed to do so by the Board of Trade. On a motion by the Board for an order to comply with its direction:—Held: the money was not “undistributed assets” within 1890 (Winding up) Act, s. 15 (3), & the liquidators could not be called on to pay it into the Cos. Liquidation Account.

Liquidation Account at the Bank of England under 1890 (Winding up) Act, s. 15:—Held: this did not create a “debt” due from the official of the Board of Trade who had the custody of the money to the shareholder so as to entitle a judgment creditor of the shareholder to obtain a garnishee order attaching the sum to answer the judgment debt.—*SPENCE v. 5990. How fixed—“Divisible assets.”]—(1) The regulation adopted by the judges of the Ct. of Ch. in 1868 for fixing the remuneration of official liquidators is not binding upon the judges, evenly spread over the whole period of the liquidation, so as to ensure vigilance & expedition at all stages of the liquidation, as well as a proper distribution among the liquidators, when more than one.—Re CENTRAL BANK, LYE'S CLAIM (1892), 22 O. R. 247.—CAN.

but is intended as a guide to them in exercising their discretion.

A limited co. being in course of liquidation, a new co. was formed, & a scheme was sanctioned by the ct., under which the new co. took over the assets of the old co., & in consideration thereof agreed to pay its debts & to allot shares to the old shareholders instead of their old shares, each share to be of the nominal value of £1, with 15s. paid up, & their market value was about 16s. The judge, in fixing the scale of remuneration of the liquidator, treated the value of the new shares allotted to the shareholders as assets of the old co. of the value of 15s. each:—Held: by the Court of Appeal, the judge had acted on a right principle in having regard to the value of the new shares in fixing the scale of remuneration, & they ought not to interfere with his discretion as to the value at which he estimated them.

a. Basis of computation.]—The intention of Winding-up Act, R. S. C., c. 129, s. 28, is that the remuneration of liquidators is not necessarily to be increased because three are to be paid instead of one. The recompense for services is usually a percentage based on the time occupied, work done, & responsibility imposed & when fixed goes to the liquidator, & if more than one, is distributed amongst them.—Re CENTRAL BANK OF CANADA (1887), 15 O. R. 309.—CAN.

b. Division of remuneration—Between joint liquidators—Presumption in favour of equality.]—In dealing with the remuneration to be paid to liquidators appointed with equal powers under a statutory minute of meeting of a co. in liquidation, the ct. will disregard any alleged agreements or bargains of the liquidators inter se, & will, in terms of the Companies Act, 1862, s. 93, fix the total amount of remuneration due for the whole work, & distribute that amount in such proportions as it sees fit, the presumption being in favour of equality.—CITY OF GLASGOW BANK (LIQUI-

Considerable litigation took place before the judge's chief clerk as to his being a contributory or not, which finally ended in the ct. deciding that he ought never to have been put upon the list of contributories:—Held: the costs of such litigation should be paid in the first instance by the official assignee, who had originated the litigation, & whether he could or could not recoup himself the amount of those costs as against the assets of the co., was immaterial.—Re KILBRICKEN MINES CO., LIBRI'S CASE (1857), 30 L. The assets in the hands of the liquidator, including calls made & recovered subsequently to the date of the order, were insufficient to satisfy both appcts.' costs & the costs of the liquidation:—Held: appcts.' costs were payable in priority to the costs of the liquidation other than the liquidator's costs of realisation.

that his name should be taken off the register of shareholders & his money returned to him. This order was made in ignorance that a winding-up petition had been presented, & was drawn up as of Aug. 24, 1881. On Aug. 26 a winding-up order was made by Hall, V.-C. A. claimed as a creditor for the moneys ordered to be refunded to him, & his claim was allowed. The liquidator was advised he ought to obtain a decision on the question whether V.-C. Bacon's order was right; he thereupon took out a summons to have the claim of A. to rank as a creditor disallowed. The judge, on June 24, 1882, dismissed the summons as misconceived, since he had no jurisdiction to disturb V.-C. Bacon's order, & refused to give the liquidator his costs out of the estate. The liquidator on June 29, took out a summons for leave to appeal against V.-C. Bacon's order of Aug. 24, 1881, & the judge's order of June 24, 1882. The judge dismissed this summons with costs, refusing the liquidator his costs out of the estate. The liquidator applied to vary this order:—Held: an official liquidator is a person who as a general rule is entitled to his costs out of the estate, & under Ord. 55 an appeal would lie; (2) as the application of June 24 was a manifest mistake it was competent to the judge below to refuse the liquidator his costs of it, & the Ct. of Appeal would not interfere with his decision.

(3) A liquidator, though in some sense a trustee, is a paid agent bound to discharge his duties with reasonable care & skill, & may be deprived of costs for a mistake which would not be sufficient to disentitle an ordinary gratuitous trustee to costs:—Held: a liquidator who applies for leave to appeal from an order is as a general rule entitled to the costs of the application, but they will be refused if the appeal would be frivolous; (4) if the application of June 29 had only been for leave to appeal against the order of June 24, 1882, the Ct. of Appeal would not have interfered as to the costs, but an application for leave to appeal against the order of Aug. 24, 1881, was reasonable, & as the including in the application liberty to appeal against the other order did not increase the costs, the liquidator must be allowed his costs of that application out of the estate.

Leave to appeal against the order of Aug. 24, 1881, so as to entitle the liquidator to costs in any event, was, however, refused on the ground of lapse of time.

(5) A liquidator may appeal without leave of the judge, but does so at his own risk as to costs. The ordinary practice of the Ct. of Appeal is not to order the liquidator's costs to be paid out of the estate, or refuse them, but to leave the matter in the hands of the judge controlling the winding up.—Re SILVER VALLEY MINES (1882), 21 Ch. See 1908 Act, s. 149 (6).

6027. Who may apply for—Contributory in arrear with call—Liability to pay disputed.]—The rule that a contributory who has not paid a call cannot present a winding-up petition, applies also to applications under the winding up, e.g., for the removal of the liquidator, & therefore, a summons for the removal of a liquidator, by a person who had, by an order of the ct., been made a contributory, but who intended to appeal from that order, was dismissed, on the ground above stated, although he offered to pay the amount of the call into ct. to abide the result of the decision of the Ct. of Appeal as to its validity.—Re NORWICH PROVIDENT INSURANCE SOCIETY, Re HESKETH (1879), 49 L. 6028. Grounds for—“On cause shown.”]—(1) The jurisdiction of the ct. to remove a liquidator under 1862 Act, ss. 93, 141, “on due cause shown,” is not confined to cases where there is personal unfitness in the liquidator. Whenever the ct. is satisfied that it is for the general advantage of those interested in the assets of the co. that a liquidator should be removed, it has power to remove him, & appoint a new one.

There were no calls to be made. After the judge in chambers had appointed an accountant official liquidator, he discharged his own order upon motion made in ct. & supported by a large majority of the unsecured creditors, who wished to nurse the assets & to save the expense of a professional accountant; & two gentlemen in business, who were not accountants, being willing to act as official liquidators without remuneration, were appointed accordingly.—Re LAND FINANCIERS' ASSOCN. (1878), 10 Ch. t. ——— Inadvertent appointment as permanent—In winding-up order.]—

6031. — Disagreement as to conduct of winding up—Jeopardy to interests of creditors.]—A winding-up order was made on a contributories' petition containing serious charges of misfeasance against the directors, & a liquidator & committee of inspection nominated by the contributories were appointed with the view of making a thorough investigation. At that time the co. was apparently solvent with a balance for the contributories which might be increased by misfeasance proceedings. Subsequently, however, a very heavy claim was admitted & it was found that the co., notwithstanding the amount possibly recoverable in misfeasance proceedings, was hopelessly insolvent. The liquidator & committee of inspection, acting quite bona fide & in pursuance of what they believed to be their duty under the order appointing them, continued to treat the liquidation as a contributories' liquidation & proposed to spend the creditors' assets in misfeasance proceedings against the wishes of the creditors. The creditors applied to remove the liquidator & the committee of inspection:—Held: the liquidation having become a creditors' liquidation since the order to compulsorily wind up the co., the creditors were the sole persons interested, & were entitled to decide whether the small remaining assets should be used in misfeasance proceedings against the directors, & "due cause" had been shown for the removal of the liquidator within 1908 Act, s. 149 (6), & there should be a reference to chambers to appoint some one in his place.—Re RUBBER & PRODUCE INVESTMENT TRUST, [1915] 1 Ch. 382; 84 L. A. afterwards absconded & he was removed from the post of official liquidator, & in his place B. was appointed official liquidator. It was then found that a sum of consols, part of the assets of the co., was standing in A.'s name as official liquidator. An application under Trustee Act, 1850 (c. 60), ss. 22 & 43, was therefore made by motion ex p. for an order to vest such sum of consols in B. as official liquidator. A. had become

Where the creditor of a co. for a large amount was unrepresented on the committee of inspection, & at a meeting of the creditors, summoned by the direction of the ct., a resolution was passed that it was desirable that the creditor should be represented on the committee, but a majority of the creditors at the meeting expressed the opinion

An interpleader issued was directed between claimants, as plffs., & the execution creditor & certain other creditors who desired to take part therein, as defts. Subsequently an order for the winding up of the co. was made under the Dominion Winding-up Act. The consent of the co. was taken as sufficient to dispense with notice being given to the co. of the application for the winding-up order; but, by an oversight, the order appointed a permanent liquidator, no notice having been given to creditors, as required by sect. 27 of the Act. 6047. Assets—What are.]—In a winding up, the funds contributed by the B list of shareholders become part of the general assets of the co., & are not to be applied, preferentially or exclusively, to the payment of those debts which were incurred before the B shareholders retired from the co. 1862 Act, s. 38, makes the "past members," persons who have become so by retiring from the co. within a year before the date of the winding-up order, liable to contribute to the assets of the co. for the payment of the debts & liabilities of the co., but though they are not specifically liable to satisfy debts which have been contracted since they left the co., yet, when they have become liable to contribute to the assets of the co., & have so contributed, their contributions become part of the general assets, & cannot be appropriated exclusively to the payment of those debts which had been incurred before these members retired from the co. The word "assets" in sect. 38 of the Act means the same as the word "property" in sect. 133, & both alike mean all the unpaid capital recoverable, as well as the other property of the co.

Sect. 133 of the Act applies to the case of a voluntary winding up only; but it has been thought important in the case of voluntary windings up to make specific provisions & to give specific directions as to matters which were supposed to be so plain & so necessarily consequential upon the general scheme of the Act, that in a winding up under the order of the ct. it was not thought necessary to give express directions upon these matters of detail. So also with regard to the distribution of assets, we have this direction given to the liquidators under a voluntary winding up, who were not, therefore, acting directly & constantly under the orders of ct.: "The following consequences shall ensue upon the voluntary winding up of a co.: the property of the co. shall be applied in satisfaction of its liabilities pari passu" (LORD CAIRNS).—WEBB v. A considerable sum was accordingly invested in the name of trustees, & by an indenture to which the vendor, the co. & the trustees were parties, it was declared that the trustees should hold the fund on trust to pay an aliquot part of it to the directors every half-year, & the vendor covenanted with the co. that dividends at £7 per cent. should, for four years, be paid on all shares issued to the public. The arts. of assocn. of the co. provided that dividends should be payable out of profits; & payments made to the directors out of the guarantee fund should be considered as profits, & applicable only to the payment of dividends. Before the expiration of four years the co. went into liquidation, & the trustees paid the fund in their hands into ct. Upon a petition by shareholders, who alleged that they had taken shares on the faith of a prospectus which stated the fact of capital. By a subsequent Act, the foregoing enactments were extended to other baronies & the period of liability to make up the dividend to 5 per cent. extended to 35 years:—Held: the baronial guarantee fund was dedicated to payment of dividend on share capital & was not general assets of the co. for

The guarantee was announced in a prospectus, & the agreement confirmed by the arts. of assocn. of the co., which was registered shortly afterwards. The trustees paid the sums necessary to make up the guaranteed dividend for every quarter during the three years, except the last, to the directors, who distributed them to the shareholders. The trustees had also paid some surplus moneys to the vendors, retaining sufficient to meet the accruing dividends. Shortly after the last quarter's payment became due the co. was ordered to be wound-up, & the official liquidator claimed the fund then remaining in the hands of the trustees:—Held: the agreement created a trust for the individual shareholders; the fund had never belonged to the co., & was not liable for its debts.—Re GELLY DEG COLLIERY CO. (1878), 38 L. The co. was formed, & the contract was recited & adopted in the arts. of assocn. The profits not being sufficient to pay 5 per cent., J. paid a sum of money to the directors for distribution among the shareholders to make up the deficiency in pursuance of his contract. After the last payment became due, but before it was paid, the co. was wound up voluntarily, & J. paid to the shareholders the amount necessary to bring the last dividend up to £5 per cent. The liquidator claimed the money as part of the assets of the co.:—Held: the money due from J. under his guarantee was properly payable to the shareholders, & was not part of the assets of the co.; the contract was valid, & was not an evasion of 1862 Act, s. 12.—*Re SOUTH LLANHARRAN COLLIERY CO., Ex p. R., to secure the performance of the guarantee; & subject thereto for themselves. In June, 1913, the amount of the percentage was paid into the bank as agreed. In Jan. 1914, co. R. was ordered to be wound up. Its liquidator claimed the sum deposited as part of the assets of the co. divisible among its creditors. The deposited sum was also claimed by the shareholders of co. R., who had not in fact received the guaranteed dividend:—Held: under the contract for sale there was no obligation upon the selling co. to make the deposit except out of the purchase-moneys; the moneys deposited were, & never ceased to be, moneys of the R. co.; the claim of shareholders was an attempt to get back part of the capital of the co., & was therefore illegal; & therefore the claim of the liquidator must be allowed.—*Re MENELL ET CIE, LTD., REGENT STREET FUR CO., LTD. v. In a liquidation at the instance of a creditor of the co. the liquidator presented a note under the above sect. craving the ct. to ordain A. to assign the patents to him. A. maintained, that the petition was incompetent in that he was an officer of the co., & that the co. was not prima facie entitled to the patents, which he held, not as an officer of the co., but as an undivested seller; & that he was entitled to retain the letters patent in security for the payment of the balance of the price:—Held: A. was an officer of the co. within the above sect., & the substantial rights to the patents belonged to the co., entitling the liquidator to a decree ordaining A. to assign them, but A. was entitled to a reservation of any claim to a preference in the liquidation for the balance of the of any claim to a preference in the price which he would have had if he had retained possession of the patents.—*DUNLOP v. The ct. has, therefore, jurisdiction under the Act to order the costs—as distinguished from the expenses—of a person examined to be paid by the person who procured the examination; but Seem: not where the examinee is a mere witness, & not a person with whom litigation is pending or intended.

A., a creditor of a co. in winding up, & B., a contributory, & other contributories took out a summons for liberty to issue a misfeasance summons against the directors of the co., & for liberty to examine such persons as they might be advised under 1862 Act, s. 115. On this summons an order was made giving liberty to examine W. & X., & to apply for leave to issue a misfeasance summons after the examination was concluded. A summons was then issued for the examination of W. & X., & at their examination they employed solrs. & counsel. A misfeasance summons was then issued by A. & B. against W. & X., who were officers of the co., but was dismissed with costs, which were taxed & paid. W. & X. then applied for an order that A. & B. should pay the appcts. their costs incurred in connection with their examination & being represented thereat by counsel:—Held: there was jurisdiction under Judicature Act, 1890 (c. 44), s. 5, to make the order, & having regard to the object of the examination & the position of appcts. as intended litigants, the order must be made.—Re APPLETON, FRENCH & SCRAFTON, LTD., [1905] 1 Ch. 749; 74 L. 6071. ——— Examination touching formation of company.—An order was made for winding up a co. incorporated under the Companies Acts. On Jan. 12, 1888, it was ordered on the application of the official liquidator of the co., that, pursuant to 1862 Act, s. 115, certain of the directors should be examined before an examiner. C. who was alleged to be a shareholder of the co., & who had been served with a notice to place him on the list of contributories, but who disputed his liability, obtained on Feb. 10 an order giving him liberty to attend at the examination of the directors, & after the liquidator to examine, & if necessary, cross-examine, the directors "touching the formation, trade dealing, estate & effects of the said co." This order was not made by the judge in person. One of the directors named in the order for examination moved to discharge the order of Feb. 10:—Held: it would require a very strong case to justify an examination by a contributory as well as by the liquidator under the above sect., which was intended for the benefit of the co. only; there was no jurisdiction under the sect. to allow an examination touching "the formation" of the co.; although orders under the sect. are made ex parte, the director had a fundamental right to have the matter brought before the judge in person; & the motion to discharge the order was proper, & should be allowed.

Liquidator—Prior right to apply—Notice of application not necessary.—A liquidator & directors of a co. who had been summoned under 1862 Act, s. 115, to attend for examination, appealed to discharge the order summoning them:—Held: (1) the discretion of the judge in the ct. below under that sect., when the matter was within the terms of the sect., could not be interfered with; (2) a witness summoned under that sect. had no locus standi for appealing against the order summoning him to attend.

Where a contributory applies under that sect. he must give notice to the liquidator, who is dominus litis, & has a prior right to make such application himself. i. Refusal to Attend.

6094. Whether justified—Refusal to attend before chief clerk—Counsel unable to attend before chief clerk.—The chief clerk, at the instigation of the official liquidator of the above co., issued a summons directing two witnesses to attend before one of the examiners of the ct. to be examined by him. They refused to do so, alleging that there had been no special authority given by the judge to the chief clerk to issue the summons in question; that it was properly returnable only before the chief clerk himself; that the witnesses wished to have the assistance of their counsel at their examination, but that, as no counsel would attend before the chief clerks, they could not have proper legal advice in the matter, & were not therefore bound to obey the summons. brought an action against another co., & obtained an order for affidavit of documents in the action; but the ct. refused to order the production of documents, or the examination of the co.'s secretary or interrogatories, on the ground that in the present stage of the action, no defence having been put in, the discovery was premature. The liquidator then obtained an order under 1862 Act, s. 115, for the examination of the secretary before an examiner. The secretary did not appeal from this order, but when examined refused to answer a question relating to the matters in issue in the action:—Held: as the liquidator had shown no reason for seeking the discovery except to assist him in the action, & so to evade the order of the judge postponing discovery in the action, the witness was justified in refusing to answer the question. Qu.: whether the witness might not have appealed against the original order for his examination.—Re NORTH AUSTRALIAN TERRITORY CO. (1890), 45 Ch. 6110. — Examination of officer—Questions as to documents—Documents in hands of litigant against company.]—The pendency of an action commenced by the liquidator of a co., which is in course of being wound up, against third persons, may be a good ground for postponing the examination of a witness under 1862 Act, s. 115. But where the witness to be examined was a former manager of a co. which was in voluntary liquidation, & the liquidator was simply seeking to obtain information as to the documents of the co. which were in the manager's possession & also information as to how he had dealt with those documents:—Held: it was a proper case for the liquidator to put in force the powers conferred by the sect., notwithstanding that the manager had improperly handed over some of the documents to a person with whom the co. was in litigation.

An officer of a co. which has gone into liquidation is not justified in refusing, in the course of an examination under the above sect., to answer questions as to documents belonging to the co. which have come into his possession as an officer of the co., on the ground that such documents have passed into the possession of persons who are in litigation with the co., & have successfully claimed privilege in the litigation in respect of such documents.—*Re LONDON & NORTHERN BANK, Ex p. Although the mere fact that an action against the co. & the directors is pending, at the instance of the person asking the ct. to exercise its power, does not necessarily suspend the exercise of such power, still, where the action is for the individual benefit of pltf., the ct. ought not as a general rule to allow an examination under the sect. which is desired for the purposes of the action so long as the action is pending.

This order not having been obeyed an action was brought by the co. to recover possession of the books from G. who set up the defence that he had already given them up, & also that the co. had no locus standi to maintain the action. After proceedings in liquidation were commenced G. was dismissed as manager, whereupon he demanded an audit of the books which was commenced but never completed, & G. swore that after handing over the books to the auditors he had never had possession of them. He also swore that they had never been in his control, having been kept in a safe of which a clerk of the co. & the new manager alone had the combination. Some time after the audit an agent of the liquidator went to Ottawa to get the books & saw G., who first agreed but afterwards refused to deliver them up, giving as the ground of his refusal that he was liable for rent of the office, & other debts of the co., & wished to retain what property of the co. he had to protect himself. 6133. Discretion of court to order—Interference by Court of Appeal—Surveyor of taxes—Production of company's balance-sheet.]—Under 1862 Act, s. 115, the judge has a discretion as to making an order for the production of documents, & the Ct. of Appeal will not readily interfere with the exercise of his discretion, though it has jurisdiction to do so in a proper case.

The liquidator of a co., in order to obtain evidence in support of a misfeasance summons which he had issued against the directors of the co. & the auditors, applied under the above sect. for an order that the surveyor of taxes should attend for examination and produce some balance-sheets of the co. which had been delivered to him for the purpose of assessment of income tax. The surveyor objected to produce these documents, & the Board of Inland Revenue supported his objection by a resolution that their production would be "prejudicial & injurious to the public interests & service." On appeal from a refusal of an order for production:—Held: the exercise by the judge of his discretion ought not to be interfered with.—Re HARGREAVES (JOSEPH), LTD., [1900] 1 Ch. 347; 69 L. J. 6134. When ordered — Cross-examination of secretary—On affidavit containing material collected from company's books.]—A petition for winding up a co. having been presented by a shareholder, the secretary filed an affidavit in opposition to the petition, & was cross-examined by petitioner before a special examiner. On his cross-examination, he was called on to produce the books of the co., which he refused to do. The judge, accordingly, on the application of petitioner, made an order that the co., by their secretary, should produce before the special examiner, upon the cross-examination of the secretary, the books & papers which they had had notice to produce:—Held: petitioner had a right to the production of the co.'s books & papers on the cross-examination of the secretary for the purpose of testing his evidence, but for no other purpose; & the order was right both in form & substance.—Re EMMA SILVER MINING Co. (1875), 10 Ch. The Lord Ordinary, while of opinion that a warrant ought to be granted, reported the note, being doubtful whether he had power to grant such a warrant, as Cos. Act, 1862 (c. 89), s. 115, did not specifically authorise a warrant to search for & seize books, etc.:—Held: a warrant must be granted to messenger at arms to search for & seize as craved.—*KER v. The transfer was suspected to be collusive, & it was alleged that G. had, after the transfer was executed, paid on behalf of the transferor various sums of money to the transferee to enable him to pay calls on the shares. It was desired to require the secretary of the banking co. to bring with him & produce the books of the banking co. containing the private account of G., in order that the liquidators might inspect that account with the view of tracing the payments alleged to have been made by G. to the transferee:—Held: a summons under 1862 Act, s. 115, might issue for these purposes, but when the witness attended & produced the books every objection as to the right of inspecting them would still be open to him & to the judge.

Act, 1862 (c. 89), s. 165, a summary procedure for enforcing against directors or other officers of a co. liability for breach of trust or other misconduct which, prior to the Act, might have been enforced by action; & to bring a case within the sect. it is essential to show that pecuniary loss resulted to the co. from the acts or defaults constituting the alleged misfeasance.—Re IRISH PROVIDENT ASSURANCE CO., [1913] 1 I. The sect. is wide in its application, it covers the case of a de facto director guilty of misfeasance while assuming to direct a co.'s affairs, although there may have been irregularity in the proceedings leading to his election as director; it does not lie in his mouth to criticise the method of his appointment.—Re OWEN SOUND LUMBER CO. (1915), 34 O. wound up voluntarily. In the course of the liquidation it appeared that cheques signed by J. & M. had been drawn against the bank account of the co. for purposes in which I. alone was interested; but that, on the whole account, lodgments had been made by I. to the credit of the co. to an amount larger than the sums drawn out upon the cheques so signed by J. & M. On a summons by the liquidator, under Cos. Act, 1862 (c. 89), s. 165, to determine whether these sums had been expended ultra vires, & in breach of trust, & if so, that the directors should repay the sums, it was found that no money loss had been sustained by the co., but the ct. decided that the directors were guilty of gross neglect & breach of duty, & that such neglect & breach of duty were the cause of the litigation, & ordered that the directors should pay the costs of the summons & inquiry:—Held: the ct. had jurisdiction to make the order that the directors should pay the costs, although the claim of the liquidator for repayment of money had failed.—Re IRELAND & CO., [1905] 1 I. holder of any shares. No act of misfeasance was alleged against either of them for which he would have been liable if he had been a duly qualified director. The co. was now in course of being wound up. The liquidator applied under 1862 Act, s. 165, to charge them for misfeasance in acting as directors without qualification:—Held: the above sect. created no new right, but merely provided a summary mode of calling directors to account for acts of impropriety, for which they were liable to an action; to make a person liable under it, he must be shown to have been guilty of some misconduct by which the co. had suffered loss; & the application must, therefore, be dismissed.

6161. Contributory—In respect of fully-paid shares.]—In 1871, a partnership, consisting of resp. & five other persons, purchased certain coal areas for £5,500. In 1873 a co. was formed for the purchase of these coal areas at a price, as fixed in the arts. of assocn., not exceeding £42,000—that is, £12,000 in cash & £30,000 in shares. The directors of whom resp. was one, effected the purchase at the above maximum price. The co. was ordered to be wound up in 1875, & in 1878 the coal areas were sold with other property for £14,500. Applt., a contributory, as holder of paid-up shares, applied under 1862 Act, s. 165, to make resp. liable for misfeasance or breach of trust, on the ground that he had joined in purchasing the coal areas for the co. at an overvalue, & without disclosing his interest to the other directors:—Held: (1) it had not been proved that the price paid by the co. was excessive, nor that resp. had concealed his interest; & the onus of proof lay upon applt.

Semble: (2) if misfeasance had been made out, relief could have been obtained against resp., notwithstanding that rescission of the purchase by the co. had become impossible; (3) a person who is merely a contributory in respect of shares fully paid-up has no locus standi to apply under the above sect. unless he can show that he might derive some benefit thereby.—*CAVENDISH BENTINCK v. 6165. Executor of deceased director or officer.]—The discretionary power conferred by 1862 Act, s. 165, of dealing summarily with delinquent directors & other officers of a co., applies only to cases in which the individual sought to be charged with the alleged misfeasance is living & cannot be exercised against his representatives if he be dead.

In the winding-up of a co., under the above Act, a summons was taken out by the official liquidators against the living directors of the co., & the exors. of such as were dead, to enforce against them the summary remedy provided by the above sect., in respect of certain alleged misfeasances on the part respectively, of themselves or their testators. On summons by the exors. of a deceased director, for a stay of proceedings on the former summons:—Held: though unusual, it was a legitimate form of disputing the jurisdiction; the summary relief could not be had against them; & both living & deceased directors being implicated in the charges made, & the adjustment of all rights in the winding up requiring all parties to be made jointly liable, the remedy must be by suit.—Re EAST OF ENGLAND BANK, FELTOM'S EXECUTORS' CASE (1865), L. 6166. —.]—The exors. of a director, deceased, not being officials of a co., cannot be proceeded against by summons taken out under the provisions of 1862 Act, s. 165. A co. in 1872 passed a resolution that for the better security of the policy holders 50 per cent. of the premiums paid on whole life policies should be invested in Govt. securities in the names of trustees, & representations were made by the directors of the manner in which the investments were made; but in the winding up of the co. it was discovered that premiums had been received & investments had not been made, as represented; & that the investments of premiums which had been made had been sold out, & the proceeds applied towards the general purposes of the co. On summons by the liquidator & a whole life policy holder jointly, under the above Act, for a declaration that the directors were liable to account to the co. for a moiety of the premiums received:—Held: the summons was maintainable as against the surviving directors; the directors were liable, as for a breach of trust, for a moiety of the premiums which ought to have been invested; & the policy holder was a creditor of the co. & rightly joined with the liquidator in the summons.—Re BRITISH GUARDIAN LIFE ASSURANCE CO. (1880), 14 Ch. i. In General.

6168. Not mere non-feasance—Neglect to recover debts.—A director of a co. who has knowledge of a fraud, breach of trust, or misfeasance committed before he was a director of or connected with the co. by which the co.'s money was lost, is not liable under 1862 Act, s. 165, or otherwise, for not communicating such knowledge to the co., or for not instituting proceedings for the recovery of the money lost.

But where there has been no fraud or dishonesty & a director has omitted to get in a debt due to the co. by not suing at the proper time, or when the debtor was solvent at one time and not at another, it appears to me that it by no means follows as a matter of course, as it might in the case of ordinary trustees that the directors ought to be made liable (JESSEL, M.R.).—Re FOREST OF DEAN COAL MINING CO. (1878), 10 Ch. Neglect to recover money wrongly paid.—Directors of a co. in liquidation cannot be made liable, under 1862 Act, s. 165, for acts of mere non-feasance.

An agreement for an underlease of mines was assigned for value to T. by A., who at the same time agreed to deduce a good title. A co., called the W. Co., was afterwards formed to work in the mines. T. declared himself to be a trustee for the co. of the benefit of the agreement, & A. became chairman. It was afterwards found that the consent of a rival co., owners of the head lease, was necessary to the underlease; & a formal licence was accordingly obtained from them by the W. Co., by payment of £5,400. A. who was in pecuniary difficulties at the time, did not pay this money himself, but it was raised by the W. Co. by the issue of debentures, for some of which A. himself subscribed. The W. Co. having gone into liquidation, & A. having become bankrupt, the official liquidator took out a summons against the directors, other than A., seeking to make them liable, under the above sect., to replace the £5,400, on the ground that they had been guilty of a misfeasance, or breach of trust, or at least of wilful default (1) in allowing the money to be so applied at all, (2) in not recovering it from A., (3) at any rate in not keeping his subscription, & refusing to give him his debentures:—Held: they had been guilty of no misfeasance, but only of mere nonfeasance, & they could not therefore be made liable under the sect.—Re WEDGWOOD COAL & IRON CO. (1882), 47 L. the co. had commenced business, but only a few weeks before the date of a winding-up order, passed a resolution that the book debts, amounting to £366 4s. 8d., should be taken over by the co. for the sum of £279:—Held: such a resolution was a misfeasance & breach of trust by P. & B., & must be set aside.—Re CANTERBURY AUCTIONEERING, REAL ESTATE, FRUIT & PRODUCE CO. (1904), 23 N. 6171. — Distinction between liability in misfeasance proceedings & liability to pay for shares.]—The directors of a co., in its name, entered into an agreement with H. that the capital of the co. should be increased, & that he should endeavour to obtain subscribers for the new shares to be issued. He was to receive, by way of remuneration, a large commission on the nominal value of the new shares taken up, & also a number of shares issued as fully paid-up to him or his nominees, of which 1,000 were to be issued as soon as the directors had accepted four persons to be nominated by him as directors or trustees of the co. This agreement was registered. The co. afterwards passed a special resolution to increase the capital to the extent mentioned in the agreement. R., on the nomination of H., agreed to become a director, on the understanding that he was to be qualified by holding 200 fully paid-up shares, which were to be found for him by H. R. was afterwards elected a director, & acted as such. After his election a second agreement was entered into between the co. & H., by which it was arranged that 2,000 specified shares should be allotted to him or his nominees, as part of the consideration to which he was entitled under the first agreement. The second agreement was also registered. After this 200 of the specified shares were, at the request of H., allotted to R., & were with his consent registered in his name as fully paid-up. Nothing was, in fact, paid for them. The co. was afterwards ordered to be wound up:—Held: (1) the arrangement with H. was fraudulent, & ultra vires, but as R. had never agreed to take any but paid-up shares, he could not be placed on the list of contributories in respect of the 200 shares; (2) R. had been guilty of a misfeasance in relation to the co., & the ct. could, under 1862 Act, s. 165, order him to pay to the liquidator the value of the 200 shares which he had obtained.—Re BRITISH PROVIDENT LIFE & GUARANTEE ASSOCN., DE RUVIGNE'S CASE (1877), 5 Ch. 6172. General rule.]—A summons seeking to make directors of a co. liable for misfeasance under 1890 (Winding up) Act, s. 10, should give some information as to the grounds upon which the application is based.

To make directors of a co. liable for misfeasance or breach of trust in relation to the co. on the ground of negligence in performing an act which is within their powers, it must be shown that they did not really exercise their judgment & discretion in the matter as agents of the co.—Re NEW MASHONALAND EXPLORATION CO., [1892]

6173. —.]—Where an officer of a co. has committed a breach of his duty to the co., the direct consequence of which has been a misapplication of its assets, for which he could be made responsible in an action, such breach of duty is a "misfeasance" for which he may be summarily proceeded against under 1890 (Winding up) Act, s. 10, & it is not necessary that an action should be brought.

For some years before a co. was wound up, balance-sheets signed by the auditors were published by the directors to the shareholders in which the value of the co.'s stock-in-trade at the end of each year was grossly false, given by J., one of the directors who was also manager, as to the value, of the stock-in-trade. Dividends were paid for some years on the footing that the balance-sheets were correct; but if the stock-in-trade had been stated at its value it would have appeared that there were no profits out of which a dividend could be declared. If the auditors had compared the different books & added to the stock-in-trade at the beginning of the year the amounts purchased during the year, & deducted the amounts sold, they would have seen that the statement of the stock-in-trade at the end of the year was so large as to call for explanation; but they did not do so:—Held: it being no part of the duty of the auditors to take stock, they were justified in relying on the certificates of the manager, a person of acknowledged competence & high reputation, & were not bound to check his certificates in the absence of anything to raise suspicion, & they were not liable for the dividends wrongfully paid.

An auditor is not bound to be suspicious where there are no circumstances to arouse suspicion; he is only bound to exercise a reasonable amount of care & skill.—Re KINGSTON COTTON MILL CO. (No. 2), [1896] 2 Ch. 279; 65 L. The co. was ordered to be wound up, & in the winding up the official liquidator applied for payment by the directors of all moneys of the co. expended by them since the presentation of the petition:—Held: the combined effect of 1862 Act, ss. 153 & 165, was to make the directors prima facie liable for all moneys of the co. expended by them, not in the ordinary course of business, since the commencement of the winding up, & an account of moneys so expended must be taken.—Re NEATH HARBOUR SMELTING & ROLLING 6176. Conduct reckless & without excuse.—The applications for shares in a co. fell short of expectation, & although the whole amount payable on the shares would be inadequate to purchase certain property without which the co. could not proceed to business, & although certain directors named in the prospectus had resigned, still the remaining directors resolved on allotting, & entered into contracts for purchasing & repairing the property. In proceedings against the directors under 1862 Act, s. 165, for the invalid & improper allotment of shares:—Held: the allotment could not be made a subject of complaint under that sect., as no loss was occasioned to the co. by an act, the only direct result of which was that money was paid on the shares to the credit of the co.'s banking account.

Numerous actions were brought against the co. by shareholders for rescission of their contracts to take shares. The directors, thinking the co. to be unduly attacked thereby, brought actions against those shareholders for calls unpaid:—Held: though in so doing the conduct of the directors seemed to border on the reckless, still, as they had considered the matter as there had been no proof adduced of want of honesty in the line of conduct they had seen fit to adopt, they were not liable under the above sect.

Actions were successfully brought against officers of the co. for the costs of which they were entitled to indemnity from the co. The directors, thinking the co. wronged by these actions, brought actions in the name of these officers against a firm of solrs. for damages for maintenance of the previous actions. The officers had to pay the costs of these new actions, but were reimbursed out of the co.'s moneys:—Held: the conduct of the directors had been reckless & without excuse, & in paying the costs of the new actions out of the co.'s moneys they had been guilty of misfeasance within the above sect. for which they were liable.—Re LIVERPOOL HOUSEHOLD STORES ASSOCN., LTD. (1890), 59 L. I., who had certain patent rights, arranged with six shipowners to form a private co., & to sell to such co. their business & patent rights for £6,000, payable as to £3,000 in cash & as to £3,000 in fully-paid shares. It was arranged (1) that the capital of the co. should be £25,000, divided into 2,500 shares of £10 each; (2) that the vendors should take 300 fully paid-up shares as the balance of their purchase-money; (3) that the six shipowners should take & pay up the defence that he was not personally liable, as he was only liquidator, & that at the time he was sued the liquidation had ceased:—Held: there was a statutory duty resting upon the liquidator to see that all claims were paid before he distributed the assets, & he must have known of the debt; even if he were not to be deemed a liquidator, but a private individual, he was responsible to C., his servant or agent.—BROWN v. COWAN (1912), 31 N. Z. L. R. 1219.—N.Z.

6190. Sums recovered by misfeasance proceedings—Effect of reconstruction—Whether shareholders of old company entitled.]—Upon a reconstruction scheme under which the assets of the old co. were transferred to a new co. & the shareholders of the old co. were entitled to take shares, partly paid-up, in the new co., the order sanctioning the scheme reserved the right of the liquidator of the old co. to take misfeasance proceedings under 1890 (Winding up) Act, s. 10, against the officers of the old co. & others, & the proceeds of any such proceedings were to be held by the liquidator for the benefit of the shareholders of the old co. Misfeasance proceedings were taken & a large sum was recovered:—Held: this sum belonged to the shareholders of the old co. whether they came in under the scheme or not.—Re OLYMPIA, LTD. (1900), 16 T. 6194. ——— Joinder of alternative claims for relief.]—W., M., & others, who carried on business as cab proprietors & livery-stable keepers, became desirous of turning their business into a limited co., & a contract was entered into between them, as representing the vendors, & the co., in which all the vendors became shareholders, for the sale of the business for £46,300. This agreement was duly filed before the issue of any shares. The co. afterwards getting into difficulties was ordered to be wound up compulsorily. The figure at which the coaches, horses, etc., were set down in the books of the co. at its formation was about £11,000 less than the sum allocated to this item in the agreement, & the official receiver sought by this summons to recover this amount from the vendors on the ground that to this extent the consideration was a sham. The summons was twofold: the first portion claiming the amount from the vendors as damages for their misfeasance as officers of the co.; the second seeking to make them liable as contributories for the amount as unpaid on their shares. Preliminary objections were taken both to the joinder of the two different charges in one summons, & to the attempt to obtain such a declaration of liability as was asked for in the second branch of the summons instead of following the procedure laid down by the rules under 1890 (Winding up) Act:—Held: (1) while the joinder of the alternative claims for relief in one summons was inconvenient, it was not in this case embarrassing, & the objection failed; (2) while the claim for relief adopted in the second branch of the summons was not in accordance with the ordinary practice, there was no reason why this case should not be dealt with in this form, & this objection also failed; (3) there being admittedly no damages proved, the claim for misfeasance failed; and (4) the official receiver having failed to establish that there was no contract here capable of registration under 1867 Act, s. 25, & having made out no case on the facts to induce the ct. to go behind the registered contract & draw the conclusion that the consideration here, so far as is related to the £11,000, was merely a colourable consideration, the second branch of his summons also failed.—Re WRAGG, LTD., [1897] 1 Ch. 796; 66 L. 6199. Position of liquidator on summons—Whether obliged to state what parts of affidavit intended to be read against particular party.]—(1) The official liquidator of a co. applied, under 1862 Act, s. 165, to make a number of gentlemen, some of whom were, & others had been, directors, responsible for acts of misfeasance. The alleged acts were 107 in number. E. had been a director only during the period in which the first eleven of these acts were done, & it was not sought to make him liable in respect of any others. The liquidator filed an affidavit of 1150 folios, including all the cases. E., who appeared alone, applied for an order that the liquidator might state what paragraphs he intended to read against E. It veyance to the U. Co., all right & title "in & to any other heritable or movable properties & rights & privileges of every description pertaining to our business of coalmasters" were transferred:—Held: the present claim was not to "property" within that description as it did not fall within the going business of coalmasters but appeared to be general assets which remained with the liquidator; & the liquidator alone had the right to

appeared that E.'s solr. had borrowed the affidavit, & was, on his own showing, able to make out what parts of the affidavit affected E.:—Held: E.'s application must be refused, for although the ct. would interfere if the cases against different parties were mixed up together in a way which was oppressive, a deft. must, as a general rule, ascertain for himself what part of pltf.'s evidence affects him, & there were no circumstances in the present case to take it out of the general rule.
